HOOP-LA LINE

John Cavanagh's Hoop-La line shows up beautifully in soft white, British Woollen tweed. The Royal Pastel mink trimmed Jacket, matched with a slim-skirted, bare-topped sheath dress, was a feature of John Cavanagh's new Autumn collection.

MARY HAWORTH

This Romance Will Not Last

Dear Mary Haworth: I am 25 and very much in love with Molly who is 45. We are both divorced and I have known her for two years. She has two grown sons, one my age who was a good friend of mine—that's how I got to know Molly.

She is such good company that many times when a group is going dancing, her son insists on taking her along. And she keeps everybody laughing all evening with her great sense of humor. She dances well too.

At first I considered her just a wonderful friend and we candidly showed great mutual liking. Then things changed. So gradually that I hardly knew how it happened, I realized a strong physical attraction to her. I repressed the thought, not wishing to lose her friendship; and told myself that I was crazy.

NOW MEET AGAIN

After several months I finally told her that I loved her and wanted to marry her, and was overjoyed when she confessed that she loved me too. Well, when we told her sons, they both blew up; and my family thought it ridiculous, too. In the face of all this opposition we agreed to quit, and not see each other any more. . . .

Lately we've been meeting again, but her sons don't know it. What can we do? Ignore their protests and marry anyway? Or abide by their opinions and go separate ways? I know we could be happy if people would accept our marriage with tolerance. On the other hand, we know that derisive remarks and a disapproving atmosphere aren't good for any marriage.

We don't want to feel ostracised by family and friends, as if we were a couple of silly fools. Thanks for any thoughts you may have in the matter.

R. S.

DEFECTIVE SORT

Dear R. S.: This striking infatuation between you and Molly is a defective sort of attraction. And the majority opinion of family and friends is probably right, that it can't be processed into happy marriage.

As for what you mean to each other, I think the major element that fostered fervid romance is the fact that you two were social misfits in the particular group that brought you together.

Molly is falling far behind her appropriate bracket in going dancing with her son and the latter's friends, and keeping them laughing all evening with her high key humor. Just as you, too, are somewhat out of step with normalcy, in being already married and divorced at age 25, and back with the free - wheeling younger crowd.

The past experience in common, of being divorced, was a sort of psychological link between you and Molly in that situation. It led to a sense of special intimacy, of sex attraction, since both of you were aware of being lonely and incomplete, in the midst of an adolescent social routine. This "outsider" feeling is part of the price of failure in marriage.

LED YOUTH ASTRAY?

"Also it's safe to say that Molly was weeks or months ahead of you, in entertaining a hidden hunger for sweetheart intimacy, despite the generation's difference in ages. And very likely her hopes and feelings in this respect were communicated to you on the unconscious level — probably by design and intent—"so gradually," as you say, "that you hardly know how it happened."

As a divorce man, you hardly qualify as an injured innocent in stalemate. But the fact that you proposed marriage, whereas Molly has permitted an interim affair, suggests that she probably hasn't really wanted more than this. She probably realized from the first that marriage simply wouldn't work—but she has contributed to the illusion of seriously considering it, in order to save face with you, I think.

As I see the picture, your involvement with Molly Stems from same roots as your divorce. You are confused self - indulgent character, taking paths of least resistance; and to get on the beam of worthwhile living, you need both psychiatric and religious guidance. M. H.

Kalinin-Quigley Wedding Solemnized In Hamilton

A wedding of much interest to relatives and friends on P.E.I. took place at 7.30 p.m. on August 16, 1957 at Hamilton, Ontario, when Charlotte Ann, youngest daughter of Mrs. Harry Quigley and the late Mr. Quigley of Mount Tryon, P.E.I. was united in marriage to Walery Kalinin of Hamilton. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. William Fedak.

The bride looked lovely in a street length dress of ice blue brocaded taffeta and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Cecile Julien, who wore a dress of blue grey and white accessories. Her corsage was carnations. The groom was ably supported by Mr. John Olszewski of Hamilton.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Saiken, friends of the bride and groom. The table was centered by a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was baked and decorated by the bride.

The happy couple will reside in Hamilton where both bride and groom are employed at the Mountain Sanatorium. The bride is on the nursing staff and the groom in the pharmacy.

A few days later a supper was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs Frank McQuaid, friends of the bride and groom, where they received many lovely and useful gifts.
