PWC Enrolment Is Up 100; Teacher Training Declines

An increase of nearly 100 students over last year's enrolment was reported at Prince of Wales College yesterday by Registrar Gordon L. Bennett.

Enrolment figures for the first two university years (third and fourth) years at Prince of Wales and the teacher training course were registered this year. The total enrolment at the college for the 1953-54 school year last year's total was 696.

The only student grouping which is smaller this year is the third year academic and education class, in which 150 students were registered in 1952-53.

Mr. Bennett attributed this drop largely to the fact that the Prince of Wales has extended its teacher training course to two years. With the possibility of obtaining a teaching license in just one year after grade 12, many students are choosing not with the intention of teaching immediately, but to "have something to fall back on."

The registrar did feel that when students realize that those completing the course can earn a much superior teaching license than that held by those taking the course in one year, the enrolment in the course will begin to increase.

FOURTH YEAR UP

Seventy-one students have enrolled in the fourth year academic and education classes, as compared to the 1952-53 registration of 52.

Nearly everyone who did well in third year year after a saved term. Mr. Bennett noted, adding that the group has "all indications of being a very good class."

Registration has increased by 40 per cent in the grade 11 and 12 and the commercial classes.

TURN AWAY SOME

Mr. Bennett said that this year to collect the course, as compared to the 1952-53 registration of 110.

Registration has increased by 40 per cent in the grade 11 and 12 and the commercial classes.

PWC Overflow Housed In Vocational School

To accommodate the heavy increase in enrolment for first and second year students at Prince of Wales College, eight additional classrooms had to be provided in the Vocational School building on Grafton Street.

Dr. George Dewar, minister of education, said yesterday that the administrative offices of the vocational school were moved to the old West Kent School, as was the audio-visual education branch, and the vocational school commerce class was moved to the Provincial Vocational Institute.

According to Dr. Dewar, enrolment of first year students at Prince of Wales College increased to 265 from 188 over last year; second year students increased to 150 from 120; first year commerce students increased to 40 from 20; and second year commerce students increased to 61 from 47.

Dr. Dewar said the vocational

ISLAND NEWS PAGE Gov't To Undertake Water Conservation

Water conservation development will be carried out in 18 areas throughout the province it was announced yesterday by Premier Walter R. Shaw.

The department of industry and natural resources will be in charge of the project which comes under the federal-provincial agreement on agricultural rehabilitation and development.

The program, the Premier said, will have a close association with the development of parks, picnic grounds, and recreation areas.

Commenting on water conservation, Premier Shaw said years ago under the sawmill and grist mill system, we had a wonderful water reserves all over the province. These were not only instrumental in water conservation and keeping the water level up generally, but were great conservation areas for wildlife. The old dams were fruitful trout breeding areas, with water backed up for long distances in the mill streams.

"The streams also provided a favorable breeding and growing grounds for water birds.

"With the passing of a large number of waterways, the picture has changed and I feel that from the standpoint of both economic development, as well as recreational development, the improvement of these areas is perhaps more important than the average person realizes.

"For this reason, we have selected water areas through the province for water conservation and construction purposes."

Premier Shaw said some of the conservation work has already started and other projects are awaiting approval of federal ARDA authorities.
