AND BEAUTY

SELF DENIAL

The annual week of self-denial is one of the many original ideas which the Salvation Army has put into energetic and successful motion for the advancing of the cause of Christianity.

It is to the forces of the Salvation Army and to such of their sympathizers and supporters as may feel disposed to unite with them, a week of special devotion, prayer and spiritual development, and has to them a very similar significance as has Lent week to the Catholics and Episcopalian bodies.

All the forces unite in a supreme effort to raise, by means of voluntary acts of self-denial, money for the maintenance and extension of Salvation Army operations at home and also its vast missionary enterprises abroad.

The dates of the coming effort are from May 27th to June 2nd.

Donations will be thankfully received by commanding officers of the local corps, Eosign Graham and Capt. Martin.
