James Gives Old Maxim-- Funny -- And Was Off Used

A robin in the leafy golden willow on the lawn sang to us this morning at breakfast, trying his best we fancied to match his warm melody of spring. Or was this intended to be a sober declaration of affection for the maiden he had courted then? One filled with avowals of love and respect for the one who had since shared with him the vicissitudes of domestic life in the canopied nest above? Of her we thought whimsically he sang. And were there not now engaging incidentals also in his theme? Gratitude in the lifted head, for the youngsters that now fly about.

Ans some apprehension on their behalf. That of a good male parent we were sure. Would he not point out the charms... and the dangers of this sunny blue-skied world? Would he, we smiled man to man as James did with his sons while they were still young "put them on their honor" in a trill?

"If" James was saying, passing up his cup for more tea, everything works well today, we should round up the hay here by this evening. That is if we have no breaks in machinery and no accidents. The young lads are pretty careful in their work. At the same time we keep a close eye to them. They can get tired and sleepy in the heat, poor little fellows. But I think they're enjoying themselves, and what a great help they are!

"We'll have to stir ourselves to have the hay done by the fair week" we overheard Jamie offer to the help later with a chuckle.

"If we're not done" Mack Grinned, "we'll leave her!"

"And that would be the right farming!" James smiled. "Remember 'when pleasure interferes with work, cut out...'"

"...the work!" one older supplemented with a laugh.

"You know, it's all very well to talk of leaving your hay out when the pastures are green and there's plenty about" James' moral, we knew was meant to include everything and all listeners, "but it's a different picture when the March winds howl about empty barns! None of you know that sound--and I hope you never will. But it's something to be aware of, just the same, in the farming."

"And remember too," we added "there can be no saving of anything when the barrel is empty!"

In London Sack Loses To Smart Smooth Curve

LONDON—Fashion forecast — by the time winter comes, both the sack and the trapeze line will be buried.

That's the outlook after three days of high fashion openings here. Women themselves rejected it in the main and waited for fall which is bringing a new silhouette following more closely the natural curves of the body and endorsed by Norman Hartnell and Michael Sheridan.

Waists are marked again, suits and dresses are lightly fitted. Hartnell, who is starting a Commonwealth tour soon, also went in for bright colors. Strong colors were also favored by Hardy Amies, one of the Queen's favorite dressmakers, and he frequently combined black with purple.

John Cavanaugh showed the Empire line, and shorter skirts.

Worth had floating evening gowns handsome tweeds. Victor Stiebel, Matti, and Lachasse hewed to the conventional line.

Ronald Paterson created interest with a green and white tweed sweater suit and a blue tweed afternoon dress with a fox lined jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Horton and family of Kentville, Nova Scotia, arrived Monday to spend their vacation in Summerside, guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Parkman.

Corned Beef Tasty Dish For Hot Weather Meal

"Meat prices, especially beef, are the highest ever, Madame," observed the chef, adding: "But there are many ways out for budget-minders."

"For example, use chick peas or dried beans with meat to make tasty dishes such as chili con carne, pork and beans, Italian fagioli or the French cassoulet of duck and beans."

TWO-WAY DINNER
"A good buy in beef for a two-way hot weather dinner is corned beef, cooked with plenty of fresh vegetables" I suggested. "Even the flank corned beef is tasty."

"To dress it up, cook it first, remove the fat, chop the meat and make it into a ring-shaped molded loaf."

"When enough homemakers bypass the high-priced meats, and make their selection from the less familiar cuts, prices will begin to drop."

Tomorrow's Dinner: Chilled grapefruit juice, corned beef vegetable platter, tossed greens-beet salad, cinnamon doughnuts-New England, cheddar cheese, hot or iced coffee or tea, milk.

All measurements are level; recipes proportioned to serve 4-6

Corned Beef - Vegetable Platter: To cook corned beef, if meat is solid and thick, allow 30 min. to each lb.; if thinner, allow 25 min. per lb.

Cover meat with cold water. Bring slowly to boiling point; skim. Taste water. If very salty, discard; add fresh cold water and 1 tsp. pickling spice; bring again to boiling point. Cover; simmer until fork-tender.

If corned beef is to be served hot, peeled potatoes, carrots, sliced turnips and wedges of cabbage may be cooked with meat during the last 45 min. If to be served cold, cool

Fatty Is Fighting Word So Charles Swings Fists

The heir to the British throne has been fighting against because a schoolmate called him "Fatty" London News Chronicle said Prince Charles, a well-built youngster, accidentally trod on the foot of another boy during a soccer game at school.

"Get off, Fatty," the Prince was told. The Chronicle said a scuffle ensued during which the Prince "made it quite clear", he preferred the name of "Charles." The young Prince has earned a reputation among the boys at school as a fellow who can look after himself.

On at least two occasions in the past he has taken on classmates in serious bouts.

He hasn't had any formal wrestling instructions, but last December he engaged in a 10-minute pushing, mauling brawl, and combined with minced scalloons or celery and blended with horseradish mayonnaise.

Tender Shower At Montague

On Tuesday evening of last week, friends of Miss Joyce Wigginton, Montague, assembled at the A.A. MacKenzie Hall to tender her a miscellaneous shower on the occasion of her approaching marriage. After she was escorted to a beautifully decorated chair by Mrs. Lester MacLeod a suitable poem was read by Mrs. Howard Vickerson and a well laden and gaily decorated wheel-barrow was wheeled in by Mrs. Arnold Wightman. The gifts which were many, varied, useful and lovely were opened by Mrs. Wightman, Mrs. MacLeod and Mrs. Bert Haneveld. Mrs. Charles Fraser read the verses, many of which original. The gifts were arranged by Mrs. John Shaw.

Though overwhelmed with surprises, Joyce very gracefully expressed her thanks and appreciation. All then joined in singing "For She Is A Jolly Good Fellow".

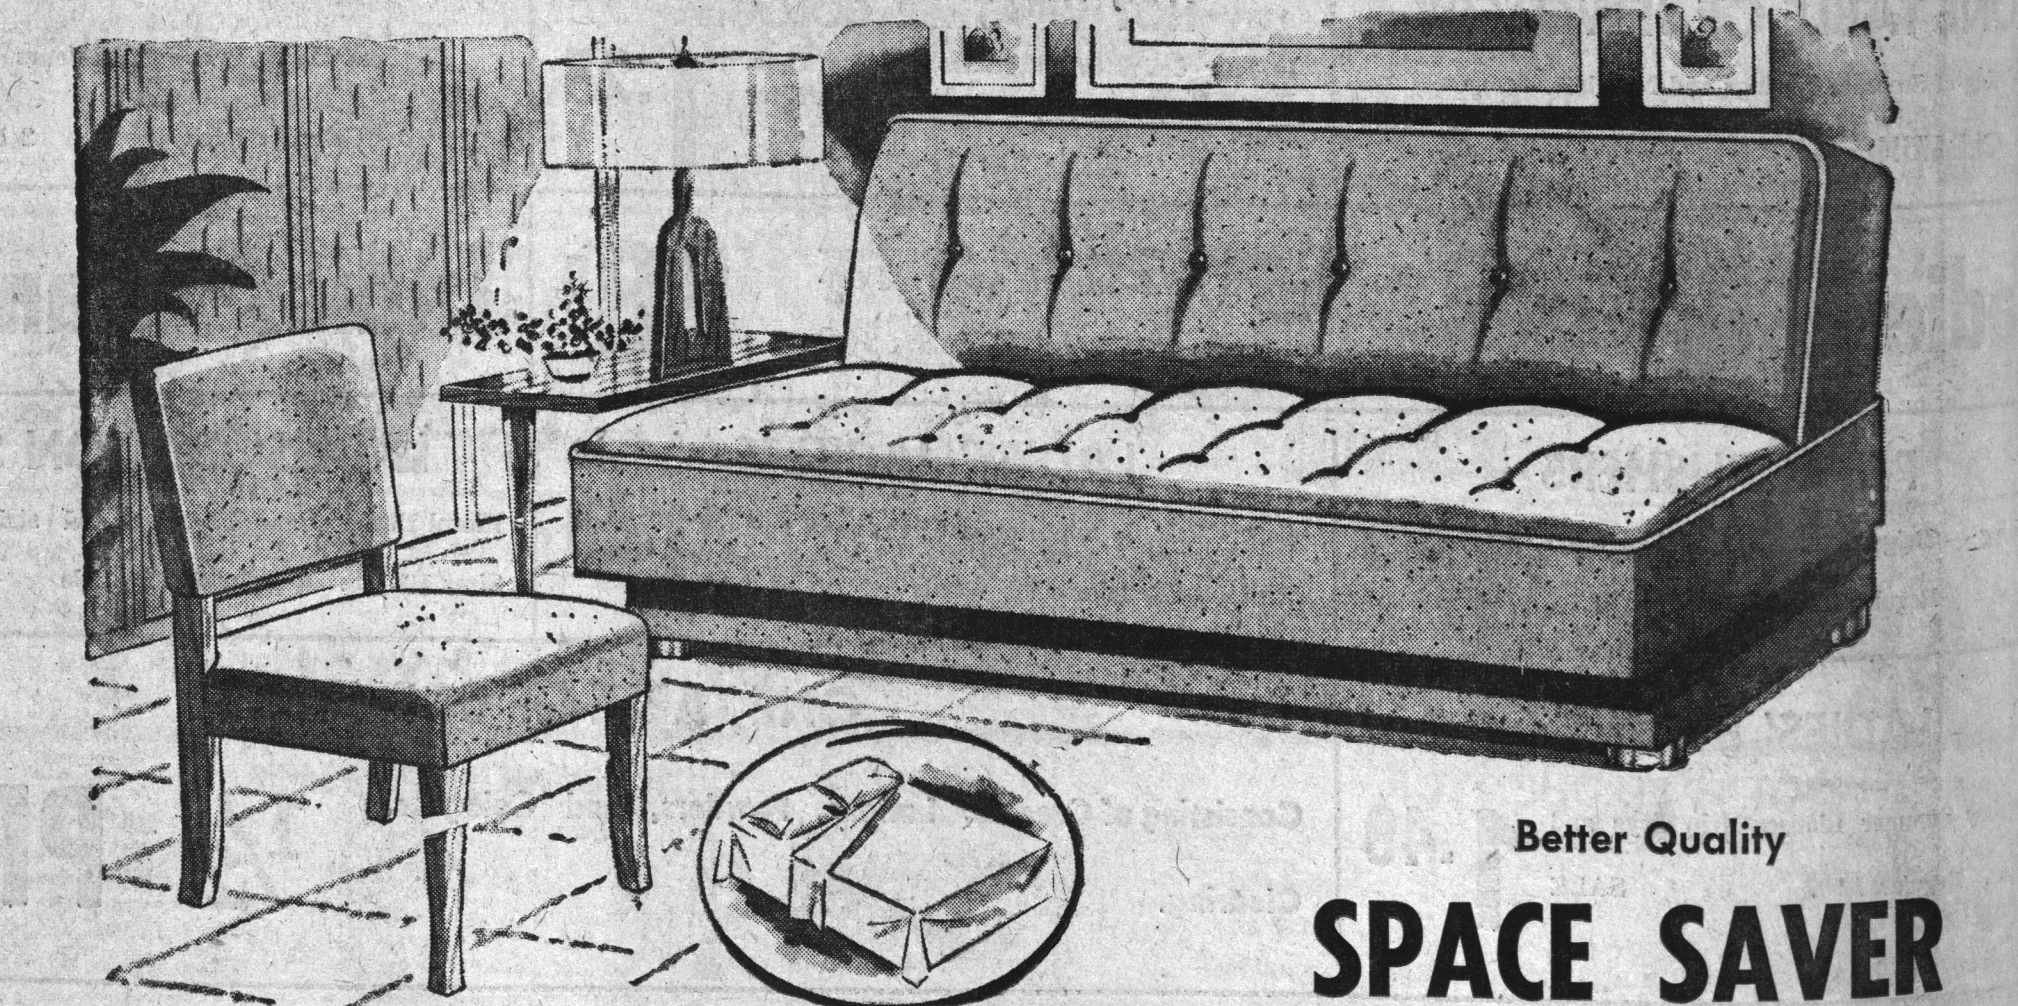

Just before dainty refreshments were served, Mrs. Shaw conducted a guessing contest, and a social half hour brought the end of a merry evening.

Prior to leaving Halifax, Miss Wigginton was entertained at a well arranged miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Cecil Wightman of 48 Churchill Drive.
