

BEDEQUE

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Townsend and their three children, Carleton, left on Tuesday, August 14th, for Hamilton, Ontario. They will reside there for some time.

Mr. Frank More, Sydney, formerly of Charlottetown, was a visitor to North Bedeque and Bedeque recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman James and their two sons, Lawrence and Brian of Chasset, Mass., are visiting in Carleton. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Myers. They will visit also with other relatives and friends in Fernwood, Chelton, New Annan and other parts of the Island.

Rev. Dr. G.A. Williams, associate secretary of the M. and M. Department of the United Church, Toronto, was the special speaker at the service in the United Church during the course of his inspiring Sunday morning, August 12th, sermon, he referred to his missionary work in the Far East some years ago. Dr. and Mrs. Williams are vacationing at Cavendish. He said that this is his first visit to P.E.I., and he and his wife were delighted with the Island. They plan to retire and settle in Vancouver, B.C., in the near future. Dr. Williams also conducted the service at Borden at 9:30 a.m. In the evening the guest speaker was Rev. J.A. McKim, Saint John's, Newfoundland. His message was also along Missionary lines as he spoke of his work some years ago among the Indians in Western Canada. Special music was prepared for this service. The choir under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Walter Craig, was augmented by Rev. P.E. James, who sang two beautiful solos. Mr. J.H. MacFarlane conducted the service. Rev. and Mrs. Moore and their four children are vacationing at North Bedeque. Rev. and Mrs. McKim are vacationing at Fernwood.

The "Half Century" club met at the home of Mrs. Ernest Johnson on Monday evening, August 13th. Mrs. Percy Affleck opened the meeting with a poem entitled "There must be a little rain to make a rainbow". Roll call was responded to with miscellaneous items. Much business was considered, pertaining to village improvements. Further discussion was left for the next meeting which will be at Mrs. MacFarlane's home on September 10th. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess. B.Q.

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

We don't quite know how to explain South's three heart bid, except to say that it happened. To our practised eye, it looks as though South had fully spoken his piece when he opened with a heart and that he should have bowed out of the auction as soon as partner responded two hearts. We've been wrong before about such matters, and South proved us wrong this time. His three heart bid brought a four heart bid (properly) from North. The play for game, it turned out, was not too bad.

After winning the ace of diamonds, South took two rounds of trumps, learning there was a trump loser in addition to the three club losers he had started with. As anyone can plainly see who has spent more than several hours playing bridge, South could not make four hearts, since he had four losers.

South was a very stubborn critter, however, with not only his own ideas in bidding, but also in play. He simply took the ten tricks he had bargained for and paid not the slightest attention to the fact that he had four losers. It is obvious, moreover, that he has not been reading this column, which has pointed out on many occasions that you cannot make ten tricks if the opponents take four.

Having discovered there was a trump loser, South led a spade to the king and trumped a diamond. He next played the ace of spades and trumped a spade. Another diamond was ruffed by South and his last spade was ruffed in dummy. The fourth round of diamonds was then ruffed by South with his last trump.

By now, ten tricks had been played and South had won them all. The defenders still had a trump trick coming, as well as their three club tricks, but could not get four tricks when there were only three tricks to go. One of the tricks was bound to get telescoped into another.

The defenders were helpless after the opening lead, which is more than we can say about South.

HAS COLT AT 35

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - For some time now the rumor has been going around that Dixie King, a 35-year-old mare, was pregnant. She foaled a spindly-legged colt for the American Saddle Horse Breeders Association said the foaling was unusual at the age of 35, but "credible." He also said horses usually didn't live to be older than 30, though there are exceptions.

WHISKY IMPORTS

More than 2,000,000 proof gallons of whisky valued at more than $9,000,000 were imported into Canada in 1955.

catch him he couldn't fight with him. And if he couldn't fight with him he couldn't drive him away. Nimbleheels wasn't afraid of him because he knew that without any trouble at all he could keep away from Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny knew it now too, and it didn't make him feel any better. They were so busy with each other that they did something no mouse can ever afford to do. They forgot to watch for danger. And danger was coming their way. It was the Fox, Young Reddy.

EDTIMES STORIES

Danny Feels Foolish By Thornton W. Burgess

The booster finds that in the end Chagrin is certain to attend. -Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse had unexpectedly met his cousin Nimbleheels the Jumping Mouse. Danny is a stout homely fellow with a very short tail. His legs are short and hardly to be seen when he is running. Nimbleheels is slim, trim, and has very long hind legs and short front ones. When he sits up he looks as if he might be a teeny, weeny Kangaroo. And he can jump like a Kangaroo. But when he is down in the grass he moves about on all four feet just as other mice do. However, because of those long hind legs, he looks clumsy when he is moving. He doesn't look as if he can run fast at all.

Nimbleheels had simply jumped right over Danny.

Now Danny wasn't at all pleased when he met his pretty little cousin. He felt that that part of the Green Meadows belonged to the Meadow Mice folk. So Nimbleheels was not at all welcome. Danny squeaked at him angrily and ordered him to go somewhere else. When Nimbleheels didn't, Danny lost his temper and rushed at him.

A funny thing happened right then. Nimbleheels suddenly was not there. He hadn't turned and run. He hadn't dodged. He had done something that Danny never had happened to before. Nimbleheels had simply jumped right over Danny. It wasn't a long jump or a high jump, because it didn't need to be.

Danny turned quickly. Nimble-
