52 Alternatives to TV
By Lynn Gordon

As you might expect, this product was aimed chiefly at children. It is a deck of cards, with each card bearing a colourful picture and a description of a possible activity. There certainly are a wide variety of ideas, from sock puppets to treasure hunts. Another plus is that each card also clearly indicates what materials will be needed for each activity. However, it should be noted that kids will need parental assistance for most of the projects. Other than this though, it is a good product, especially for a parent or babysitter who wants to help persuade preteens to get away from "the box."
