High Flying Vitas Defeat Kensington

Playing their third straight game without a defeat, the up and coming Vitamannas defeated Kensington last evening 6-3 before a large holiday crowd to pull the latter team down into a tie with the Vitas for the cellar position one game behind second place.

Pony Daley pitched beautiful ball and was well supported in the clutches, Kensington used three hurlers but were unable to check the surging Vitas. Squeak Carver was the hero of the encounter pulling down a lovely running catch in the field and driving in the tying and winning runs with a double on the first ball pitched to him in the second inning with the sacks loaded.

The next game promises to be a thriller. Jack Schurman is scheduled to take the mound for the Pioneers against the Red Sox on Friday evening with the league leadership at stake.

Monetary Measure Passes Congress

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—The hard-fought bill containing President Roosevelt's power to devalue the United States dollar and operate the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund cleared its last congressional hurdle today when the senate approved it, 43 to 39, but a vehement dispute about its legality still raged.

Republicans insisted that since the president's power expired at midnight last Friday, no measure to "continue" them was held valid. They said the administration would have to start all over again with the committee hearings and debate.

Administration officials brushed aside the objections as unfounded, and the president was expected to sign the measure quickly, probably tomorrow.

past—namely, the various statements of the Hon. W. D. Herridge, he said, "I have listened to some and read others but thus far have ignored them as of little import—merely as a stain on the surface of our national discontent."

"I should have continued to ignore them but for his irresponsible statements against public men in general, to the effect (1) that we will never have a free parliament until we get rid of the two old parties; I merely say in reply that we have never had anything else but a free parliament since 1867.

(2) That both old parties have betrayed the people; and

(3) That neither of them have served Canada during the last 20 years because they have taken money from reaction. Those statements are made because of ignorance of malice or both."

"I state here tonight, after more than 20 years of intimate contact with parliamentary life, that 90 per cent or more of the members of the House of Commons of all parties are not only free but honest, serious and conscientious in performing their duties on behalf of their country. At least as good as any other group of citizens, having been chosen by thirty to forty thousand people to represent them."

"I regret this irresponsible tongue-wagging against men of public life by men like Herridge, who do not know whereof they speak. That type of loose criticism is undermining our whole democratic system."

"In Herridge's statement that the Liberal and Conservative Parties have betrayed Canada for 20 years by taking money from reaction, he is slandering his own brother in reaction. Hon. R. B. Bennett, and he is talking in falsehoods about me. I had many differences of opinion with Mr. Bennett but I do not believe he ever betrayed Canada."

"Please bear in mind that it was Mr. Bennett who not only made Herridge a privy councillor but who appointed him Canadian Minister to Washington, which post he occupied for four years and five months, during which time (according to the auditor general's reports) he drew down in pay and allowances more than $121,000."

Canadian Plays Were Inspiring For London Man

TORONTO, July 5.—(CP)—Canada's Little Theatre groups provided an inspiring and impressive experience for George Skellan when he toured the Dominion this year as adjudicator for the regional drama festivals. Skellan wrote his experiences in the London Daily Telegraph.

"To me as a lover of the theatre and especially to me as an actor, it is a most inspiring and impressive experience to meet this theatrical endeavor flourishing under difficult circumstances and to see packed houses where the outside temperature is well below zero and the roads are tracks of ice and snow," Skellan wrote.

"It was under such conditions that one group travelled by road from Sarnia to Hamilton, some 100 miles, in a very competent production of 'Lady Precious Stream' and left for home at one o'clock in the morning. In Regina the temperature was 43 below zero (degrees of frost). The hall holding 800 people was in a remote part of the city, and yet for three nights we had full houses and casts of 100 came in from a radius of 100 miles."

"Into the hard-hit Middle West no professional company can penetrate at present and the work of actors and actresses is guided by most remarkable results. A small group had been rehearsing Chekov's 'The Bear' for 12 months. The director had travelled 2,600 miles to rehearse. Their performance was exceptionally good, and a talk with them afterwards showed that they had analyzed their characters with the most searching care."

Real Amateur

"I had thought that the leading man, Robert Haskins, was an expert on account of the sureness of his technique. I discovered that he was a farmer of 35, that this was only the second part he had played, and that he had never seen a professional performance in his life."

R. Littlewood, who judged the finals, awarded him Lady Tweedmuir's prize for the best performance by a man, in the Festival of the Arts. The fun of acting that is operating here, and the urge to create an essential artistic companionship amid the absorbing loneliness of the prairies. This forces the creative faculties to function with untrained competence as a preservative of the finer human instincts.

The courage, patience and achievement of these people, under conditions not realizable here, cannot but command respect for them and cannot but emphasize how near we are to the theatre as a social service. I must testify to a deep satisfaction in having met them and joined with them in their pioneering following."

Inspection Laws Effective July 12

OTTAWA, July 5.—(CP)—After July 12 the export from Canada of a number of fruits and vegetables will not be permitted unless accompanied by evidence of inspection by an inspector of the fruits and vegetable division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, the department announced tonight.

Similar regulations apply against imports into Canada. Of the same group of fruits and vegetables. Such imports must meet Canadian import requirements and be certified by inspectors of the Government of the exporting country.

Churchill To Cabinet?

The Prime Minister declined to reply when Ernest Thurler, Labor, asked why he did not reinforce the cabinet in a warning to Germany. This referred to the increased demands that Winston Churchill be called into the Government, but it was said tonight this would be done only in case of a major crisis.

Mr. Chamberlain's recent statement concerning apparent military movements in Danzig were substantially repeated by the Foreign Undersecretary, Richard Butler, in reply to a Labor question, he said:

"Certain military preparations have been reported which would appear to constitute a breach of the article (No. 1) of the Danzig statute. The British Government are keeping in touch with the Polish and French Governments regarding all aspects of the Danzig situation."

Maniac Sought In Vancouver Blasts

(By The Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER, July 5.—Vancouver police today said they believed some "mentally deranged" person responsible for three blasts which have occurred in the city's east end district since Sunday night.

"I do not believe the blasts have been acts of wanton destruction," Police Chief W. W. Foster said. "I think it is more likely some mentally deranged person who likes to hear the bang."

The first two explosions occurred Sunday night. One blew out the walls of a small garage while the second damaged a sewer main and endangered a bridge over a railway cut.

The third blast occurred Monday night in a brass foundry but was not located until yesterday.

Youths Sentenced Anew To Reformatory

BARRIE, Ont., July 5.—(CP)—Stanley West, 18, Windsor Junction, N.S., and Clifford Davidson, 18, Brantford, Ont., today pleaded guilty to charges of escaping from the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, in an automobile and attempted theft of gasoline in Colingwood Township, Grey County.

The boys were arrested on June 29 by Provincial Constable J. A. Row after he fired four shots. They were sentenced to return to the reformatory for the rest of their term and an additional 12 months.

The automobile charge brought sentences of 12 months also and the attempted gasoline theft, three months. All new sentences will run concurrently.

Nazi Reaction To Roosevelt Comment

BERLIN, July 5.—(AP)—A semi-official commentary, addressed itself to the people of the United States, said tonight that "the intention of Roosevelt to America the neutral front does not lessen the danger of a world war but on the contrary increases it."

Deutsche Dienst, distributed by the official German news agency, gave this reaction to President Roosevelt's comment yesterday concerning the action of the United States House of Representatives in withdrawing a modified arms embargo into the American neutrality law.

PARIS EXCITED ABOUT MISSING LITTLE CANVAS

(By GLADYS M. ARNOLD Canadian Press Correspondent)

PARIS, July 5.—(CP)—Three cents worth of canvas and 10 cents worth of paint in a small wooden frame disappeared from the Louvre, Paris's world famous museum.

Consternation among the Louvre directors; rising crescendo of wrath among Parisians and a tempest of criticism for the government whose zeal for economy is said to have cut down the museum's guard drastically.

The theft of a picture in Paris causes more excitement than would the rifling of the Bank of France. Every newspaper carries two or three columns on the front page and the headlines crowd out most of the political news.

"The thing to be feared is that some amateur has stolen it," said the Louvre officials, "discovering which is impossible to do. It is to be saved himself. But if it is a picture connoisseur—we'll get it back."

It was Jean Antoine Watteau, 18th century artist, who put the paint on the 8 by 10 inch canvas, with the resulting exquisite little figure "L'Indifferent"—one of the chief prizes of the French National Gallery. Louvre officials say the commercial value of the picture is 10 million francs ($265,000).

"But that is not its real value—the picture is irreplaceable and consequently its value cannot be estimated," they said.

Recalls Others

"L'Indifferent" was hanging by a sister picture "La Finette" which was not touched. They were charming things of glowing color. The missing picture represents a young man occupied with a game called "Diabolo" which is played by catching a sort of bobbing ball on a string stretched between two light sticks. He wore a blue suit, rose stockings, and a rich rose satin coat thrown debonairly over one shoulder.

The picture was probably painted about 1711 or 1712.

The theft, audaciously committed on a Sunday afternoon while crowds of American and English tourists filled the Louvre, recalls the disappearance of Leonardo da Vinci's celebrated "Mona Lisa" (La Joconde) in Florence and returned to the Louvre by the Italian government. Officially stated by a worker for patriotic reasons. He was discovered when he tried to sell it.

The patriot declared that Napoleon had carried it off after his conquest of Italy, a story which was, however, quite untrue for da Vinci sold the picture himself to King Francis I of France at a fabulous price for that time.

A number of legends have grown up about La Joconde and every now and again the authenticity of the lady who smiles the enigmatic smile is challenged.

The legend is told that four thieves, of whom one was a first class convict, organized the theft. Six copies were supposed to have been painted and sold to American millionaires who each believed he had the original. But it is said, the copyist tricked his associates by painting a seventh, later found in the possession of Perugia in Florence and the real one was supposed to be in a private home in Algiers the story goes.

The experts at the Louvre scoff at the story, branding it as completely ridiculous. They are sure they have the real Joconde because the cracks in the picture now in their possession are exactly the same as those of the Mona Lisa which hung there before 1911. Besides, the X-ray ultra-violet rays reveal inconceivable that the pigments are those of another famous picture, St. Anne.

A little over five years ago, in 1933, for no apparent motive, a picture of the "Angelus" well known and loved in Canada and the United States where thousands of copies are to be found in the homes, was slashed six times with a razor blade. It has been so perfectly restored that no trace of the damage is visible. The slasher got seven years' imprisonment.

Debate Place Of Women Who Marry Aliens

(By Dilya Thomas, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, July 4.—British Home and Foreign Office officials are tearing their hair over the problem of Lady Elizabeth Page's nationality.

Daughter of the Marquis of Amherst, Lady Elizabeth, one of Queen Elizabeth's trainbearers at the Coronation in 1937 was recently married here to Raimund von Hofmannstahl, an Austrian subject.

Hofmannstahl has been a man without a country for a number of years. Under international law, a woman who marries a statesman subject is entitled to retain her British citizenship and passport. Under English law, if she marries an alien she loses her nationality, but she may be granted a British Foreign Office passport.

Experts on international law say Lady Elizabeth's case rests entirely with the British authorities. Hofmannstahl has applied for British citizenship. If this is granted both husband and wife will achieve British status and the problem will be solved.

Messrs. Col. Sandeman Allen, Conservative M. P. for Birkenhead West, proposes to call a House committee to consider the whole question of alien women who marry aliens and statesmen's persons. He has decided on this step in view of the growing urgency of the problem, arising partly from a vast increase in the influx of European refugees.

Ballio's Appointment

Oxford University has taken one more step in history making by appointing a woman as Home Bursar of Balliol. She is Miss A. Bradbury, who has for the past five years been bursar of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge. This is the first time a woman has held such an appointment at a men's college in the University.

Miss Bradbury succeeds Col. A. C. H. Duke who has been Home Bursar since 1920 and a Fellow since 1928 and will retire from office at the end of this term. Miss Bradbury will not be a Fellow of the College and will not take part in college affairs outside her immediate province.

Mr. Lindsay, Master of Balliol, asked why the college had taken such a revolutionary step said: "We thought it would be a good thing. The university has always supported the idea."

The office of Home Bursar is entirely distinct from that of Estates Bursar, which is concerned with the administration of the general finances, income and expenditures of the college. Miss Bradbury has charge of domestic affairs.
