

Personal—Gossip.

As an orator Lord Granville is urbane. An Englishman who advertised, "Want-ed, a boy," received one in a basket.

Cool headed English observers say that their country is about to enter upon a long era of great prosperity.

M. de Giers, the Russian Foreign Minister, has had an interview with King Humbert, and has requested an audience with the Pope.

Full Mall Gazette:—"When men are not driven to show themselves independent they are somewhat more likely to be moved by the general and growing sentiment of their party."

So little has been heard of Oscar Wilde of late that it seems like an echo down the corridors of time to hear quoted his remark on commemoration day at Oxford:—"So delightful, you know, to get back to the calm and repose of one's Alma Mater after one has been run after so in London by those horrid duchesses."

Lord Alvanley had been dining on one occasion with Mr. Greville, whose dining-room had been newly and splendidly decorated. The meal was, however, a very meagre and indifferent one.

English rule in Egypt promises to be followed by the abolition of the slave trade in the Sudan. This object will doubtless be accomplished by Lord Dufferin. The method proposed is to compel the Khedive to declare the traffic illegal, to treat slave hunting as a capital offence, and to bring pressure to bear at Constantinople against the Turks buying shipments from Egypt.

Between thirty and forty young ladies forming "The Toronto Elocution Society" met twice a week in the Canadian Institute of that city, to receive a couple of hours instruction in elocution.

The second column of the Times has contained many advertising curiosities, but probably never before the present week has there been announced even in that quarter anything stranger than the sale of "the original Lingam god from the Temple of Delhi."

MIDDLE aged men often lack vigor, this can be restored by that great brain and nerve food, known as Mack's Magnetic Medicine.
