BIBLE SOCIETY ENDORSEMENT

As a frequent traveller in many countries I know from personal experience the difference the Bible has made in the position of women.
We women of Canada have a special reason for saying "thank you" for the gift of the Bible. No matter what language our grandparents spoke when they came to this country, they found here the Bible published in their own language. In ninety-nine times out of one hundred it was the British and Foreign Bible Society which had made this available. A common love for the Bible is one of the great bonds that unite Canadians from many diverse backgrounds. I would therefore commend to your careful reading this letter from Mildred Cable and ask each of you to respond as generously as you can.
KATE AITKEN.
August 28, 1952.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear sister Marian.
She had a nature you could not help loving And a heart that was purer than gold
And to those who knew her and loved her Her memory will never grow old.
Sadly missed by Sylvia and Morgan.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my dear sister Marian Flood who passed away January 15, 1951.
Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall You had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all.
Lovingly remembered by Mercedes and Harold.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our darling daughter Marian.
In our home she is fondly remembered Sweet memories cling to her name But those who loved her in life sincerely Still love her in death just the same.
Always remembered and sadly missed by Mother and Dad.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear sister Marian Flood who died two years ago today.
Always remembered by Joe and Brendan.

In memory of my loving sister Marian.
Fond are the memories that linger
Dear is the one that is gone In memory we hold you dear
Marian
As long as the years roll along.
Always remembered by Pat and Ronald.

THE CALL TO UNITY

What was the secret of General Eisenhower's success? Chester Wilmot, in his fascinating book "The Struggle for Europe" gives it in these words:

"From the outset he demanded 'immediate and continuous loyalty to the concept of unity,' and at the end of the campaign he could report to the combined chiefs of staff the acceptance throughout his command of his own cardinal principle that 'in such a venture the greatest patriot is the man who is most ready to meet his partner with consideration and respect and to reach an objective solution to every problem without concerning himself with matters that he conceives to be in national self-interest.' Because he remained true to his principle Eisenhower was to become the most successful commander of allied forces in the history of war." ("The Struggle for Europe," page 116).

From every point of view this is a statement of stupendous significance. It is an explanation of the secret of victory in a world war. It is also an interpretation of character—of the character of the man on whom today the interest of the nations of the world is focussed.
It is the greatest compliment that could be paid to a soldier. And we believe and pray that it is a prophecy.

Can we imagine what it means to mankind to have a man with this as the governing principle of his policy at the head of the mightiest nation in the world? That he will

There are three degrees of life—first, average life or what we call normal, after that the minus degree and the plus degree. I suppose most lives are average: they are born, grow up, go to school, select some calling, earn a living, attend church, pay their bills, put in their time more or less usefully — then pass away. This is the normal life. They are good members of society, make no great stir in the world, have at least their names and age upon a tombstone in some little cemetery. Thomas Gray knew that such people slept in the graveyard of Stoke Pogis, for he deals with them in his immortal elegy:

"Beneath those rugged elms that yew-trees shade Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

Then there are those who don't measure up to this standard. They exist, are always on the margin line, frequently in debt, irregular in their habits. They lounge about; life is a hit and miss business—more often than not the latter.
They become a problem for the normal class of citizen, and their support is a drain on the taxpayer. Is it not possible that our practise of dealing out so much help in what we call our "security programmes" may tend to produce a body of people who will not like work any too well? There is such a thing as training people not to be independent, and they will take that from the government; now which their fathers would not for a moment think of taking.
We have not outgrown the Bible idea that we should work to support ourselves, and make provision for the "rainy day" which is bound to come in some guise or other. Micawber's brood are not all dead yet.

But there is the third class which does a great deal to redeem humanity. They are in the "plus" class.
These are willing to do a little extra if called upon, for they have the idea of the "abundant life." They are usually people of good spirits, and it does you good to meet them. We are told that when Henry Drummond came into a room, it was as if the temperature changed, or gloom disappeared. It was equivalent to the lighting of another candle. Such folk are of value in the industrial life of the place where they live, and religion and morality have in them the incarnation of gifts and graces that enrich life.

Life may know addition as well as subtraction. Jesus, who taught what life was did not emphasize the negative but the positive aspects of it. The old moral law dealt in prohibitions, but Jesus came to give us life, and as He said to give it more "abundantly." It was to be a total thing. A man was to be useful in the world in the best sense, for there is such a sense, but he was to remember whence he came and the bourn to which he was travelling. The rich farmer knew how to grow grain, and how to fill his barns, but his life was all on the outside, and not much above that of the cattle which he drove to the field. "Eat, drink and be merry" was not life of the "plus" rank.

Baha'i Faith

Observing World
Religion Day

Focussing attention upon the basic oneness of religions, World Religion Day on Sunday, January 18, will be observed throughout Canada with public meetings sponsored by Baha'i Assemblies and groups in leading cities, as part of the Centenary year observance of the Baha'i Faith.

Baha'is are followers of Baha'u-llah, and they believe that this revered Prophet, who lived 100 years ago, brought divinely inspired teachings intended for this time. They claim that His explanation of the progressive nature of religion, and other principles constitute a pattern for the society of the future.

The Baha'i concept of religion is that successive manifestations of God, human beings with divine knowledge, have appeared from time to time in the world's history, and these have been the real Founders of civilization. Such manifestations or prophets, according to the book "Baha' World Faith" have been Moses, who established the great Mosaic tradition, Jesus, who founded the Christian dispensation, and Muhammad, the effect of whose teachings extended as far west as Spain and afterwards influenced the greater part of Europe.

These successive educators including Baha'u'llah, whom Baha'is claim to be the latest in the series, have laid the foundations of ethics, morality and world education, from which scientific cultural and material advancement has stemmed.
