CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

QUIZ
You are the dealer 'oth sides vulnerable, and have opened One Spade. Partner has responded Two Notrump. What do you now bid with each of the following four hands?

- 1. ♠AK864 ♥83 ♦AJ72 ♣Q5
- 2. ♠KQ852 ♥AK4 ♦QJ ♣AJ8
- 3. ♠AQ58 ♥J642 ♦AQ7 ♣AQ
- 4. ♠KJ653 ♥QJ ♣A98 ♣QJ5

1. Three diamonds. With practically all high card strength concentrated in two suits, and with two short suits, a warning should be issued that it might be better to play in a suit contract.

2. Although the hand is suitable for notrump play if partner insists on that contract, there is a distinct possibility that four spades might prove to be a better place to play the hand.

3. By bidding three diamonds, room is left for partner to bid three spades, in which case we will go on to four. The three diamond bid is preferable to the spade rebid because it gives responder important information.

4. Six notrump. This is simply a matter of point count. The two notrump response designates a hand with 13 to 15 high card points, balanced distribution, and strength in the three side suits.

Since our hand is well suited for notrump play, and the requisite 33 high card points are known to be present, the jump to six notrump is clearly indicated. The five-card spade suit is an extra value which should make matters easier.

3. Four notrump. This is merely an invitation for partner to continue on to a slam if his two notrump response had top values. It is simply a raise in notrump and has nothing to do with the four notrump convention which calls for ace, no suit having been agreed upon.

Since responder may have 13, 14, or 15 points for his two notrump bid, we are not in position to know whether there is a combined holding of 33 points. Partner is free to pass or go on, depending on how good his two notrump bid was.

4. Three notrump. The question is whether it is best to bid three spades to identify the five-card major, or to undertake the game in notrump. There is a decided difference between this hand and the first one discussed. There, a considerable danger existed that one of the short suits might be only singly stopped and a corresponding risk of defeat existed.

In this hand, all suits are almost surely doubly stopped, and the play for nine tricks should therefore be easier than the play for ten. Suit play is generally preferred when a side has eight cards in a major unless all suits are known to be well protected.

Share Burden With Allies

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Wednesday Britain will share with her allies the burden of defence in Europe, but also must maintain balanced forces for other areas.

In a speech on British defence policy at a state dinner, Macmillan also made these points:

1. The "cornerstone" of British defence policy in Europe, the Middle East and Southeast Asia is to stand "shoulder to shoulder" with the United States.

2. Britain relies on Anglo-American strategic nuclear strength as a deterrent to war.

3. Britain is ready to work for a reduction of East-West tension but defence must remain "the supreme duty."

4. A major task of Commonwealth countries allied militarily with the West must be to prevent uncommitted nations from going over to the Communist camp.

Macmillan said the "concept of interdependence" in Europe will save Britain from overtaxing her resources but outside Europe she must be balanced militarily.

NEW "POLICE ACTION?"
"We cannot wholly exclude," he said, "the possibility that our forces may become engaged in operations—either police operations such as Kenya or a limited war such as Korea—in which for a time at any rate we might be engaged alone."

Macmillan said while Britain is ready to take any possible step to reduce tension and find agreement with the Communist powers, "we must not deceive ourselves—we must not lower our guard."

Speaking of the Commonwealth,

Macmillan said most of its members have pledged themselves to resist the threat of international communism, if necessary by force.

But he pointed out that some Commonwealth members remained outside the defensive alliances because they believe such pacts, even for defensive purposes, increase the risk of war. Both India and Ceylon have refused to join.

"We may not agree with that view," Macmillan said, "but we can and must respect it."

Salvation Army Officer Is Dead

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Major Harry Everitt, retired Salvation Army officer with a lifetime of service on two continents, died of a heart attack Tuesday.

Major Everitt, who joined the army when he was 14 in England, retired from service in 1949 after serving at Toronto, Barrie, London, Smiths Falls, Hespeler and Simcoe in Ontario, Sydney, N.S., and Truro, N.S.

Promoted captain in 1922 at Barrie and major in 1935 at Truro, he had been active in prison work at Burwash prison farm near Sudbury and Guelph reformatory before retiring in 1949.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
