ROYAL COUPLE GIVEN HEARTWARMING ISLAND WELCOME

Princess Looks Forward To Revisiting Us Before Long

"I thank you and the people of Prince Edward Island most sincerely for the welcome we have been given today," declared Her Royal Highness the Princess Elizabeth from the balcony of the Provincial Building yesterday.

Responding to a brief address from Premier Jones, Her Highness spoke directly to thousands who crowded the square and neighboring points of vantage in front of the century-old building, and had to pause frequently for the applause.

"I thank you," she continued, "for your generous gift to charity and for giving us the pleasure of being able to devote it to a cause of our own choosing. And this rare and beautiful fur has delighted me. Whenever I wear it, which will be often, I shall remember our visit here with happiness."

"Every Canadian who stands in this historic Confederation Chambers must feel, I know, great pride at all that has been accomplished since Canada took its first steps in nationhood, here, less than ninety years ago.

"My husband and I have seen during the last few weeks the progress that has been made in every field of Canadian endeavor, and share with you to the full a great sense of achievement at all that has been done.

"Your own Province, Mr. Premier, is indeed the Garden of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, well tended and productive. It has been a pleasure for us to meet your people, and we shall look forward to coming here again before too long a time has passed."

Premier's Address

In his welcoming address the Premier spoke as follows:

"May it please Your Royal Highness:

"The high honour falls to me of welcoming you and your royal consort, Prince Phillip, to Prince Edward Island, the smallest but by no means the least distinctive

Cheering Thousands Greet Prince & Princess Here

Yesterday was the day of days for Charlottetown and Prince Edward Island as the long-awaited visit of their Royal Highnesses, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip, became a heartwarming reality.

The eleven-hour visit to Canada's smallest Provincial Capital lived up to the most fervent expectations, and many unscheduled incidents occurred as charming interludes in the official programme.

It was a great day for the children. From all parts of the island they came, by bus, car and train. And not one of them went home disappointed at not being able to see and greet their own charming Princess and her gallant Prince.

Like a fairy tale come true, the Royal Couple was there before their eyes, almost within touching distance, smiling back and even waving in acknowledgment of their cheers and salutations. And the big shiny cars in the imposing motorcade didn't hurry any at all!

BIGGEST THRILL OF ALL

"Mummie, she looked at me!" The tiny voice was high-pitched with excitement, wonder and delight! Similar exclamations could be heard along the route of procession. "She saw me! She waved at me! Oh, look!"

After the great demonstrations at the Provincial Building and City Hall, where half the Province seemed to have congregated, the cheering and flag waving continued. Then on the way to Government House the motorcade drove along McGill Avenue past the Sanatorium. Waiting with their flags was a small group of youngsters who could not join the rest of the boys and girls. They were all victims of polo.

The Royal car slowed to a creep. Their Highnesses made doubly sure that every one of the little group got a special personal smile.

That was the grandest story about yesterday's Royal visit to Charlottetown, but other events deserve to be recorded too.

Guns And Fireworks In Final Salutation

With the guns of the 28th L.A. A. Regiment roaring a final salute from the Railway Wharf and the sky brightly illuminated with fireworks from Fort Edward, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh said good-bye to Prince Edward Island last night.

Their all-too-brief visit here ended, the Royal couple slowly walked down to the float where the Captain's barge waited to take them out to the big Canadian cruiser H.M.C.S. "Ontario" riding at anchor at the Three Tides. A few minutes earlier a pinnace from the "Ontario" had left the jetty with the personal possessions of the couple. The Captain's barge was followed a few minutes later by the Department of Public Works tug "Glenlivet". The tug carried several members of the Royal party and their luggage.

At the head of the pier the guns were in readiness with their gun crews and as the sleek, speedy boat left the rounds of the salute were fired in rapid succession. In charge of the guns were Sgt. St. Robert King and Sgt. R. M. MacKenzie. The officers were Lieut. Col. R. D. MacNeil, Major H. Kydd, Capt. M. E. Campbell and Lieut. Gordon Wellner.

The firework display was put on by the City firemen from Cannon Hill in Victoria Park and comprised multi-colored rockets, exploding rockets and brilliant ground flares. They were Charles Noel's parting good wishes in blazing colors across the sky.

At approximately 11:25 the "Ontario" slowly swung around and began to move out of the harbour to the accompaniment of the blaring of horns of hundreds of automobiles in the Park.

Final Results in British Election

LONDON, Nov. 9 —(AP)—The total vote in Britain's 1951 national election reached 28,608,238 final figures showed today.

This was slightly short of the February, 1950 total of 28,770,176. However there were contests last year in all 625 House of Commons districts. This time the Conservative party won four acclamations in districts of Northern Ireland, including figures for the delayed election yesterday in the Barnsley District. The Labor party received 13,949,105 votes, or 48.76 per cent of the total.

Final standings in the 625-seat House of Commons after yesterday's Labor victory in Barnsley are: Conservatives and allies (including the Speaker who does not ordinarily vote) 321; Labor 295; Liberal, 6; Irish Nationalist 2; Independent (Irish Labor), 1.

The Conservatives and their allies received 13,730,742 votes, or 48 per cent of the total.

The rest of the vote was divided among the Liberal party, 790,552 or 2.55 per cent; Communist, 21,640 or .07 of one per cent and others 177,329 or .62 per cent.

State Dinner Tendered To Royalty Last Evening

A really royal sendoff was given Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip last evening as they left the Charlottetown Hotel at the conclusion of the dinner given in their honour by the Government of this Province.

The impression they had created on the guests at the dinner when, as they entered the lobby from the elevator, after getting their wraps, the crowd of guests in evening dress broke into cheers.

This was picked up and increased into a huge wave of cheering and shouting by the hundreds of people who waited outside for their last glimpse of our Royal Visitors. After they entered their car, they were plainly visible because of the hidden lights in the car, and both the Princess and her husband waved and smiled steadily as they slowly drew away en route to the waterfront.

They had arrived at the Hotel shortly before eight o'clock and after leaving their wraps in their suite entered the lounge where approximately fifty couples were present.

Sydney Awaiting Royal Visitors

SYDNEY, N. S. Nov. 9 —(CP)— Sydney stood ready today for one of the proudest days in its long and colorful history with prospects that the Royal couple would arrive on the cruiser Ontario tomorrow in brilliant sunshine.

Scanning the long-range forecast the Sydney airport weather bureau came up with this optimistic prediction: "Sunny and clear with the expected high about 50."

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip will step ashore at exactly 10:30 a. m. from the cruiser which is conveying the royal visitors from Charlottetown.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 —(AP)— Striking longshoremen today agreed to end New York's 25-day wildcat walkout.

A rebel union faction yielded to a New York State fact-finding board in the early-morning hours, and promised to have the 30 miles of docks open later in the day.

Prince Admires Power And Commodiousness Of Abegweit

The world's largest ice-breaking car ferry, the M.V. "Abegweit" of the Canadian National Railways, yesterday morning transported the Royal Train across the strait of Northumberland. During the one hour run between Cape Tormentine and Borden, H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh made a complete inspection of the powerful and commodious car ferry.

His Royal Highness was introduced to the skipper of the "Abegweit," Captain J. R. B. Magrue, by W. R. Robinson, vice-president and general manager, Atlantic region, Canadian National Railways.

Prince Phillip first visited the engine room where Chief Engineer James Moore answered his questions. He then proceeded to the bridge, and later, went to the stern of the vessel to watch it back into the dock at Borden and see the unloading operation, which greatly impressed him.

Yesterday, for the first time during the entire Royal visit, the Royal train was powered by diesel locomotives, the run being from Borden to Charlottetown, three 600 h. p. diesel locomotives were used for the run.

To permit the crowds which had gathered at Borden, Emerald Junction and Hunter River, to get a better view of their Royal Highnesses and to give them an enthusiastic welcome, the Royal train passed by these stations at a very slow speed.

They Died For Freedom!

But have they died? They passed beyond our Ken
The Great Unknown holds all, within the veil;
They left for us a will—a testament,
And then for brighter shores unfurled their sail.

A testament—a will, so well defined:
"We fought that ye in FREEDOM still may live!"
Signed by each hero, sealed with drops of blood;
What greater thing than life hath man to give?

They have not died, their bodies in a grave
Is not the end, through every age to be
The soul lives on! Transition was the door
Through which they walked—into Eternity.

They live within that word, each one upheld,
For Freedom is the banner of the Free!
And in their passing hence—with hands unseen
They gladly held it out—to you and me.

They have not died—their mortal resting-place
Where'er it be—holds but an earthly frame:
They marched to meet their God—who called them home!
He knoweth every hero by his name.

Then He who wipes the tear from every eye,
Shall place the victor's crown upon each head;
Re-born each hero, passed from life to life—
To greater things above! There are no dead!

To those brave Knights of Navy—Army—Air,
We pledge to hold that sacred banner high,
Through storm and tempest, trusting in our God,
For they who fought—those heroes never die!

—John Robert Lamont Campbell
(John of "The Lilacs")

Royal Cape Featured In Official Magazine

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 —(Special)— A Prince Edward Island Royal sapphire fox cape presented to the Princess Elizabeth on the occasion of her visit to Charlottetown was the object of the cover photograph of "Foreign Trade", official organ of the Department of Trade and Commerce, published here today.

The Departmental magazine which gives details of Canada's export and import trade, is sent to every country with which Canada maintains trade relations, and many requests for additional copies have been received at Canadian embassies, legations and consulates.

Prince Edward Island members of the House of Commons and Senate are particularly pleased with this recognition of the Province in a weekly organ which has world-wide distribution. In the past they have felt that the Maritime Provinces have not had adequate recognition in the basic trade organ of Canada.

Acceptance of the gift by the Princess Elizabeth and that she will wear it on state occasions is particularly gratifying to all concerned with the fox fur industry in Canada.

Sidelights On Royal Tour

The Royal Train on its journey from Borden made no intermediate stops, but did slow down at Hunter River, where their Royal Highnesses appeared briefly on the platform at the rear of the train, to acknowledge the greetings of the large number of people of the area who had gathered at the station.

Many people at the eastern end of the city were the first citizens to see and be seen by the Princess as the Royal Train made its arrival. Gathered at the Kensington Road crossing to watch the passing of the train in the rather forlorn hope that they would see the Royal Couple so near to the station where they were to make their first appearance, the people glanced casually at a figure standing on the platform of the rear coach. Alone, and without coat or hat, it was really the Princess standing there, and with a small wave of the hand she acknowledged the cheers.

When the Royal Train arrived at 11:30, the Standard of the Princess was unfurled atop the C.N.R. station and the first round of the Royal Salute was fired. A laugh for the crowd was provided by a flock of pigeons, startled by the canonade, rising from the station buildings, and flying with all speed from the immediate vicinity.

Prince Phillip was the first to enter the plastic-topped car, and after making adjustments to the cushions and robes, for the comfort of the Princess, immediately opened the windows at the rear.

At C.N.R. Station

Diesel locomotives of the Island division of the C.N.R. pulled the Royal train into the station at Charlottetown a few minutes after the scheduled time and immediately the Royal yacht, H.M.C.S. Ontario, began firing a salute from the stream. This was echoed by the shore battery and reinforced by the cheers of hundreds of citizens crowding every available vantage point along the front and sides of the depot.

The Princess, followed by her husband, stepped off the train at 11:35 into a brisk autumn wind and bright sunshine. She was wearing a long mink coat and brown hat, the Duke being in his naval uniform. They were met by Hon. Robert H. Winters, Federal Minister of Resources and Development, and Mrs. Winters. Mr. Winters presented His Honour Lieutenant Governor Prowse and Mrs. Prowse, who in turn presented His Worship Mayor Stewart and Mrs. Stewart. Senator J. F. McIntyre, Dr. L. E. Prowse, secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, and Mr. J. A.
