OLD AGE OF INDIANS.

Defying All Rules of Health They Keep Well and Strong.

The Remarkable Longevity of the Indian Race Explained.—For Every Human Being They Have a Cure—They Know Where to Find the Food, Herbs, and Barks that will keep them in Good Health—The Secret Now Given to the World.

Why do the Indians live so long? There are many Kichapoo who have lived past the age of 100 years. This is not because they eat, sleep, travel, and work in a healthy manner, but because they have a secret knowledge of the medicinal properties of the plants and animals of their country.

For centuries these children of nature have studied their ways. For centuries they have known where to look in the forest and field for a certain cure for the ills which arise from the disordered nature of the body.

At the first signs of illness, they resort to their "Sagwa"—the most potent, remedial combination of roots and herbs known to the Indian or any other race. A combination so valuable that the learned Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale college commended it, and said it could offset the action of the learned Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale college commended it, and said it could offset the action of the learned Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale college commended it.

A MADRIGAL.

(Thomas Johnson Homer, in October Dunahoe's.)

Where'er I go, what'er I do, All steadfastly my heart's with you. Whether I roam o'er-vercauld blue, Or gleams the sun from cloudless blue, Sweep the wide reaches of the Past, Or search the misty Future through, I shall naught endear—Yes—first and last All steadfastly my heart's with you.

Then since 'tis anchored fast by thee, Ah! Why not leechly heart with me? I'll keep it from the crowd's rude gaze; And good deal service tenderly. I'll yield it thro' the golden haze Of time and thy futurity; My heart's been thine these many days, Ah! Why not leave thy heart with me?

Here thou the pledge of this plain song— Hearts intertwined, but deep and strong! Each pulsing with the other's life, Scarce hath no joy the whole year long! More keen than plunging into strife With all the world's annoyances; So truly be they man and wife— Hearts entwined, but deep and strong!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THAT EXPEDITION. SIR,—Your Wood Island correspondent has called attention to the Critic's progress through this district, and I may as well contribute my mite and note their advance here. Only two have put an appearance yet, and we are waiting for the supervisor and the engineer with the boots, and Smith with the ardent. We find here they have seriously departed from their tactics at the last election. Then it was officers here, promised—now it is roads. It is roads here, there and everywhere. If even a small boy affects to be laid, and suggests a new road, they get to be greatly interested, and earnestly protest it will be staked off very soon even going so far as to state that the Government surveyor is busy this week at Fort Augustus, or it would be done sooner. The consequence of this staking off of new roads is to make the district look very picturesque, but I am afraid the roads will never be laid, and some roads are already surveyed twice and not a road is opened yet. They promise the job of making the roads, too, and I so they almost decide the very elect, at least the more glibly are taken in.

At the last election it was not so. Then, as I said before, they promised the office. Mr. Ballerston's position as school visitor was promised by Mr. Forster and McDonald at least two others from Belfast as well, and they let the appointment at first go to King's College, for fear of being found out, and then were forced to make the third appointment against the law in view of Mr. McPhail's position in the asylum was promised to at least three different persons in Belfast, that to one at least from Murray Harbor. As for supervisors, it is stated on very good authority that the position held by one was promised to at least five, and I am happy to say that all this is at an end, and now a new order of things holds good—it is roads vs. offices. It is generally supposed the old cry is dead and the new one is in the last throes of dissolution, and before the election is over it is believed to be three dead, plucked up by the roots.

It is sickening to hear those Critic graduates dishing on Free Trade, and with a Province, and they get in again. Their leader has publicly said in his speech at the convention, "In local politics, the politician who promises to give the people anything more than good roads, harvest and bridge simply taking empty air—these words do not hesitate to try and deceive the unwary by empty promises about Free Trade, and how they will get on. As the time comes to the end of false and deceptive promises, they will on polling day reap the whirlwind of defeat. As they have not completed the canvass here, and I have yet something to say, interesting, if not startling to tell you, I may trouble you again. Yours truly, Eldon, Oct. 3, 1893. ELECTOR.

THE PREMIER'S PLATFORM. SIR,—I see by the Patriot that the Premier has summarized his declaration of future policy under two or three heads, or planks, as he calls them. Plank one is economy, and no doubt as he has nothing else to say, he directs public attention to the fact that in the account of his sale of debentures he has left at least the snug little sum of $796,000 unaccounted for, and no doubt he is pretending to be very interested in this Province again regain the helm of state, to issue another batch of debentures to pay his deficits for the three short years he was in power, which will amount to nothing short of $190,000. He evidently reserves to himself the right to issue as many debentures as his extravagance and road jobbery needs, without consulting the people, though he pretends to be the most scrupulous in doing so in regard to taxes. But I ask the reader to consider which is the most dangerous, and which ultimately leads to the most disastrous results to the welfare of this Province. Mr. Peters assuming to himself unlimited license in borrowing even on debentures at thirty years, or Mr. Peters pledging himself not to introduce an Assessment Act without consulting the electors of Fort Augustus—or if it appears by his speech that his promise does not refer to the whole Island, but Fort Augustus alone—or think I hear the intelligent yeomanry of this Province saying, to a man, "better far have Mr. Peters free to tax us than free to issue debentures, on which interest is to be paid by a generation yet unborn.

In plank No. 2, Mr. Peters thinks he can run the business of the country more economically than any one else. On what does he base his assumption? The total expenditure of the Davies government per year was $327,887; the average expenditure of the Sullivan government was per year $275,959, and the average expenditure of St. Peters, the great economist, for the two full years he was in power, 1891 and 1892, was $293,892. This is his economy expressed in figures, and set down in the public accounts of this Province, though they are unobtainable. In the face of this increased expenditure of his government, and in the face of the fact that he has been unable to conduct the business of the country for even one year (the first year or the second year, or the third year for that matter) without making a large deficit, he still has the boldness of talking, as he could yet do so in the future, that he will perform miracles? Can he pay an expenditure of $233,887 with a revenue of only $242,000? Why this attempt to delude the people? Has he not had three years to prove that he cannot conduct the business of the country without large deficits? He says he can economize, and his speech is laden of the direction his economy shall take—if we except a small increase of the fees in the REGISTRY OFFICE. There his plans of economy begin and end. He says the Province has claims against the Dominion Government which he will press, and as a result increase the revenue. Though he has held the reins of power for three years and has failed to make one move to collect our claims, yet when "brought to bay" at a general election he is reckless enough to make that claim his staff. His party ridiculed these claims, and ridiculed the Conservative party in presenting those claims, and yet Mr. Peters has to console himself with his narrow losses, on the eve of an election, and in the desperation of despair has to admit that he cannot run the business of this country without taxation, unless he gets relief from Ottawa.

Now, what is the conclusion of the whole matter? It is this: Mr. Peters, after a term of three years as leader, has had the country's vote, and he cannot run the business of this country without taxation or borrowing money. He has not the political honesty to say so. He has not the stamina to face the question of taxation, and thinks by throwing dust in the eyes of the electorate to steal a march, reassume the reins of government and borrow money and issue debentures, for doing which he assumes he does not require to consult the people. Will he succeed? The storm blowing over his head answers "never, while we are true to ourselves and the welfare of the people of this Province. Yours truly, Old Liberal.

Drop a postal card to Mr. George Rose, of Peterborough, and ask him what Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure did for him in relieving him of the intense pain caused by the passage of stone or calculus from the bladder. Hypodermic injections had to be resorted to in order to relieve the agonizing pains at times, but the use of Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure enabled the kidneys to wash out the sand and debris from the system, and neutralized the acid formations.

Mr. Lawrence VanKoughnet, who it is said is about to resign from the position of Deputy of the Department of Indian Affairs, has served nearly thirty-three years in the same department. He entered the Indian Office in the Government of the province of Canada in February, 1861, being then a young man. He is now in his fifty-eighth year, and is reported to be retiring on account of ill health.

One of the largest cheese deals ever made in Montreal has been closed by D. A. McPherson, local dealer, who sold 40,000 boxes of full make to the representative of an English house. The total value involved is $300,000. The cheese market is strong owing to great demand in Great Britain for Canadian cheese.

The Ladies Delighted. The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet efficient in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

All teas are divided into two colors—green and black. In the one country which produces green tea only, while China is the only land where both colors are prepared. India, Ceylon and Java send forth black tea alone, on principle—at least in India—of adulteration of green tea is too easy.

With Invalids. Yes! with invalids the appetite is capricious and needs coaxing, that is just the reason they improve so rapidly under So't's Emulsion, which is as palatable as cream.

MONTEAL, Ala., Oct. 2.—A southeast gale blew from the east, and the sea was high. The wind has been increasing in velocity ever since, until at 1 a. m. it is blowing at least 50 miles an hour. The wind has blown the water in from the gulf until on the river reached Royal street, four blocks from the river, at an elevation about fifteen feet from the mean river height. All the wharves and a great portion of the retail districts of the city are four feet under water. Thousands of dollars worth of goods are damaged. Several boats are wrecked. The southern part of the city is badly wrecked. Telegraph communication is almost entirely cut off. Many houses are roofed.

For sick headache, sour stomach, flatulence of food, dyspepsia or biliousness, take Harker's Liver Pills. They will cure you. Recommended by leading physicians as a most reliable medicine.

Beer & Goff have sought from Mr. Dillon the whole of the fine exhibit of Island factory cheese, which attracted so much attention at the late exhibition. They are now cutting their up and offering them for sale at their store, Oct. 2.
