FIGHTING THE BOERS

An Interesting Letter From Private John Proud.

Writing under date of July 7th, from Springs, South Africa, to a friend in Charlottetown, Mr. John Proud, who left here with the second contingent, says:

MY DEAR FRIEND,—I suppose you will never forgive me for not being true to my promise to write you, but I will try and make up for it now. As you have seen by the papers we arrived safe in Cap Town, where we had a pleasant stay, and where I met my old friend D. McKenzy, who gave the Island boys a good time and showed them the city. We were then ordered to join the regiment, which we did about May 5th, at Womburg. I found all the Island boys well (what were left) and full of fight. We were in time for the long march, and we had our first fight at Zand River, an account of which you have probably read in the papers. I was in the company which was in support of a big gun that we called the bone-shaker, and I enjoyed it, being an old artilleryman. It was grand to hear her roar when the 50-lb shell left her, at a range of about four miles. It was just daylight when the regiment left camp, we being the advance of the brigade. They did not stand our fire long; we put their two guns out of action in the fourth and fifth rounds, respectively, the field artillery playing on the enemy entrenched in the river bed. They only stood about four hours when they began to retreat, the infantry doing good work with the rifles. After about seven hours fighting they all retreated allowing us to cross the river where we camped for the night, having only marched three miles. We then started on a long march, getting into Kroonstadt without any fighting. There we had a much needed rest, having marched from Bloemfontein without any. Our camp was about three miles south of Kroonstadt. After two days rest we marched two miles north, where we camped for a day. We then marched off, making towards Lindley, but stopped about ten miles from it and made direct north for Heilbron, from there to the Vaal. We crossed the river about twenty miles west of where the railroad bridge is, and where Lord Roberts crossed. General French had crossed two days before with his Mounted Division, but the Canadians were the first infantry to cross. We had no fighting until we got to within eighteen miles of Johannesburg, where we met the enemy in a strong position at Dora Kop. At the end of four hours fighting we had taken their position. This was the hardest fight we had on the march. It was here that we suffered most for rations. The column marched faster than that of its convoy, and for three days we had nothing but half a pound of cornmeal per man, which we had to cook ourselves. After a few days rest we started for Pretoria, which place we reached on June 5th. The Boers made a stand for five hours; but the artillery fire was so effective they thought it best to leave rather than have the town blown to pieces, so the heavy siege train was not needed after all.

There was a march past in Pretoria on June 6th, Lord Roberts reviewing the troops. It was a grand sight. Our Brigade having done its share we were put on the line of communication. The R. C. K. was sent to the Springs, where we are now doing garrison work.

After all we came through, between hard marching and with short rations, the experience I have gained is invaluable to me. I have no fault to find because of the hardships we came through. The Springs is a nice place,—all coal mines; but there is none of them working, Kruger having closed them all when the war started.

There is a large fight going on fifteen miles from here. The British have about 2500 Boers surrounded, and it is only a question of time to get them.

I cannot tell you much more, as nearly every fellow has written home accounts of this campaign. I have had good health since I left home. All the Island boys that are here are well. We are all waiting anxiously for the day to come when we will be starting for home, and the sooner the better. There are all kinds of rumors about our going home, but I do not believe any of them.

THEY CAME TO KILL.

Fourteen Assassins Who Sought McKinley's Life.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—In addition to the news received from Washington, yesterday of the detention at the barge office in New York by secret service agents of Notable Maresca and Michil Weida, supposed anarchists, who arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, with the alleged object of the assassination of Pres. McKinley, the Evening World says:

Instead of two, a high government official informed the Evening World today that there are 14 anarchists under arrest at the detention prison of the bureau of immigration. They are all charged with being in a conspiracy to assassinate Pres. McKinley and have been taken singly and in pairs from incoming liners within the last ten days.

U. S. secret service agents learned that an "anarchist" circle in Naples had cast lots to determine who should be the assassin. Eleven Italians and three Austrians were selected. Closely followed, they sailed for different ports. Their object was to strike individual blows at the President at the same time. That would make success sure.

As far as the men arrived secret service agents, disguised as emigrants, went among them and they were arrested. Maresca and Weida, caught yesterday, were two of the 14.

The conspiracy was made on a night early in August. By working with the Italian police, the secret service agents got wind of a great meeting of the circle in Naples. The men selected for the work in this country were quickly notified what they were to do, separated, going singly or in pairs to different parts in Europe. Some went to France, others to Germany, while still others crossed the Channel to England. Step by step they were followed to the gang planks of steamers.

The fourteen are now detained by the emigration authorities, and are either at the barge office, at the battery, or the detention quarters at quarantine.

One report is to the effect that some are in Ludlow St. jail, having been taken there from Ellis island in order to thwart any attempt to rescue them by Paterson anarchists.

So far as known, according to the Evening World, the plan was for each man to proceed to Washington alone on a certain day. They were to surround the president, quietly waiting for an opportunity to strike. The blow was to be by a pistol and knife. One of the number, it was thought certain would be successful. The question of escape was not considered, the men being willing to sacrifice their lives.

Two men who did not meet their fellow anarchists were Maresca and Weida. Chief Wilkie of the secret service division of the treasury department had his agents at the pier when the steamer docked. The two men did not come in the steerage, as did the others. Maresca came as a steward in the steerage, and Weida as a coal passer. They could have landed without going through the formalities of the barge office.

When Maresca boarded the Kaiser Wilhelm II at Naples, Aug. 3, a secret service agent was close on his heels. Maresca professed to have no money when he boarded the steamer and made application to be taken as cook. Failing in that he asked for a stewardship. There was a vacancy in the steerage cabin and he secured that. It was not known that he had a companion. He and Weida did not go aboard together.

As far as is known no one saw Weida come aboard and he was not discovered until six hours after the vessel sailed. When found he was secreted as a stow-away. He was put to work in the hold with the coal passers and kept busy until the boat reached quarantine.

It is not known that either of the two men saw the other during the 11 days of the run.

Wednesday morning the steamer sighted the Sandy Hook light, came up to quarantine and was there boarded by secret service men who asked to see the steerage and cabin lists and the ships roster.

First officer Lenz took the detectives forward where they could see the crew. Purser Meyer remembered recording the name of Maresca at Naples, and Maresca was identified by Meyer when he was brought out for identification. Maresca professed to be unable to understand English. After looking Maresca over W. P. Hazen, in charge of the secret service bureau of this city, said: "I think that's the man." Maresca was sent below when the ship was docked. When the liner tied up at her pier Maresca was informed that he was under detention. He was asked where his baggage was, and replied in Italian, "Weida has it."

This was a new lead, and Hazen asked who Weida was, and then learned of the stowaway having shown himself after he was five hours at sea, and his assignment as a coal passer.

Weida was summoned from his work at the furnace and questioned. He professed not to understand English, but admitted that he had trunks on board. The baggage will be carefully searched to-day. So quietly were both men taken from the liner that none of the crew or passengers knew that an arrest had been made.

Chief Hazen admitted today that the two men were supposed to be anarchists, and confirmed the story of the plot hatched in Naples in August to kill President McKinley. Further than this Chief Hazen declined to talk on the ground that he was in communication with Chief Wilkie in Washington, who had asked that all news concerning the suspects come from Wilkie.

Chief Wilkie is quoted as saying "The two men are not arrested. They are simply detained at quarantine. They will be deported when the Kaiser Wilhelm goes back to Europe. It is true that this government was advised from Naples that Maresca had left Italy for the United States for the purpose of attacking the president. It was said that the man was a most undesired immigrant. I may have a more interesting story to tell later."

Donaldston Notes,

The few remaining Grius of this place are waiting with suspense for the election proclamation. The Conservative candidates will have a large gain here despite the combined efforts of the man with the satchel and the famous mud-making machine.

We are pleased to see our esteemed friend, Mr. P. Morris, home again from an extended visit with friends in Afton road.

Mr. Henry Court, our genial postmaster has returned home from an enjoyable visit with relatives in Charlottetown.

Mr. James P. Dougan, who is working on the new Murray Harbor railway, paid us a pleasant visit last week.

Mr. Joseph Court has finished painting our school house. The excellent finish goes far to show the interest he takes in the school.

The crops in the vicinity of Donaldston are looking excellent and promise to give an abundant yield. The potato bug is about conquered for this season without having done much damage owing chiefly to the good quality and low price of

THE PRETORIA PLOT.

Cordua's Counsel Admits Guilt and Asks Mercy.

PRETORIA, Aug. 19.—The case of the defence in the trial of Lieut. Cordua charged with being concerned in the plot to kidnap Lord Roberts, was concluded today. Cordua's counsel admitted that the accused was guilty of breaking his parole and of attempting to plan a conspiracy, but he asserted that the attempt was a failure. Counsel also maintained that Gano suggested the entire plot and egged on the prisoner. On these grounds he asked the court to find that the charges had not been proved and begged its mercy for his client. Gano, who is said to be of American birth, denied having suggested the plot. Counsel for the prosecution will sum up Aug. 20th.

Severe Hail Storm.

WINNIPEG, August 19.—One of the worst hailstorms ever experienced in Manitoba swept over Rosser municipality today. The storm was accompanied by blinding flashes of lightning and the wind blew a terrific gale, unroofing buildings, tearing up trees and destroying hundreds of acres of ripe wheat. The hail stones were as large as birds' eggs and all glass in the sides of buildings exposed to the storm were destroyed.
