Make Sure Guidelines Kept, Gordon Urges In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Former finance minister Walter Gordon has urged his colleagues in the cabinet to take whatever steps necessary to make certain foreign companies in Canada follow the Canadian economic guidelines laid down Thursday by Trade Minister Winters.

In his first speech since resigning the finance portfolio after the Nov. 8 federal election, Mr. Gordon praised Mr. Winters for the guidelines which outline rules for foreign-owned subsidiaries in Canada.

"Exhortations in guidelines are fine but they need to be enforced," he said.

Mr. Gordon spoke in support of the first budget by his successor, Mitchell Sharp, after the Conservative and New Democratic parties moved motions of non-confidence.

The Conservative motion, says the government failed to deal with major national problems, stimulate productivity and export trade, tackle the international payments problem, maintain price stability and promote development throughout the country.

RAPS SHARP

The NDP motion, moved by Colin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), raps Mr. Sharp for not raising income tax exemption levels to $1,500 from $1,000 for single persons and to $3,000 from $2,000 for married couples, and for not guaranteeing a minimum income for persons whose incomes fall below the exemption level.

Both come to a vote after the Commons recess April 19.

Mr. Gordon said Canada's international payments problems can be resolved if it is tackled head-on and Canada has an economic potential which should be the envy of all other countries, including the United States.

Alvin Hamilton (PC—QuAppelle) said Mr. Gordon's address sounded like "the swan song of a man who has ambitions for quieter and higher places."

Mr. Gordon had created a niche for himself in history by resigning as finance minister last November. Regardless of the reason, he had resigned on personal principle and this was admirable.

TERMED OUT OF DATE

He felt Mr. Gordon's methods were a century behind the times and Mr. Sharp's were 25 years out of date.

J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) called the budget "economic myopia. He said the save-per-cent refundable tax on cash profits of corporations will not have the desired effect of curbing inflation.

ement on both the Conservative and NDP motions.

Mr. Grégoire said the cost of living was largely attributable to rising taxes.

Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo) said he didn't think the boom that Mr. Sharp referred to in over Canada. There were his budget "is prevalent all over Canada." There were rockets of poverty and too much unemployment.

CPA Reports Pilot Shortage

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines is being decision — will not hurt the travelling public as other carriers could easily absorb the CPA charter business.

The pilot shortage has been caused, Mr. Glimmer said, through CPA difficulties in breaking in crews from one type of aircraft to another.

"As a result, we have had to break off the DC-6 service so we can eliminate dual qualification and concentrate on one type of operation," he said.

LINDBERGH KIDNAPPING CASE

Hauptmann's Last Letter Declares His Innocence

By BOB DUBILE
TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—Thirty years ago Sunday, Bruno Richard Hauptmann was executed for murdering the Lindbergh baby.

Four days before he died in the electric chair at New Jersey's state prison, he wrote his last letter, a long one to Governor Harold Hoffman insisting he was innocent.

The Associated Press obtained a copy last week from William M. Dwyer, press secretary to Governor Richard J. Hughes. It had been saved by Hoffman's press secretary, Edward Connelly.

The letter said:
"My writing is not for fear of losing my life. This is in the hands of God, it is His will. I will go gladly, it means the end of my tremendous suffering. Only in thinking of my dear wife and my little boy, that is breaking my heart. I know until this terrible crime is solved they will have to suffer under the weight of my unfair conviction."

"May I ask fair thinking people—would I have been convicted of this crime without the circumstantial evidence and false witnesses. No! Never and never."

"Why did my chief lawyer send important witnesses home without even bringing them to the stand. My God, my God, I hardly can't believe on all that what happened by my trial. But it was necessary to convict me and so close the books on the case."

CONVICTION VALID
The prosecutor — aggressive, articulate David T. Wilentz — conceded qualms about capital punishment, but he insisted Hauptmann's conviction was valid and still does.

"Nothing has happened since that has altered my faith in the verdict of the jury," Wilentz, now 70, said in an interview.

Wilentz admits he is still bothered by capital punishment. "I'm in the twilight zone, I'm neutral. When I read of some of these fiendish murders I get the feeling capital punishment should be retained. But there are times I have reservations."

Whatever his personal feelings, the death penalty for first-degree murder was New Jersey law. Wilentz was the attorney-general of the state and, he says "it was my duty."

The case against Hauptmann was largely circumstantial.

On a cold, windy night March 1, 1932, Charles A. Lindbergh

Jr., 19-month-old son of America's flying hero, was kidnapped from his crib.

BRUSHED OFF NOISE
Lindbergh and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, were talking downstairs. They heard a noise which Lindbergh brushed off as a rustling of the wind.

Fifty minutes later a nursemaid discovered the baby missing. On the window was a crude note demanding $50,000 ransom.

On the ground near the 2½-storey house in nearby Hopewell was a crude three-piece ladder. It was broken in one place. Beside it was wood chisel.

Two months later a workman stumbled across the baby's body in a shallow grave five miles from the Lindbergh home and touched off one of the most exhaustive manhunts in history.

On Sept. 19, 1934, the trial led to a 35-year-old German-born carpenter in New York City. His name was Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The case of the state: Ransom money—Through an intermediary, Dr. John F. (Jatsie) Condon, Lindbergh paid the $50,000 ransom the night of April 2 in a Bronx cemetery. Condon testified that the voice at the cemetery telling him where to leave the money was that of Hauptmann. The government distributed circulars carrying serial numbers of the money, most of which was in gold certificates.

A motorist gave a $10 gold note to a Bronx gas station attendant who jotted down the number of the auto licence plate. When police arrested Hauptmann, he had a $20 gold note in his possession. Police found $14,600 more in his garage.

The Ladder—Arthur Koehler, a wood technologist acknowledged as an expert, spent nearly two years tracking down the wood in the kidnap ladder. He
