LIGHT CHRISTMAS CAKE

A delicious cake - gala for Christmas, a handsome gift, but also a cake to serve any time of year. There is a nice amount of the batter part of the cake with generous fruits evenly distributed through it from top to bottom.

Yield - one 8-inch square cake, about 2 inches deep. 1 1/2 cups bleached or light-colored seedless raisins, washed and dried. 1 cup silvered or chopped mixed candied peels and citron. 1 cup drained red candied or maraschino cherries, quartered. 1 tablespoon cut-up candied or preserved ginger, if liked. 1/2 cup pecans, broken. 1/2 cup almonds, blanched and halved. 3 cups once-sifted pastry flour or 2 2/3 cups once-sifted hard-wheat flour. 1/4 teaspoon baking powder. 1 teaspoon salt. 2-3 cup butter. 1 1/4 cups fine granulated sugar. 3 eggs, unbeaten. Prepare the seedless raisins, peels, cherries, ginger (if used) pecans and almonds. Measure and sift together twice the flour, baking powder and salt; add the prepared fruits and nuts, a few at a time, mixing after each addition until fruits are separated and each piece is coated with flour mixture. Cream the butter until very soft; gradually blend in the granulated sugar, creaming well after each addition. Add the unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until egg is thoroughly incorporated. Add the flour-fruit mixture to the creamed mixture about a third at a time, combining lightly but completely after each addition. Turn batter into one deep 8-inch square cake pan (or the equivalent) which has been lined with three layers of cookery parchment or heavy paper - the top layer of paper should be greased with butter. Bake cake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, 2 1/4 to 2 3/4 hours. Let baked cakes stand in their pans on a cake cooler until cold. Store in a crock or covered tin or roasting pan.

Not So Wonderful

The telephone operator answered an agitated summons from a call box. "Oh, miss," came a tearful feminine voice, "can I have my nickel back? Albert wouldn't speak to me."

Modern Etiquette

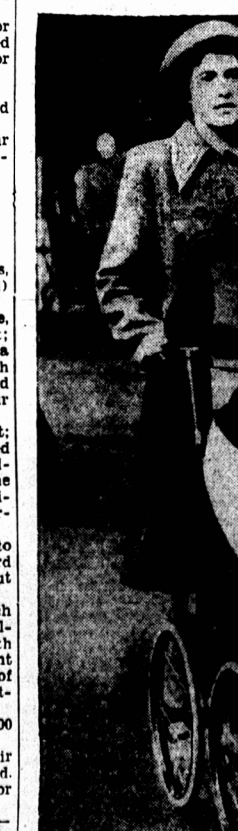

By Roberta Leo

Q. When a hostess wishes to give a cocktail party and has no maid, how should she proceed? A. She may ask one of her men guests to help her make the cocktails, or she may have all the necessary things on a tray or table, and have each guest mix his own. Q. Should an usher at a church wedding offer his arm to every woman he escorts down the aisle, whether he knows her or not? A. Yes, this is one of his duties. Q. When two men and two women are dining together in a restaurant, how should they be seated? A. The two women should always face each other.

Q. How can I clean mirrors more thoroughly? A. Rub thin, cold starch over the glass, or a thin paste of a powdered whitening and water. Allow to dry; then rub off gently with a soft cloth or tissue paper. Q. How can I prevent dampness and rust from attacking the wires of a piano? A. Track a small bag of unslacked lime inside the piano just under the cover. This absorbs all the moisture. Q. How can I impart an added flavor to my coffee? A. Try adding a few drops of vanilla to the coffee immediately before serving. Q. How can I store shoes and prevent the leather from stiffening? A. Brush the shoes very thoroughly, and rub Vaseline jelly well into the leather. Then stuff paper tightly into each shoe, wrap and put away. Q. How can I prolong the life of the cane seats of antique chairs? A. Apply a coat of white shellac to them.

ROYAL OUTING - Little Prince Charles, second in line to the British throne, is taken by his nurse on a morning outing in a London park on his second birthday. For his birthday celebration, the Prince enjoyed a small family party at the Clarence House, home of his parents, Prince Philip and Princess Elizabeth.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

Yes these are the things they will remember - these small ones of ours: "A birthday cake with silver candles on..." "the shadows in a forest cool and dim." These are the incidents which stand out in memory forever, like bright-glinting jewels in a band that in our younger days was neither altogether golden or silver, but made up of the two, strengthened by an alloy, that often was laughter or again in some childish disappointment or saddened tears. What funny, strange items are our precious stones of past years! We recall an unexpected gift of a ribbon, red and wide and of lattice, brought to her who was the eldest girl of the family on a June day when the clipping of wool had been taken to town. Tying bows of a like shade on granddaughter's braids, we see again its shimmering length and hear the words "Now don't let the like of this make you vain, Ellen - remember 'Handsome is as handsome does'!" "The words and the kindly thought return yet to mind though many seasons have come to us, and gone since then."

We look back too, to remember that an extremely busy farm-mother of eight managed to find time to mark a birthday in an especial way, setting it apart from Continued on page 9

The Stars Say -

For Tomorrow

THE auguries make for a most agreeable, happy and profitable day, with much stirring in a social, romantic and domestic environment. While the pursuit of pleasure, diversion or recreation may be the highlight, careful business or financial activities could prosper through the tactful and gracious approach to prospective benefactors. Seek favors wisely.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are in line for cooperation, support, preference, if they maintain an agreeable, gracious and intelligent approach to desired sources of assistance. Social, romantic, cultural, or material benefits are in store for those recognizing the value of fitness and the "velvet touch" rather than force. Glamour, charm, have worth as well as talent and ambition. Make the most of them.

A child born on this day is possessed of diversified talent, skill, qualities and personality for a successful, pleasant and charming pathway through life.

Day After Tomorrow

The astrological forecast is for a surprising turn of affairs, with a disruptive or devastating visitation, which may compel a revamping or possibly an about-face in the old order or routine. This could be incidental to a lowered vitality, illness or even a bereavement.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are urged to "look for the silver lining" when some untoward or unlooked-for visitation or sudden event upsets all plans and cherished objectives. While the ebriety of the adventure may be disheartening, and there may be attendant sorrows, regrets or disappointment, by no means is it a forlorn hope. There are tokens of favors, promotion, financial or social security. The debacle could be attributable to depression, lowered health of self or intimates. Be wise in averting this through surprise of curious adventure.

A child born on this day may have sudden reverses in life, but in the long run may surmount difficulties and find security.

Stirling - Cruikshank Wedding

Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, was the scene of a very pretty late fall wedding on Wednesday, November 22 at 10:30 a.m. when Marjorie Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Russell Cruikshank exchanged marriage vows with William James Stirling, only son of Mr. Peter K. Stirling and the late Mrs. Stirling of Hamilton, Ontario.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. H. E. D. Ashford, Miss E. Lillian MacKenzie, Mus. Bac. (McGill) played the wedding music.

The church was beautifully decorated with large baskets of white and yellow chrysanthemums and pink snapdragon with bankings of sanseveria and Boston ferns combined with canelabra holding lighted white tapers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Cruikshank, R.N., as maid of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Stirling, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid.

The groomsmen were Mr. Milton J. Barkhouse and the ushers were Lt. John M. Richard, R.C.N.(R), and Mr. H. Murray Browne, Charlottetown.

The bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and net fashioned with a finely molded bodice of lace over white satin, featuring a high round neckline, the full length tight lace sleeves with pleated net cuffs over the hands and the bouffant skirt of net with lace panels falling into a slight train.

Her finger-tip veil of French tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of white chrysanthemums and maiden-hair fern.

The maid of honor wore a Tailisman red satin gown fashioned with a fitted jacket, mandarin collar, buttoned to the waist over a strapless gown with a full gathered skirt. A small half hat held her shoulder length veil of the same shade in place. She carried a cascade bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations.

The bridesmaid wore a similar gown of cornflower blue satin and carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride's mother was gowned in a faille vineyard wine dress with pearl gery accessories and squirrel furs. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at The Charlottetown Hotel after which the bride and groom left by automobile for the Laurentians and Montreal, the bride wearing for travelling a green French wool dress with rust accessories and a grey muskrat coat. Her corsage was of Tailisman roses. Following their honeymoon the couple will take up residence in Toronto, Ontario.

Out of town guests included Mr. P. K. Stirling, father of the groom and Miss Elizabeth Stirling both of Hamilton, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. George Medforth of Amherst, N.S.

Prior to her marriage the bride was a laboratory technician at the Westminister Hospital, London, Ontario. The groom is a graduate in Engineering Physics of Queens University, Class '48.

Dress Snaps

If snaps are being removed from a dress that is to be discarded, snap them together on a piece of paper and place in the sewing cabinet. Both sections of the snap will be together and ready to use when needed.

Prince Charles Makes Feathered Friend

Little two-year-old Prince Charles, son of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, is seen admiring a snow-white pelican, which claimed his attention while enjoying his morning outing through St. James' park, in London, Eng. Could it be he is a wee bit jealous of the strutting bird feely trotting around his enclosure while the prince is limited to the narrow confines of his go-cart? We suspect Prince Charles will stage a revolt any day, now that he is all of two years old.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS-

On Being A Woman

Female's Job In Life Is More Complex Than Man's

A girl asks: "What do people mean when they speak of the business of being a woman?" Well, daughter, they are referring to the complicated job that is wished on all of us who are born of the female persuasion.

Being a woman isn't as simple a matter of nature as being a man is. A man is even as God made him, handsome or ugly, fat or thin, dumb or fascinating. We take him at his face value and let it go at that. But life isn't so easy as that for women. No woman can do with a meagre little handful of charms and virtues. She has to be able to shoot the whole works in order to get by.

Take the matter of looks, for instance. Provided a man is neat in appearance, intelligent and has good manners nobody cares a rap about whether he is as handsome as a cinema hero or ugly enough to stop the clock. Ninety per cent of the big men of today are fat and bald-headed, and would never get a prize in a beauty show. No employer considers whether or not a male applicant for a job has naturally wavy hair and melting blue eyes and peaches-and-cream complexion.

MUST BE ATTRACTIVE

But a woman is under the necessity of being beautiful though ugly. If she wasn't born pulchritudinous, it is part of her business to make herself so. That is why women spend their money in beauty shops instead of restaurants, why they starve themselves to attain stringbean Continued on page 9
