British Politics.

ENGLISH, SCOTCH, IRISH AND EGYPTIAN
AFFAIRS DISCUSSED.

A recent London cable letter says: The winter campaign in England, Scotland and Ireland has commenced in earnest, and so far the Gladstonian Liberals and the Irish Nationalists have the field practically to themselves. The Leeds conference, composed of representatives of all the Liberal associations of England, has struck a note that will long reverberate throughout the entire country. Following the Scottish National Liberal Federation, it has decided afresh for two things: For home rule on Gladstone's lines, as the first article of the Liberal creed, and the leadership of Gladstone. There was not a quaver in the strong voice of allegiance to Gladstone and to Gladstone's policy, and, short of passing a formal resolution on the subject, nothing was left undone to make it. Liberal Unionists understand that they are outside, and are to be kept outside the Liberal party, unless they accept Gladstone's terms. This marks the end of all attempt to coddle back the Liberal Unionists to the party. They have deserted, and already it is unmistakably clear that the Leeds excommunication has had a most wholesome effect on the whole Liberal party. From being quiescent and rather dispirited it has become aggressive and confident. Its meetings are both becoming more numerous and more bold in the pronouncements that issue from them, and the most systematic arrangements are in progress for an educational campaign this winter on the home rule question, the like of which has never been before.

In Ireland, the National party is triumphant all along the line. The victory in Derry sent a cold shiver among the Orange party. The victory in Belfast has been even more disappointing to them, but more important than both these victories is the fact that the government has bowed its head to the league on the agrarian question, and has set itself, especially in Kerry, in carrying out in practice Parnell's rejected land bill. Without a shadow of legal authority, County Court Judge Curran, in granting ejectment decrees against defaulting tenants, in cutting down the rents by half, and piping off arrears and costs, and then Gen. Buller, equally without legal authority, when the decrees are presented to him for execution, refuses to carry them out unless he has satisfied himself beforehand that the tenants are able to pay. This is what the threat of 20 years' coercion has come to, and the result is that the evictions and crime have both decreased. The ultimate result, so far as the landlords are concerned, must be the ruin of landlordism and the establishment of an Irish parliament, of which the landlords are the only real foes in Ireland.

It remains to say a word about the conference of the Irish National Leaguers of Great Britain in Liverpool. It was the most successful assembly of the kind ever held, and doubtless that fact is due, in a large degree, to the now completed and confirmed conversion of the Liberal party to home rule. The truth is the whole Irish people in England, Scotland and Ireland have been put in great heart by the Leeds conference, and it is largely because of Gladstone and the Liberals standing firm to their policy that quiet now prevails in Ireland.

The Egyptian question is likely, in a few days, to assume a calmer phase. The cabinet has discussed a note from certain of the powers, making enquiries as to the British occupation and the results of the past two years' work under the London convention. It is not difficult to detect the origin of this movement. France, aided by Russia, thought the effect of a collective note would be greater than her individual action. Lord Dufferin has submitted to his colleagues an important despatch, which covers the whole present situation in Egypt, and answers the points of inquiry so as to disarm any form of interference such as might have arisen next spring under the London convention. After an interview between the Prime Minister and Lord Hartington, the cabinet have agreed to a declaration which adopts the promises of their predecessors with regard to the objects and duration of the occupation. On the line of these promises, they have taken firm ground in saying that, while no precise date can be named for withdrawal, there is no intention on the part of England to enter on any act of annexation of Egypt. This will satisfy most of the powers, though it may not please France, who has been egged on by Russia in order that the latter may not find England too close at hand when she proceeds beyond the Balkans. In connection with this, the Sultan's remark to Mr. Chamberlain, at Constantinople, that it would be his and England's duty to take care no other power stepped into the place of England when she withdrew from the Nile, is significant.

The exports from Spain during October increased $500,000, half of the increase being derived from wines exported to England since the new treaty went into effect.

The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk railway for the week ending October 30th were $394,474, an increase of $69,054 compared with the corresponding week last year.

A correspondent of an exchange asks: "Is it wrong to cheat a lawyer?" "First cheat the lawyer, and then we will answer the question," was the reply.

Cotton batting is impervious to all life germs, and if tightly drawn across a full jar of preserved fruit will prevent mould and fermentation.

To extinguish kerosene flames, if no cloth is at hand, throw flour on the flames. Flour rapidly absorbs the fluid and deadens the flame.

They are still boring for water for the pulp-mill at Chatham, N. B., having gone down over 300 feet without striking a supply.

Montague Cross Notes.

Mr. Owen Hughes opened a half-mile trotting park a few weeks ago, and races are the order of the day every now and then. Last Saturday evening Shanks mare and other mares and horses brought quite a crowd to the grounds. Abdallah, Messengers and Deans, tried their speed, Abdallah carrying off a prize. There is some good trotting stock in the locality.

Farmers are busy, some carrying away produce, and others stumping, ploughing and gathering in the root crop as occasion requires. Our farmers here are, for the most part, thrifty sons of toil and loyal supporters of home comfort and good government.

We had a political meeting, well attended, last evening, in the lower school house. Mr. John O'Connell occupied the chair. Mr. Martin, Government candidate, and Mr. Smith, Opposition, explained their views. Both gentlemen had a good hearing. Mr. Martin made the speech of the evening, forcible and eloquent, exposing unmercifully the Opposition policy or policies; for their name is "legion." The audience cheered him heartily. A small minority applauded Mr. Smith. Hon. Mr. Nicholson also addressed the meeting and was loudly applauded. It is quite evident the people here "have no use for the local House of Lords" ye! ye! the Legislative Council. This part of the District is almost solid for Martin.—Com.

My Favorite Receipt.

Some time ago the Royal Baking Powder Co., conceived the idea of collecting from its patrons, for redistribution among them, when printed in book form, their best and favorite methods for the preparation of articles of food of all descriptions. In response there were furnished a very large number of practical receipts, from which were selected the 3000 contained in the book entitled "My Favorite Receipt." The publication was intended originally for the contributors only, but the collection proved to be of such remarkable value that its publishers, believing its circulation would be productive of good in affording a larger knowledge as to the practical preparation of real home cookery in a way to make it most wholesome and appetizing, have issued an edition for general circulation, which is sold at a cost of production and postage. "My Favorite Receipt" contains formulas for the preparation of almost every known dish in every conceivable way. These have been classified into departments representing Soups and Broths, Fish and Shell Fish, Vegetables, Meats, Stews, Poultry and Game, Eggs, Salads, Desserts, Breads, Cakes, Condiments, Beverages, Ices, Vegetables, etc., to which a copious index is added. Every branch of the culinary art has received ample attention. The publication is one of unusual value, from the fact that the receipts are thoroughly tested formulas of genuine home cookery. In it each contributor vouches for the utility of her receipt not only, but attests that years of experience have proved it the best way of making the article named, and signs her name and address to it as an evidence of its genuineness and her faith in its superiority.

The practical character of the receipts will especially commend them to American housekeepers. While cookery of the very finest and richest, as well as that more plain and economical, is provided for, "My Favorite Receipt" is not, like many of the cook books of the day, a collection of impracticable, untried, or foreign formulas, following which frequently results in a failure and a waste of good materials. The contributions are from every part of the country and give the best experience of the best cooks for preparing the dishes peculiar to each locality.

"My Favorite Receipt," handsomely printed and bound, is sent by the Royal Baking Powder Co., New York, at the nominal price of 50 cents, to any address, express charges paid.
