

Torn to Pieces by a Tiger.

FEARFUL DEATH OF A HUNTER IN THE WILDS OF CHINA.

A few days ago four of the villagers describing a tiger carrying away a goat from the neighboring field, followed in his pursuit with arms. The tiger took refuge in a cave at the foot of the mountain, and the villagers, thinking that there was no other means of egress but the one through which he had entered, covered it up with the brambles, thorns, and other wild herbage at hand. They then stationed one of their number on a rock overlooking the cave and returned to the village to procure additional assistance. In the meantime the brute found some other loophole of escape from his confinement, and, suddenly confronting the man on the rock, tore him to pieces, and was nearly devouring him when his companions appeared on the scene. At the fourteenth shot the ferocious monster was brought down, and the half devoured corpse of the ill-starred villager rescued from his claws. This district of Kang Bay is infested with tigers, and it affords a good field for the so-called hunters who wish for a better object for their skill than the innocent water ducks and birds of the like species.—Hong Kong Daily Press.

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indignation is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember: No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.
