N.B. Plans For Zoo Ruled Not Cultural

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has decided, in effect, that a zoo isn't a cultural centre of lasting significance for marking Canada's centennial of Confederation in 1967.

But it has agreed that Saskatchewan can split a federal grant, originally intended for one major cultural centre in the provincial capital, between two cities, Regina and Saskatoon.

The problem arose some time ago when the federal government offered grants of up to $2,500,000 or 50 per cent of the cost of a major cultural centre in each of the 10 provincial capitals. The balance is to be put up by the provincial government or local authority.

This was in line with the $2,-800,000 contributed by Ottawa to the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre in Charlottetown, which the Queen will open officially in October to mark the 1864 meeting there of the Fathers of Confederation. A similar place Des Arts is planned for Quebec City.

The government, which is building a national centre for the performing arts in Ottawa, envisaged a string of first-class theatre - concert halls across Canada to give a boost to the performing arts.

COMPLICATIONS AROSE

The plan ran into complications, however. Fredericton already had a new theatre, a gift of the late Lord Beaverbrook. Edmonton had its grand jubilee auditorium built for a provincial celebration some years ago.

So the plan was modified to permit New Brunswick to use its grant for a provincial office building already under construction which would relieve part of the old legislature building to become a museum. A provincial archives building was planned for Edmonton.

Saskatchewan's former CCF government had an even more complicating idea. It proposed auditoriums for Regina, the provincial capital with a 1961 census population of 112,141, and Saskatoon, the commercial capital of the north-central part of the province which had a 1961 census of 95,526.

And for Moose Jaw, the third-ranking city in the province with a population of 33,206, the provincial government promised help for expanding the local zoo, an enterprising project and one of the few zoos in Western Canada.

Ottawa balked. A zoo was getting pretty far from the original idea of a string of cultural centres in which Canadian and foreign artists would perform the great dramatic and musical works of the old masters and the young moderns.

WROTE TO PREMIER

So the matter rested until Friday when State Secretary Lamontagne, the minister in charge of centennial planning and prime mover in the plan to boost Canada's cultural facilities, wrote to Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

"I hope," he said, "your government will find an alternative way of offering special assistance to Moose Jaw. . . .

"We are prepared to consider these plans (for Regina and Saskatoon) as a twin project for the purpose of the federal grant, provided of course that our maximum total contribution will not exceed $2,500,000."

Youth's Death Is Linked With Stolen Vehicle

SUDBURY, Ont (CP)—Provincial police here said the Saturday night death of a 16-year-old Sudbury youth at a nearby cottage area was the result of injuries suffered in a stolen car accident and was not due to a fall as they had first been told.

Leonard Seil died Saturday night near his parent's cottage at Nepewassi Lake, 10 miles south of here. A 15-year-old Sudbury boy who was with the Seil youth at the time, told police Seil had suffered the injuries when he fell while chasing a rabbit.

The companion has been charged with car theft.

Police began an investigation of the boy's death after an autopsy disclosed Seil had a head injury not in keeping with a fall.

Priest Urges Physical Education

QUEBEC (CP)—Terming this "the soft generation," a Montreal priest has recommended physical education at the primary school level as a means of developing civic spirit.

"How can you inculcate a spirit of citizenship, a sense of responsibility and initiative, and build cities with boys and girls who have no backbone?" asked Rev. Marcel de la Sablonnere, speaking at the annual congress of the Canadian Association of French - Language educationists.

The director of Montreal's Immaculate Conception Recreation Centre deplored the fact there are no physical education programs at the primary school level.

Schools had to start teaching pupils "how to live in society" at a younger age. Even present high school programs were not effective.

"Look at our teen-aged boys and girls," he said. "They are a soft idle generation. Sport doesn't interest them."

An "infinitesimal minority" practiced sport in Quebec. Less than a handful of swimmers might be found in a high school class of 40 pupils.

"Still fewer frequent the recreation centres more than once a week."

A taste for play, for team sports and for regular physical exercise had to be instilled at the primary level—"Then when they reach their teens, they will not be completely disinterested.

"They'll profit not only physically, but mentally and socially as well."

ELECT PRESIDENT

BEIRUT (Reuters)—The Lebanese chamber of deputies Tuesday elected 51-year-old Education Minister Charles Helou as the country's fourth president. He succeeds Fouad Chehab, former army commander-in-chief whose election in October, 1958 ended a six-month revolt against his predecessor Camille Chamoun. Chehab declined another term. Helou takes office in September.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

1. The only problem to solve is whether it is better to play for the spades to be divided 3-3 or whether it is better to rely on a heart finesse to obtain the ninth trick.

The chance of finding North with the king of hearts is 50 per cent. The chance of finding the spades divided 3-3 is 36 per cent. Hence the winning play in the long run is to rely on the heart finesse. After ducking the opening lead and winning the club continuation, the best thing to do is finesse the queen of hearts.

Of course, it is possible that in an actual hand the proper play might lose and the improper play win, but granting this, it is still best to rely on the percentage play.

2. The chances of making the contract with almost any line of play are very good, but the problem is to find the method of play that yields the maximum chance of making the hand.

Win the club and cash the A K of diamonds. If both opponents follow suit, your worries are over. Ruff a diamond, ruff a spade, and then ruff another diamond, by which time the last diamond in dummy is sure to be a trick. Your two remaining spades can then be discarded on the fifth diamond and a high heart.

If it turns out that the diamonds are divided 5-1, stop playing diamonds and try to establish an extra heart trick in dummy. This will succeed unless the adverse hearts are divided 5-1 or 6-0.

It is important to tackle diamonds before tackling hearts. If the diamonds prove to be adversely divided, you can still fall back on a favorable heart division. But if you tackled the hearts first and now discovered a 5-1 division, it would then do you no good to establish a diamond trick if that suit proved to be divided 4-2. There would be no entry left in dummy to cash the established diamond.
