

ELLEN'S DIARY

Love, Not Hate, Basically Rules This Old World

Seedlings of annuals we set in the flower-border this morning. The sun was lifting them from the damp recent showers from blade and leaf, leaving our world about fresh and beautiful.

"The best time to set out seedlings," a gardener replied to our question the other day. "is I find, on an overcast and preferably showery day. No sun" he nodded "and a dampness in the soil."

All in all, happy this morning was, as invariably are those which bless a home, when each member of the family, can go smilingly and with high hopes to his chosen work.

James had about reached the end of his chores. He was bringing in a sod to interest a "passer" of piglets in a creep in a piggery. We saw him glance at the sky, looking there we suspected for a sign of that cloud which "no bigger than a man's hand" against the blue, could effect a change in the loveliness prevailing. Showers we had had. Not that more of them gently falling would not be welcome but not presently when there was a farmer's undertaking in view which required a choice day.

Mack and Alex had gone to school, the former with mind divided between the written page, and the doings left behind on the farm, the latter well pleased with circumstances which give him to a world of books. Peter played happily at the sandpile beneath the white birch. He accompanied the movements of his dump-truck with that sound of going, with which little ones nowadays, even those of an age to Cathy, Jamie's youngest, give expression to, when engaged in such play. Doing roadwork, he was at the moment absorbed in making and improving those arteries of travel that run on and about his "farm."

A robin in a nearby maple sang his full run of notes. And also close by and in a scene so interesting to watch. Mama Starling was seeking desperately to fulfill her fledgling's incessant demands for food. She carried up a dew-worm to the home in the garage-roof. Her arrival was hailed by excited chirps, and then a momentary silence which was broken in no time by calls of, "More - we want more!" And she returned to her quest on the lawn. Love's search, that was, a natural bond and duty between a mother and her babes. After all, the thought intruded, it was love and not hate, which basically ruled the world.

We set a last seedling in place, firmed it with damp earth. An excited bleating reached down from the paddock.

"They're rounding up those ewes" Peter said without looking up. "They're going to shear them" he added.

The shearing at Alderlea comes in the June time. The cropping is over. Winds have warmed by then, so that it becomes uncomfortable for the heavily clad sheep, but, as a rule, not too cool for the subsequent bareness.

"Yes, we made a start at this today," we overheard the younger farmer say to a visitor, as he folded and tied the last fleece of the days shearing tidily, when dusk was dimming the fields. "It's a nice few to do. I mean, it's a chore that will last awhile he smiled. But there was no last, none at all to this, one of June's choice days.

Until tomorrow - Diary - Good-night.....

Women

The Guardian, Charlottetown, Wed., June 16, 1965. 11

HAPPENINGS

Audrey Jenkins, Women's Editor, Phone 4-5506

Angus McKinnon of New Bedford, Mass. is a guest of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McKinnon, Alberton. He was accompanied here by his niece, Verna McKinnon, who had been a guest at his home for the past two months.

Christine MacDonald, RN, New York, arrived home last week to spend the summer with her sister, Anne MacDonald, RN and her brother, John K. Killmuir.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dewar, Rosenthorpe, have returned to their home after visiting in Halifax, guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Dewar and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nicholson, Commercial Cross have as guest Mrs. Lou Colby, Charlottetown, sister of Mr. Nicholson.

Frank O'Connor and two sons of Saint John, N.B. were weekend guests of Emmett O'Connor, Kildare.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lewis, Brooklyn, have taken up residence in the Senior Citizens' Home at Alberton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Edmunds and family, Charlottetown, visited with relatives and friends at Lower Montague last week.

Frank Campbell, Billerica, Mass. has been visiting friends and relatives at Whim Road and Commercial Cross.

LAC Allan Harvie, who is stationed at Seneferre, P.Q. is spending a leave with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barrett, Alberton.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour MacKinnon, have returned to their home in Toronto, after a vacation with Mr. MacKinnon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George MacKinnon, Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Munro and family, Montague, have taken up residence in their new home on Riverside Drive.

LAC Wayne McKinnon of St. Denis, Que. is spending a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McKinnon, Alberton.

Mrs. Margaret Good, Boston, Mass. has returned to her summer home at Lower Montague.

Sunbeams Garment Club Holds Achievement Day

A number of mothers and interested friends met recently with members of the Clyde River Sunbeams' 4-H Garment Club, at the home of Annie Boyle to observe the achievement day program. The attractive display of handcraft was judged by Teresa McLeod, supervisor of the Women's Institute Branch of the department of agriculture.

Club president, Sandra MacNeill welcomed the guests and presided at the interesting meeting.

Roll Call was responded to by members naming "Which article of the course I liked working at best." The secretary Ann MacPhail, also gave a concise report of the past year's work. She spoke of the judging, pointing out with articles from the various classes, what a judge looks for in finished handcraft. She complimented both pupils and leaders on the excellence of the display and wished them continued success in their efforts through the year ahead.

Interesting and well presented three minute talks on different topics were given by Sandra MacNeill, Ann MacPhail, Judith MacPhail, Doreen Beer and Colleen MacKinnon, a feature which had been judged at a previous meeting, the honors going to Ann MacPhail. The members of the various classes, then showed or modelled the items they had made, including tea-towels hemmed and blanket-stitched by the juniors, up to the formal gown of a senior, with the commentary by Mrs. George Dixon. Guests expressed their warm approval of the quantity and quality of the work done. Demonstrations of several stitches were given by the members, including those used in setting in a patch.

Club leader, Miss Boyle herself a former graduate of the Sunbeams, presented a fine report, thanking pupils for the course and the parents for their continued interest as well. Gifts on behalf of the Club were presented to Miss Boyle and her assistant Mrs. John Beer, by Doreen Beer and Colleen MacKinnon. Former leaders, Mrs. R. D. Matheson and Mrs. Warren MacKinnon spoke briefly, as did also the school teachers, Mrs. Charles Hyde and Mrs. David Morrison, in praise of the fine work accomplished by the Club and a social hour followed.

Miss McLeod presented awards to the following: juniors: Lynn MacPhail, Karen MacNeill, Lorna MacPhee, Cathy MacKinnon and Heather Gillis; 1st year: Colleen MacKinnon; 2nd year: Ann MacPhail, Doreen Beer, Judith MacPhail and Sandra MacNeill; intermediate: Susan Bridges; 7th year: Hilda Dixon.

GEORGETOWN

Maurice Englehart of Dalhousie, N.B., motored to the Island last week and was the weekend guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Batchelder.

Phyllis MacNeill recently had the misfortune of breaking her leg in several places.

Mrs. Aeneas MacDonald recently returned from a visit with relatives in New Glasgow, N.S. W.J. Fitzgerald and William J. Martell, who have been patients in the Charlottetown Hospital, returned to their homes in Georgetown last week.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aeneas MacDonald were: Mr. and Mrs. Cecil MacDonald and family of New Glasgow, N.S., and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Gill and family of Trenton, N.S.

Mr. and Mrs. John Donovan recently motored from Pictou, N.S. to Georgetown where they visited with Mr. Donovan's mother, Mrs. Maurice Donovan, and his sisters, Mrs. Helen MacKenzie and Mrs. J. Ruth Scott.

Officers Elected At Vernon River CWL Meeting

The president, Mrs. Phillip Ross, presided at the annual meeting of the Vernon River council of the CWL held recently in St. Ann's Chapel. The meeting opened with the league prayer led by Rev. Director, U. Gillis, and minutes of the previous annual meeting were read by the secretary.

Conveners of the various committees gave their reports and brought in the following slate of officers who were re-elected: president, Mrs. Phillip Ross; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Chester Walls; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Andrew Doyle; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Bernard MacPherson; secretary, Mrs. Janet Whalen; councilors, Mrs. Herman Gill, Mrs. Harold Dunphy, and Mrs. Agnes Curran. The new treasurer is Mrs. Marcellus MacDonald.

Father Gillis thanked the members for their splendid work accomplished during the year and urged the older members to continue this work and give their support in the coming year. The new executive recited the Act of Consecration to the Blessed Virgin and the meeting closed with prayer.

Nurses' Poor Food Habits Cause For Grave Concern

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Directors of many schools of nursing are concerned about the poor food habits of their students, the executive director of the Canadian Nurses Association said recently.

Dr. Helen K. Mussallem told the third annual nutrition conference which was sponsored at the University of Ottawa by the federal health department.

"I was really shocked, when I was a director of a school of nursing, when the head dietitian told me only 35 per cent of the students were going to breakfast. We found out later that only 25 per cent were eating breakfast."

"It seems that those who know the rules of how to live healthy lives do not follow them. Of course, it is possible that the rules are not correct."

MUST STRESS NUTRITION

Dr. Mussallem said future nutrition education for nurses should ensure that they would develop an appreciation of the relationship of good nutrition to health and the treatment of disease.

Nurses should also have an understanding of an individual's behaviour and its influence on his nutritional habits, and be able to apply the fundamentals of nutrition and therapeutic diets with concern for the individual's social, religious and economic background.

Delegates to the nutrition conference discussed various problems connected with the training of professional community nutrition teams.

Appointed to take charge of the reception for teachers and guests at the annual elementary school closing were Mrs. William Dewar, Mrs. Kenneth Clements and Mrs. George Nicholson. Plans were also finalized for members attendance at the annual District Convention to be held at Lower Montague on June 16th. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lyle Boehner and Mrs. Albert Frazer.

Custom Interiors
 Dress Goods
 ● newest shades
 ● finest quality
 166 Prince St. Ch'town

Couple United In Halifax Will Reside In Montreal

The marriage of Nancy Carroll Farnell to Eugene Vince McMooney, took place at St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church, Saturday morning, June 5, at 11:45 a.m. in Halifax, N.S.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilma Farnell, Fall River, N.S. and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Mooney, Iona, P.E.I.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Father MacPherson. L. H. Goodyear was the organist. The church was decorated with white and salmon pink chrysanthemums, and the guest pews were marked with baby mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of beau de faille made with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline and long sleeves buttoned at the wrist. The front of the dress was appliqued with tiny seed pearls and sequins, and the straight skirt fell into a full chapel train. Her tiered veil was held by a headpiece of seed pearls and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Patricia Chambers of Lexington Park, Maryland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Winnifred Farnell, sister of the bride, Mrs. Susan Piccione, Coventry, Rhode Island, and Eileen Allen.

The matron of honor wore a white linen A-line dress with an aqua lace jacket, aqua accessories, and white headpiece of net attached to a large tulle rose, centered with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies, with aqua carnations and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaids were attired in street length A-line gowns of aqua linen with matching lace over-jackets, featuring three-quarter length sleeves, scoop necklines, and a bow at the waist. Their headpieces were of aqua net corresponding to that of the matron of honor. Their accessories were white and they carried nosegays of white shasta daisies, aqua carnations and lily of the valley.

At the same meeting, Gail Leo Mooney, Iona, P.E.I., brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were Str-

Mary Haworth Wife Of Committed Mate Deplores Hospital Tactics

Dear Mary Haworth: Speaking from personal experience, with a mental patient in my own family, I must say that I agree wholeheartedly with you, and not with MC, "social work assistant," as she identifies herself, concerning sound approaches to suitable foster-home care.

I feel it is my duty to present my story, as a contribution to better understanding in a sensitive area.

Evidently, MC hasn't known the painful necessity of committing a relative. I have: I was told by doctors, hospital authorities and relatives on both sides of the family that I, and only I, was obliged to commit my husband, as his closest next-of-kin.

The psychiatric diagnosis was a hexe-paranoia schizophrone. I was advised "He can't go home overnight." After great stress, almost to the point of personal collapse, I completed the commitment, consoling myself he was "safe from harm" to himself or others. Gradually I rallied and became able to live with the tragedy.

I was visiting him regularly, finding him responsive, acting glad, to see me. Then one Sunday I arrived with the children (grown and married) who'd come a great distance for the occasion. I was told he couldn't see us ("didn't care to see any of us"), as he was going out for the day, leaving in 15 minutes, with another inmate and the latter's elderly mother, whom I'd never met.

My husband, 52, weighs 194 pounds; the other inmate, 26, weighs 240 pounds. How could the elderly woman be responsible for their safe conduct?

Later I heard from my husband's brother that my husband had promised the 26-year-old inmate a new car!—hence the sudden friendship. Many people, knowing my husband isn't poor, have shown interest in his welfare. No doubt the motives of some are good.

Against my wishes, he is being allowed out with people whom we don't know. And he has become very hostile in refusing to see any of his children; or indeed any of the family at all.

I feel the family should know at all times where the patient is, and should find him, in opportunity permits them to call during visitors' hours at the hospital.

How would MC like to retire at night, unable to sleep, wondering where her schizophrenic husband is, and whether he will escape custody and come to her door, with all his built-up hostilities?

This socializing with strangers is, I'm afraid, driving my husband into greater depression and hostility towards me, who had to commit him. Because of this, he says he never wants to see the children or me again, and will divorce me when he gets out.

Hence my appreciation of your perceptive views, which MC labels "ultra conservative".... R.P.

Dear R.P.: Scholarly Dr. Karl Stern, famed analyst - psychiatrist, trained in his native Germany and transplanted to Canada since the second world war, has authored a novel titled "Through Doors of Love" (Harcourt, Brace), which takes the reader into the world of the mentally ill, and enables him to imaginatively share group life from that vantage point.

It is the brilliant sensitivity of the author's insights and the deep sensibility of his awareness of emotional illness as a normal aspect of human potential, that mark Dr. Stern a specialist in the psychiatric field.

As a novelist, he uses no psychiatric - type jargon language whatsoever. His characters emerge in their own right, and it is through "experiencing" their lives from the inside, so to speak, that the reader begins to comprehend the nature of their

Gold Cords Presented To Guides

Last week at the Y centre, Summerside there occurred a unique occasion when four guides from the First and Fourth Summerside Companies received their gold cords from their captain, Mrs. Eric Jones. The gold cord is the highest award in guiding and one which entails a great deal of hard work and effort on the part of the girls.

Mary Hickey, Carol Mercer, Beverly Boates and Norma Ramsay were presented with their cords in the presence of the district commissioner, Mrs. Orville Phillips. The occasion was unique in the fact that it was the first time in P.E.I. that four girls from the same company have been presented with the cords at one time.

At the same meeting, Gail Newell was presented with her all round cord, the second highest award in guiding, and her little house emblem.

WI Celebrates 50th Anniversary

The Murray River Women's Institute celebrates its 50th anniversary with a special dinner meeting at the Kingsway Motel at Poole's Corner. There were 19 members present and the two Charter members of the Institute, Mrs. Lester Brehaut and Mrs. Austin Bell, White Sands.

The officers, charter members and life members were seated at the head table, which was centered with an anniversary cake and decorated in the blue and gold Institute colors by Mrs. Parker Hamilton, Mrs. Elvira Livingstone lit the candles and they were blown out by Mrs. E. A. MacDonald, who wished success for the Institute for the next 50 years. The two charter members cut the cake.

After the dinner a paper was read by Mrs. W. F. MacLeod on the work of the Institute over the past 50 years, and most important of all was the war work done by the members during the two world wars. Following this, life memberships were presented to Mrs. E. A. MacDonald and Mrs. W. F. MacLeod. The address to Mrs. MacDonald was given by Mrs. Peter MacLean and told of her great interest in Institute and church work but she was remembered best in her great profession of nursing. The presentation of a corsage and Life membership pin was made by Mrs. Oliver Giddings.

An address to Mrs. MacLeod was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Gallant and told of her great Institute work, her regular attendance and the offices she had held from the local meetings to the district convention. The presentation was made by Mrs. Fred White. Both members thanked the Institute for the pleasant surprise.

This Institute now has three life members, and has the honor of having the first member elected on P.E.I., Mrs. Lester Brehaut.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. Roland Graham. Other officers are vice president, Mrs. William Keenan, and secretary treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Gallant, all of Murray River.

PRE-TEEN CASUALS

By TRACY ADRIAN

YOUNGER daughters will love this short-sleeved and -short outfit that will be a sun-happy choice for leisurely summer days.

The tapered shorts are of cotton duck and have contrasting - colored lacing at the sides. They are topped by a sleeveless, tuck-in shirt made of cotton in a bold "figural print"

MARY HAWORTH

Wife Of Committed Mate Deplores Hospital Tactics

Dear Mary Haworth: Speaking from personal experience, with a mental patient in my own family, I must say that I agree wholeheartedly with you, and not with MC, "social work assistant," as she identifies herself, concerning sound approaches to suitable foster-home care.

I feel it is my duty to present my story, as a contribution to better understanding in a sensitive area.

Evidently, MC hasn't known the painful necessity of committing a relative. I have: I was told by doctors, hospital authorities and relatives on both sides of the family that I, and only I, was obliged to commit my husband, as his closest next-of-kin.

The psychiatric diagnosis was a hexe-paranoia schizophrone. I was advised "He can't go home overnight." After great stress, almost to the point of personal collapse, I completed the commitment, consoling myself he was "safe from harm" to himself or others. Gradually I rallied and became able to live with the tragedy.

I was visiting him regularly, finding him responsive, acting glad, to see me. Then one Sunday I arrived with the children (grown and married) who'd come a great distance for the occasion. I was told he couldn't see us ("didn't care to see any of us"), as he was going out for the day, leaving in 15 minutes, with another inmate and the latter's elderly mother, whom I'd never met.

My husband, 52, weighs 194 pounds; the other inmate, 26, weighs 240 pounds. How could the elderly woman be responsible for their safe conduct?

Later I heard from my husband's brother that my husband had promised the 26-year-old inmate a new car!—hence the sudden friendship. Many people, knowing my husband isn't poor, have shown interest in his welfare. No doubt the motives of some are good.

Against my wishes, he is being allowed out with people whom we don't know. And he has become very hostile in refusing to see any of his children; or indeed any of the family at all.

I feel the family should know at all times where the patient is, and should find him, in opportunity permits them to call during visitors' hours at the hospital.

How would MC like to retire at night, unable to sleep, wondering where her schizophrenic husband is, and whether he will escape custody and come to her door, with all his built-up hostilities?

This socializing with strangers is, I'm afraid, driving my husband into greater depression and hostility towards me, who had to commit him. Because of this, he says he never wants to see the children or me again, and will divorce me when he gets out.

Hence my appreciation of your perceptive views, which MC labels "ultra conservative".... R.P.

Dear R.P.: Scholarly Dr. Karl Stern, famed analyst - psychiatrist, trained in his native Germany and transplanted to Canada since the second world war, has authored a novel titled "Through Doors of Love" (Harcourt, Brace), which takes the reader into the world of the mentally ill, and enables him to imaginatively share group life from that vantage point.

It is the brilliant sensitivity of the author's insights and the deep sensibility of his awareness of emotional illness as a normal aspect of human potential, that mark Dr. Stern a specialist in the psychiatric field.

As a novelist, he uses no psychiatric - type jargon language whatsoever. His characters emerge in their own right, and it is through "experiencing" their lives from the inside, so to speak, that the reader begins to comprehend the nature of their

Bride-To-Be Honored At Shower

Friends and neighbors honored Norma Ramsay at the home of her parents at Kensington on Thursday evening with a miscellaneous shower on the occasion of her approaching marriage.

Colored streamers and rosettes and bouquets of tulips decorated the room. Mrs. Russell MacKay played the bridal music.

Marlene MacEwen attended the bride-to-be, who wore a yellow corsage, a gift of her neighbor, Mrs. James Saunders. Bringing in the parcels were Linda Montgomery and Elaine Ramsay, Donald and Kenneth Ramsay, and James Schurman and Valerie MacEwen. Heather Ramsay and Wenda Crozier cut the ribbons. Valerie Bowness and Diane Waite read the gift cards and the gifts were arranged by Shirley Mayne and Mrs. Gerald Mayne.

During the evening accordion music played by Walter Coates inspired some of the guests to try a bit of a waltz. Refreshments were served.

MARY HAWORTH

Wife Of Committed Mate Deplores Hospital Tactics

Dear Mary Haworth: Speaking from personal experience, with a mental patient in my own family, I must say that I agree wholeheartedly with you, and not with MC, "social work assistant," as she identifies herself, concerning sound approaches to suitable foster-home care.

I feel it is my duty to present my story, as a contribution to better understanding in a sensitive area.

Evidently, MC hasn't known the painful necessity of committing a relative. I have: I was told by doctors, hospital authorities and relatives on both sides of the family that I, and only I, was obliged to commit my husband, as his closest next-of-kin.

The psychiatric diagnosis was a hexe-paranoia schizophrone. I was advised "He can't go home overnight." After great stress, almost to the point of personal collapse, I completed the commitment, consoling myself he was "safe from harm" to himself or others. Gradually I rallied and became able to live with the tragedy.

I was visiting him regularly, finding him responsive, acting glad, to see me. Then one Sunday I arrived with the children (grown and married) who'd come a great distance for the occasion. I was told he couldn't see us ("didn't care to see any of us"), as he was going out for the day, leaving in 15 minutes, with another inmate and the latter's elderly mother, whom I'd never met.

My husband, 52, weighs 194 pounds; the other inmate, 26, weighs 240 pounds. How could the elderly woman be responsible for their safe conduct?

Later I heard from my husband's brother that my husband had promised the 26-year-old inmate a new car!—hence the sudden friendship. Many people, knowing my husband isn't poor, have shown interest in his welfare. No doubt the motives of some are good.

Against my wishes, he is being allowed out with people whom we don't know. And he has become very hostile in refusing to see any of his children; or indeed any of the family at all.

I feel the family should know at all times where the patient is, and should find him, in opportunity permits them to call during visitors' hours at the hospital.

How would MC like to retire at night, unable to sleep, wondering where her schizophrenic husband is, and whether he will escape custody and come to her door, with all his built-up hostilities?

This socializing with strangers is, I'm afraid, driving my husband into greater depression and hostility towards me, who had to commit him. Because of this, he says he never wants to see the children or me again, and will divorce me when he gets out.

Hence my appreciation of your perceptive views, which MC labels "ultra conservative".... R.P.

Dear R.P.: Scholarly Dr. Karl Stern, famed analyst - psychiatrist, trained in his native Germany and transplanted to Canada since the second world war, has authored a novel titled "Through Doors of Love" (Harcourt, Brace), which takes the reader into the world of the mentally ill, and enables him to imaginatively share group life from that vantage point.

It is the brilliant sensitivity of the author's insights and the deep sensibility of his awareness of emotional illness as a normal aspect of human potential, that mark Dr. Stern a specialist in the psychiatric field.

As a novelist, he uses no psychiatric - type jargon language whatsoever. His characters emerge in their own right, and it is through "experiencing" their lives from the inside, so to speak, that the reader begins to comprehend the nature of their

Institute Will Convene Supper

Mrs. J. C. MacLure, Montague, was hostess recently to 18 members of the Montague Women's Institute.

With Mrs. Roy Gillis presiding, executive and correspondence reports were heard from Mrs. Byron Stewart and Mrs. Lyle Boehner.

Committee reports included: Red Cross - Mrs. George Preece; visitation - Mrs. Albert Frazer and welfare - Mrs. Keir Clark.

Mrs. Keir Clark and Mrs. George Nicholson were delegated to attend the annual provincial convention. Mrs. Kenneth Clements and Mrs. Cecil Beck, representatives on the Strawberry Festival committee presented their report.

The Institute's taking charge of the lobster supper during festival week was discussed and final arrangements will be set at the July meeting. Mrs. Lester MacLeod, Mrs. Keir

YORK

B.A. Mallett, York, is a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest MacDonald, York, paid a short visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Craswell, Winsloe.

Mrs. Gordon Crockett, York, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Craswell, Winsloe recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dickson and family, Glen Valley, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Laken Lewis, York, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fielding, Charlottetown, were visitors to York recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vessey, York, attended the graduation of their daughter Beryl, Friday, May 21st at the Confederation Centre in Charlottetown. Beryl plans to attend Dalhousie University this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lewis, York, attended the graduation of their son William Lewis on Friday, May 12. He plans to attend Dalhousie University this fall.

Mrs. Harry Lewis, York, was in the city on Friday where she attended the graduation of her niece, Beryl Vessey.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lewis, York, attended the graduation at the Confederation Centre of their daughter Patricia who plans to take normal training P.W.C.

Mrs. Donald Crockett and infant son Gordon Kenneth returned to her home in York.

Mrs. Deron Roid and daughter Lois, and Mrs. Lloyd Tucker, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Murray, York.

Mrs. Audrey Whiteaway and daughter Cindy, Charlottetown, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Watts, York.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Watts and family, York, attended the lobster supper at United Church Summerside. They also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddison Watts.

Mrs. Fenton Courts, Bedford was a visitor to York on Wednesday afternoon.

EAST BALTIC

Mrs. Frank Grady, Souris, is a patient in Souris Hospital.

Joseph Stewart, a former resident of Kingsboro, and now of Boston, is a patient in hospital at Natick, Mass.

Mrs. Lowell Ching is confined to her home in Kingsboro by illness.

Charles Ching, Red Point, is a patient in Souris Hospital.

Among those taking the grade three exams at Souris Elementary School from Red Point and East Baltic districts were Donna Dixon, Bobby MacGregor, Doris Dixon, Dianne MacNeill, Paula MacPhee, Bonnie Lee Young and Marine Whalen.

Taking the exams from Kingsboro were Connie MacDonald, Kathy Robertson and Cynthia MacLean.

Almanac

On Red Carpet

SPECIAL PRICES

HAND-MOULDED SOLE SHOES

Latest styles priced for big savings. Walk in comfort—walk in style with these famous Red Carpet shoes, every pair expertly styled from soft leathers. Colors black, brown and green. Illusion and stacked heels. Not every size in each style.

Regular 16.95

10.97

Size Available

CHARLOTTETOWN STORE SIZES

Widths	5 1/2	6 1/4	7 1/4	8 1/4	9 1/4	10 1/4	11 1/4
AAAA		1	1	1	1	1	1
AAA		1	2	2	2	1	1
AA		2	4	5	4	3	1
R		1	3	5	7	6	4

SUMMERSIDE STORE SIZES

Widths	4 1/2	6 1/4	7 1/4	8 1/4	9 1/4	10 1/4	11
AAA		1	3	3	2	2	2
AA		2	4	5	5	4	2
R		2	4	6	7	6	4