LOVE'S BURIAL

Thus she to me, with a tear in her eye,
"Ah, love is dead, for I saw the boy die!"
To her I said, "So, if that be quite clear,
The best thing to do is to bury him, dear."
Then forth we went and sought out a place
Where violets grew in the zephyr's embrace.
A grave we dug with the pens we had used
In writing missives so dearly perused.
Then gentled him down in a neat coffin made
Of erosion notes that did never upraid.
But paused we then, ere the earth was returned,
And, weeping, fell o'er the passion inured.
I soothed her grief, for what else could I do?
And kissed her next till she foadled me too.
Our pain was wine to the boy seeming dead;
It gave him new strength, and he lifted his head.
Then rose we straight, and away did we hie;
We three together—for love cannot die.
—Joubert Jeans.

Exercise.

Next to bodily cleanliness exercise may, I think, be reckoned as the greatest aid to beauty. In fact, exercise is almost necessary to cleanliness, for it is a great incentive to perspiration, which is nature's way of throwing out the impurities of the body to the surface of the skin, which are then removed by the use of soap and water. Open air exercise should be taken every day, but according to strength. One should return home after walking or riding or cycling with a sense of being pleasantly fatigued, but without any feeling of exhaustion. Exercise should be taken regularly, and if possible dumbbells should be used night and morning. The cosset should not be worn while exercising with dumbbells. Skipping is an excellent exercise for the figure. It is one of which our grandmothers were fond, and I have known certain old ladies who preserved quite youthful figures by their habit of skipping. It is usual with children to throw the rope forward when skipping, but it is far better to throw it backward, for it expands the chest much better.—Home Notes.

Persia is the ideal place for a looking glass peddler to live and move and have his trade, for the Persians are as fond of the shiny reflectors as are savages of beads. Every year immense numbers of mirrors of all sorts and kinds are shipped into the country of the shah. Germany, France and Belgium furnish most of the supply. In addition to having a fondness for seeing themselves as looking glasses show them the Persians know no more pleasing parlor decorations than brilliant mirrors in gilt frames. Some of the Persian drawing rooms are so completely hemmed in by great pier glasses that visitors often become bewildered and try to walk through the glasses down the long aisle that seems to stretch in front. So bumped noses, knees and toes are not uncommon in that land of oriental splendor and mystery.

Settled It.
He (a sutor)—Grammarians have never been quite sure of the proper distinction between "I shall" and "I will," but to my mind there is no difficulty.
She—I don't quite know the distinction myself.
He (thinking he sees his opportunity)—Well, take the question, "Will you marry me?" Supposing I ask you, your reply would be not "I will," but—
She (emphatically)—I won't!—Judy.
