IT'S A FACT.

"The Half Was Never Told."

ONE HALF WAS, BUT THE OTHER WASN'T. The half that was told was about the repairs you bring to the shop. The half that wasn't told is about the repairing of things you cannot bring. Use your common sense to your own advantage, and get all the happiness out of life you can. Don't every day go stumbling over a dozen jobs that need repairs, hunting for something that you think will baffle my ingenuity. Pause a moment and consider:—That shade roller doesn't run properly (never was put up right); there's a piece of moulding off the piano and a bit of veneer off the sideboard; there's a knob off that door, and the catch doesn't work right; the door bell needs adjusting, or, better still, replacing with an electric bell; there's a caster off the sofa; a leg loose on the dining table; the back comes off that chair every time you go to lift it; the lock on the cupboard door is out of order, and another in a similar condition on the bureau drawer, and a couple of pulls off it too. Yes, and seventeen other little things that bother you every day, many of them scarcely worth sending to a shop for repairs. Send me them you really cannot send. Get them fixed all the same. Send for WALTER to do them where they are. That's the half that wasn't told. It's the little things that cause the worry and unhappiness of life. Why be sad and sorrowful when a dollar spent in repairs will cure your cares and make you happy.

REMEMBER—It's not only the things that others cannot do I'm doing. If your repairs come in any regular line, I'm working in that line too; if they are not in any particular line, that's just my line—in fact, my specialty.

An Exodus From the States.

FARMERS WHO HAD LEFT CANADA RETURNING TO THEIR NATIVE LAND.
 (Montreal Star.)

Mr. A. W. Ross, M. P., of Winnipeg, has just completed a tour of the Northwestern States, arriving in Montreal last night. Interviewed by a Star reporter, at the Windsor, Mr. Ross said that just before he left Winnipeg, fifty families had arrived in that city, returning to Canada after some years of exile in Nebraska State. In Chicago and other American cities, Mr. Ross learned enough to satisfy himself beyond doubt that the beginning only has been seen of a tidal wave of emigration from the Western States to Manitoba and the Canadian Territories.

In 1886, Mr. Ross, on the floor of the House of Commons, predicted that in seven years the free fertile lands of the United States would be exhausted. To-day he claims that the prediction has practically come to pass. "Free farms for the million" could no longer be the proud boast of Uncle Sam. The background of unoccupied territory which was the basis of the boundless self-reliance of the Republic was gone forever. True large figures swell the books of the Land Department still; but these unclaimed thousands of acres were occupied by the Rocky Mountains or by barren deserts of alkali. But the fertile land not settled was promptly was "wrecked."

"Therefore," said Mr. Ross, "the Canadians lost by the exodus are turning their faces homeward again. They and thousands of others will cross over to our North-West. And to accelerate this movement, our Government should lose no time to advertise their free lands."

"The place to do it," he concluded, "is the Chicago Fair."

An Exciting Disaster.

MAD RUSH OF A RAILROAD TRAIN DOWN A STEEP MOUNTAIN GRADE IN MEXICO.

The particulars of one of the most remarkable and exciting railroad accidents that ever occurred in Mexico have reached Monterey, Mexico. The catastrophe occurred a few days ago on the Mexican National line. The grade of the National road from that city for a distance of 90 miles to Saltillo is very steep, and two engines are required to get ordinary freight trains over the Sierra Maderia mountains above Saltillo. On Sunday afternoon, as one of these double-headers was pulling a train load of corn up the almost perpendicular mountain side, twenty miles south of Saltillo, the coupling broke, releasing the caboose and six cars filled with 3,000 bushels of corn from the train. James Martin, the conductor, and Frank Harwood, the rear brakeman, were in the caboose. They rushed out and began setting brakes, but were powerless to stop the increasing momentum of the cars down the mountain. Within a distance of six miles the train was running at a speed of 90 miles an hour. The cars began jumping the track at Buena Vista, and Martin and Harwood went down, both meeting a horrible death. Before Saltillo was reached all of the cars, with the exception of the caboose and one other, had left the track. These two continued their wild flight, passing through the Saltillo yards at the rate of 120 miles an hour. The train dispatcher at Saltillo was terror stricken when he saw the cars pass, as he knew they were certain to crash into another double-header freight train that was pulling up the mountain twenty miles below Saltillo. There was no telegraph station within that twenty miles and no warning could be given the crew of the train below. He did the next best thing by having the wrecking car ordered out. The caboose and loaded car kept to the track. Frank Davis, the engineer of the up train, saw them coming down the mountain, but too late to save himself. His fireman and the crew of the second engine jumped and received but slight injuries. Davis was buried under a pile of corn and debris. Both engines were completely demolished.

This Lover "Clum" a Tree

IN ORDER THAT HE MIGHT HOLD CONVERSE WITH HIS SWEETHEART.

The Rev. Reeve Hobbie is the pastor of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church, at Newark, N. J. He has a very pretty daughter about 18 years of age, and the daughter is a very firm friend of Robert M. Toppin, the 19 year old son of the next door neighbor. In fact the two are lovers and the Rev. Mr. Hobbie has just learned of that fact. He looks with disfavor on young Toppin and told him so forbidding him to come to the house. A few nights ago the reverend gentleman left his house to attend a meeting at his church. He suddenly heard the rustling of the leaves of a tree which stands by the side of the house and looking up saw Toppin on one of the branches of the tree, and was talking to Miss Hobbie, who was seated at a window. The pastor called to his son for assistance, and after considerable pushing and pulling young Toppin was shaken from his perch and fell to the ground. A rough and tumble fight followed and hostilities did not cease until the young man was marched before a magistrate and compelled to sign a paper promising not to try to see the young woman again.

Miracles May Not Be Over.

AN EVANGELIST SHOWS STRANGE HEALING POWERS.

Rev. Peter Warnon is performing some wonderful cures at Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkesbarre, Pa. He claims to be a healing evangelist. At first people denounced him as a fraud, but now a number have come forward and testified that Warnon possesses "strange power." John B. Smith, an ex-member of the Legislature, says he was deaf for fourteen years. Warnon laid his hand on him and immediately his hearing was restored.

On Sunday night a half dozen policemen were required to keep the crowd back from the church where Warnon is healing. Only people who wanted relief from their disabilities were admitted. Many people arose in the congregation and testified that they had been cured. A paralyzed man at Mr. Warnon's command instantly raised his legs, placed each foot on a high table, ran and jumped, all of which he had not been able to do for ten years. Eight other persons, similarly crippled and nearly powerless, ran, leaped, etc., in the same way.

J. Cole who was very deaf, heard clearly. Charles Lanes who was totally deaf heard whispered words at eighteen feet distance. William W. Dwey's paralyzed child quickly raised her bent hand and fingers and raised her hitherto powerless arm straight above her head. The mother wept for joy. Mr. Good who walked with the aid of a cane, as he was crippled by rheumatism, at once flung away the cane, ran and leaped with agility. These are fair samples of the many marvels witnessed by the overcrowded audience.

Worst Yet to Come.

THE WASHINGTON VALLEYS VAST LAKES.

A Seattle, Wash., despatch of the 22nd says:—Reports of the storm throughout the state are still worse to-day, and the prospects are that rail communication will be abandoned for several days at least. A number of additional deaths are also reported as a result of the floods, while the loss of property in the shape of farm buildings carried away and wrecked will make a very formidable item.

The rivers to the southward of Snohomish are vast lakes. The Stuck valley, as far as the eye can see, is a seething lake on which logs, wrecked buildings, railroad ties, uprooted trees and other debris are jammed together, and it is feared that the new county bridge will be carried away.

In Okanogan county, near Eima, the Northern Pacific Railroad bridge on Gray's harbor branch is so weak that trains dare not cross until the high water recedes.

To add to the already bad condition of the roads there have been several wrecks. Along the railroads water covers the tracks in many places to the depth of 10 feet. Three or four steamers have been reported sunk in the Snohomish river, but no lives are reported to have been lost.

J. M. Meader's farm hands are reported to have been drowned last Saturday near Snohomish. Prof. Galliani, wife, son and niece and boatman, all adults, are believed to have been drowned, as their boat was found to-day on the island. They left Everett on Friday afternoon for Marysville, and have not been seen since.

Several additional small towns along the railway lines are under water. It is believed when telegraphic communication is resumed the reports will come in from the worst flooded localities of many lives having been lost and much stock killed.

Though no information has yet been received, the Skykomish valley will doubtless suffer the same as others, and the valleys of the mining districts will meet with similar disaster.

Reports from British Columbia are to the effect that the valleys in that country have also experienced disastrous floods.

There is no improvement in the situation in Puget Sound basin, and the steady downpour of rain early this morning encouraged the belief that the deluge will last for at least a day or more, and many fear the worst is to come.

There is still an almost complete break-down of railroad communication. The arrangement of railroads and farms thus far aggregate $300,000.

A despatch from Tacoma says: It is still raining hard, and railroad officials fear the worst of the washouts are yet to come. The barometer is low, indicating more rain.

The Northern Pacific has successfully finished a temporary bridge at Palmer, so that trains can run over it. The first train to go east for four days left Tacoma this (Monday) evening for St. Paul, and the overland passenger train has arrived from Ellensburg. This train brings mails and passengers of four overland trains that have been held at Ellensburg.
