

Buyer meets seller with Guardian Want Ads. Dial 8506 ask for classified ad taker, for quick results.

The Guardian

"Covers Prince Edward Island Like The Dew"

Clear, becoming cloudy this evening; little change in temperature. Low-high at Charlottetown 45 and 67.

GOVERNOR'S MANSION GUARDED

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—Arkansas National Guardsmen stand guard in front of Gov. Orval Faubus' mansion this afternoon. A State Policeman said that the troops were summoned as a "precautionary measure" against other guardsmen surrounding Central High School to prevent integration.

AP Wirephoto

16 Flu Cases Left At Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—The Italian liner Vulcania sailed for New York Tuesday after 16 of 416 passengers landed here were taken to an immigration hospital suffering from Asian influenza.

Dr. Charles Sullivan, chief port medical officer, said about 50 other Asian flu cases remained aboard the liner. They were among 900 New York-bound passengers.

Ship physician Dr. C. T. Donati said the flu cases, diagnosed aboard the liner before she docked, are "very mild."

He treated them with antibiotic drugs. Dr. Donati described the victims as "mildly feverish, coughing and with minor muscular pains."

St. Laurent's Resignation Will Not Change PC Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—The sudden departure of former prime minister St. Laurent to quit office has not changed Progressive Conservative strategy, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

The conservative chief, talking to reporters after the first caucus of his party's parliamentarians since the June 19 election win, said Mr. St. Laurent's dramatic leaving won't influence the time of the next election.

"There being no plans as far as an election is concerned, there can be no change," he said. Mr. Diefenbaker refused to be drawn further into any election discussion, though it is reported here he is considering one for about May of next year.

The 75-year-old Mr. St. Laurent announced without advance warning Friday evening that he is laying down the Liberal leadership he has held since August of 1948. He was prime minister from late 1948 until this year.

While Mr. Diefenbaker claimed up on any election pronouncements, he indicated there might be a new minister soon for citizenship and immigration, a portfolio now held on an acting basis by Justice Minister Davie Fulton.

Asked by reporters about the prospect of a new minister, he noted that he had said some time ago that he did not then contemplate an early change in Mr. Fulton's job.

"I wouldn't be surprised if there wasn't soon a change in what was then expressed," he said. The prime minister, who with his cabinet spent the last 1 1/2 days listening to views of some of their 112 Commons supporters at this initial meeting, said afterwards that "the main subjects of legislation were reviewed, or at least as many as time permitted."

But he declined to be specific. "I think I can just say that the legislative program for the parliamentary session now is formulated," he said. What about the appointment of a delegation to the next session of the United Nations General Assembly starting next week at New York?

That was a good question, but the prime minister observed. But there was no announcement. How about published reports that the defence production department might be folded up shortly?

Mr. Diefenbaker's reply was "wait and see."

Others mentioned as possible Senate appointees since the Progressive Conservatives were elected to power June 10 are two Montreal lawyers: Pierre Seguin, party organizer for Montreal district and a defeated candidate for the Commons, and Gustave Monette.

They would help fill the five Quebec vacancies in the Senate, the largest number of any province. Present Senate standing: Liberal 78; Progressive Conservative 5; Independent 2; Independent-Liberal 1; vacant 16; total 102.

There are three vacancies in Ontario, two in New Brunswick and one each in all other provinces except British Columbia which has its full complement of six. Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Winnipeg press conference last week that he would name Senators before the start of the fall parliamentary session Oct. 14. He said at the time no decision had been reached on a choice of Speakers for the Senate and Commons. However, one would be French-speaking.

A TRADITION It has been parliamentary tradition to alternate French and English-speaking Speakers at each new Parliament. The last Commons Speaker was French-speaking Senator William Robert

Ark. Governor Summoned To Court On Racial Issue

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Armed national guardsmen pulled back from the gates of the governor's mansion Tuesday long enough for Governor Orval Faubus to be summoned to court 10 days from now to answer charges he is obstructing racial integration.

The governor, appearing solemn, walked down the steps of the mansion to take the court order from a grey-haired R. Beal Kidd, a United States marshal. The court petition and order were the first concrete acts by federal authorities seeking to break the battle of wills in the Arkansas governor's challenge of federal powers.

Federal district Judge Ronald N. Davies issued the order on petition of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell. At the government acted, segregationist crowds, some singing Dixie, rallied around two Little Rock area high schools. An effigy of a Negro was hung at one, and at the other the crowd raced for a Negro reporter, whom the national guard escorted to safety.

Six Negroes sought to enter 1,500-student North Little Rock high Monday and were turned back by a crowd of students and adults. That school is under no specific orders to integrate. No national guardsmen were stationed at North Little Rock. But scores of city police, county deputy sheriffs and state troopers appeared Tuesday, blocked off the street to traffic and stood guard.

Witnesses at North Little Rock High said teen-agers appeared with knives strapped to their ankles. They said the youths boasted "there will be some killing" if the niggers come back today. Earlier, the governor told an interviewer, "I would be willing to meet with anyone" to seek a solution. This answered a question as to whether he would be willing to meet with President Eisenhower to seek an end to the stalemate.

Also named in Davies' order were Maj.-Gen. Sherman T. Clinch, adjutant-general of the Arkansas national guard, and Lt. Col. Marion E. Johnson, commander of a guard unit at Little Rock Central high school. At Faubus' direction the guard has barred Negroes from enrolling in the school. No temporary restraining order was issued, or asked, an unusual procedure in such cases. This was interpreted by court aides as meaning the governor can keep the guard at Central High School for 10 more days without federal interference.

If Davies issues an injunction and Faubus ignores it, Davies could cite him for contempt of court. The effigy was hung near stairs at the high school in neighboring North Little Rock. It bore a sign reading, "to hell with integration."

The Negro reporter whose presence stirred a crowd appeared at Little Rock's Central High School. He was Moses Newsom, Memphis, Tenn., here on assignment from the Afro-American newspaper of Baltimore. Guardsmen escorted Newsom out of the area. BARRED BY GUARD

Nine Negro students tried to enter 2,000-student Little Rock Central high last Wednesday and were barred by the national guard.

Girl In Tears At Church When Police Arrive

GRANTON, Ont. (CP)—Eighteen-year-old Shirley Gross, left in tears at the church Saturday when the man she was about to marry went off in a taxi, said Tuesday.

"I don't want to see him again—ever. I can't forgive him. I'm humiliated." The groom, McKenzie Reimel of London, 15 miles south of here, said "it was all a mistake" when a policeman arrived at Wesley United Church before the ceremony to question him about a report that he was already married.

But Constable William Bale said that although Reimel denied the report he was unable to produce a marriage licence for his wedding to Miss Gross. FATHERS DISGRUNTLED

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Gross, were disgruntled. The mother said: "He told us he was divorced. We acted in good faith." The father said: "He'd better not come around here again."

Meantime, at London 26-year-old Reimel, was arrested Tuesday on charges of false pretences. A wedding ring and a wedding cake, with cheques police say were written on non-existent bank accounts. Reimel, who still insists that he and Shirley will be married later, "probably some time this week," will remain in custody until his appearance today.

Rolland Michener, re-elected MP for Toronto St. Paul's and former Ontario provincial secretary, has been prominently mentioned as probable government nominee for the Commons Speakership. His selection would make it a virtual certainty, backed by tradition, that the Speaker in the upper house would be French-speaking. Mr. Dorion, independent member of the Commons for the Quebec constituency of Charlevoix-Saguenay from 1942 to 1949, was a defeated Progressive Conservative candidate in the 1953 election. Informants said there is also a possibility that Senator Arthur Marcotte, 84, veteran Saskatchewan representative, may be given the distinction of presiding at the session opening by Queen Elizabeth. Meanwhile, four Ottawa lawyers are mentioned as possible nominees to the traditional French-speaking Ontario Senate seat, now vacant. They are Charles A. Seguin, former Conservative member for Russell in the Ontario legislature; Lorenzo Lafleur, twice unsuccessful Conservative candidate for the provincial seat of Ottawa East; Lionel Choquette, twice defeated Conservative candidate for the federal Ottawa East seat, and Gaston Vincent.

GROMYKO HOLDS PRESS CONFERENCE

Russian Charges Turkish Troops Mass Along Syria

UN Debate On Hungary Begins Despite Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The special United Nations debate on Hungary went ahead Tuesday despite a procedural attempt by Russia and the Communist Hungarian government to throw it out of the General Assembly.

As this extraordinary session of the 11th assembly opened, Australia's Keith Shans reported for the five-power committee which spent most of the winter and spring investigating last October's revolt and its suppression by Russian arms.

Hungarian delegate Peter Mod asked that the item be taken off the agenda on the grounds that the problem of Hungary is strictly an internal one. Arkady Sobolev of Russia endorsed this view and charged that consideration of the matter would be illegal under the UN charter.

Assembly President Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand ruled that the discussion was in order, and the debate proceeded with a long indictment by Henry Cabot Lodge, the United States delegate, of the Russian and Hungarian Communist action during and after the revolt.

Lodge, quoting liberally from Hungary's own newspapers and radio broadcasts of subsequent repressive measures against those who took part in the anti-Communist revolt, appealed to the UN to keep the issue alive, as this was the only hope of reversing "the present grim course of events in that country."

He accused the regime of Premier Janos Kadar of having a record of "promise and betrayal" in dealing with the Hungarian people. Then he put it up to Moscow where, he said, "lies the power to relieve the tension in this situation by relieving the injustice from which the tension arises."

Shan defended the committee report against Communist criticisms launched since its publication in June, and declared it would "stand the test of future investigations."

He said the interviews the committee held outside Hungary with hundreds of refugees, and its investigation of reports from the Communists themselves, indicated clearly that "the Soviet Union intervened with force in the internal affairs of Hungary to suppress a popular national uprising of the people against a form of government which they detested."

Later Mod told the floor again to reply for Kadar's government and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow and Budapest to see that UN objectives are carried out—is another matter.

Foreign Minister Frank Aiken of the Republic of Ireland aroused some interest when he suggested during Tuesday's debate that the UN supervise reciprocal withdrawals of both Soviet and Western troops from European countries where they are "non-national."

A parade of other speakers is expected during the rest of this week, and it is understood that Canada, as a co-sponsor of the U.S.-British resolution presented Tuesday, will be heard in the debate.

Passage by the assembly of the resolution, which calls for condemnation of Russia for its part in the revolt and the present Hungarian authorities for violation of human rights and freedoms, is expected. Implementation of its other aspect—that Prince Wan undertake as special assembly representative to visit Moscow

Leftist Papers In Damascus Demanding Mobilization

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Russia accused Turkey Tuesday night of massing troops along Syria's frontier as a tool of the United States.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko leveled the charge at a Moscow press conference. He warned that Syria has friends.

The Soviet Union cannot remain aloof "when Western imperialists wave torches of war along our frontiers," he said. He added that Turkey by an unwise military action might plunge "over the precipice."

There was a calm reaction in Turkey. Authoritative sources in Ankara said the Turkish army usually holds frontier manoeuvres at this time of year and some units may be engaged in routine exercises near the Syrian border.

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star charged that U.S. military units have landed in Turkey to support anti-Syrian moves. "This," the Turk said, "is completely and purely imaginary."

NO WAR In Washington, State Secretary Dulles expressed confidence that the Syrian situation will be settled without war. He told a press conference that, if fighting does break out, the countries involved could deal with it without assistance by U.S. military forces.

His calm words, however, contrasted sharply with alarmed comment made off the record by top Eisenhower administration leaders since Communists gained added influence within the Syrian army and government.

In Damascus, leftist newspapers demanded general mobilization and martial law. Premier Sabri Assali's cabinet met in urgent session to discuss what it calls anti-Syrian provocations by the United States. But it took no immediate action.

Fresh shooting developed on the Syrian-Israeli frontier. The Syrian army charged that three armored cars guarding a crew of Israeli tractor plowmen in the demilitarized border zone fired on two Arab villages and killed an Arab civilian. The Israelis said Syrian positions had shot at the plowmen. There were no Israeli casualties.

Veterans of Middle East affairs consider the frontier between Syria and Israel the pressure spot to watch in the current crisis. They discount the possibility of armed conflict between Syria and its Arab neighbors.

The cabinet meeting followed a charge by the army that five U.S. warships sailed close to the Syrian coast on Sunday and that unidentified jet fighters flew over a Syrian port on Monday. The U.S. navy has denied any of its ships are in those waters.

Meanwhile, Jordan announces a hands-off policy toward Syria. A Syrian newspaper quoted the Saudi Arabian ambassador as saying his country would join Egypt in coming to Syria's aid in any anti-Syrian aggression.

DULLES HOPEFUL In Washington, State Secretary Dulles said he believes the Syrian situation will be worked out peacefully but added the United States does not believe in peace at any price and under certain circumstances would act. He did not elaborate.

School Smashed By Dynamite

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A blockbuster dynamite explosion smashed a newly-integrated elementary school early Tuesday as racial tension continued to mount beneath an ironclad police clampdown on segregation demonstrations.

A total of 24 persons had been arrested by early evening. Among them was segregationist John Kasper who was taken into custody in city court as he sought to make bond for some of his followers.

Almost simultaneously with Kasper's arrest an added irritant to mounting tension was provided by the report that a Negro man had raped a white businesswoman in her store in suburban Madison.

Police said Kasper was arrested on charges based on inflammatory statements he made at a series of segregation rallies, the last of which he conducted from the state legislature steps Monday night.

Police held demonstrators a block away from the six racially mixed schools as they opened to sharply slashed over-all attendance. Seven of these arrested were held for questioning in the expert dynamiting of the $500,000 Hattie Cotton School.

The explosion followed a day of steadily mounting violence accompanying admission of the Negroes to formerly all-white schools. Only one Negro child was enrolled at Hattie Cotton, which is in a predominantly white neighborhood of East Nashville where no race mixing had been expected. No demonstrations occurred there.

A couple of hours before the blast, police had broken up a shouting crowd of 500 segregationists at Fair School, where bottles and bricks had been smashing windows and wind shields of passing automobiles occupied by Negroes.

School officials reported attendance off throughout the school system Tuesday, including all Negro schools. Nashville began first-grade desegregation Monday as the first step in court-ordered desegregation. A complete plan for eliminating compulsory segregation must be submitted to federal court by Dec. 31. There are about 3,500 first graders, including 2,000 whites, among Nashville's total enrollment of about 18,000 pupils.

Mr. Wm. J. Brawders Died In City Hospital Last Night

The death occurred at the Charlottetown Hospital last night of Mr. W.J. Brawders well known businessman, welfare officer and bandsman. He was 75.

For a number of years, Mr. Brawders conducted a grocery business at the corner of Kent and Queen Streets where the Toronto-Dominion Bank now stands.

A bandsman of note he was the leader of the League of the Cross Band with which he had a long association. He was for a number of years truant officer for the City School Board and his work in this field led him to accept the position of welfare officer with the department of Health and Welfare.

Possessed of a genial personality, the late Mr. Brawders was highly regarded in the field of child welfare both by the officials with whom he worked and by the underprivileged to whom he gave help and advice. He was a valued member of the Charlottetown Council K. of C.

Mr. Brawders is survived by a sister, Mr. P.S. Bradley, Haworth Avenue and by two brothers, Alphonus in Boston and Leo in California. His wife, the former Gertrude MacDonald, predeceased him 10 years ago.

6th FLEET IN GREECE ATHENS (Reuters)—Units of the United States 6th Fleet have arrived in Paleron Roads, near Athens, as part of Atlantic pact exercises in the Aegean Sea scheduled to begin Sept. 24, it was announced Tuesday.

HEADS COMPOSERS MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Pappeneau-Couture of the faculty of music at University of Montreal has been elected president of the Canadian League of Composers. He succeeds John Weinzweig of Toronto, president since the league's formation in 1950.

Will Supervise Royal Bank Here

MONTREAL (CP)—The Royal Bank of Canada Tuesday announced the appointment of Gordon A. Owen as supervisor of its branches in Nova Scotia and in Prince Edward Island.

A native of Albion, B.C., Mr. Owen served with the Royal Bank in Edmonton, Calgary, Toronto, Fredericton, and Halifax.

He succeeds Kenneth MacKenzie who has been Royal Bank supervisor in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island since 1948.

AT THE P. C. PARTY CAUCUS

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and L. Elston Card, chief government whip, chat with reporters before going into the afternoon session of the Progressive Conservative party caucus in Ottawa. About 95 parliamentarians—senators and Commons members—attended the two-day caucus.

Other young man who was eligible by birth, background and financial means to have married Margaret.

Rumored Princess Margaret Has Decided To Wed Wallace

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Sketch reports that it is believed Princess Margaret has decided to marry Billy Wallace, her escort for many years.

A story splashed across the front page says "their close friends think the marriage will take place before the princess goes on her West Indies tour next April."

There was no comment from Buckingham Palace. Princess Margaret was 27 last month. Wallace, 30, is the son of the late Euan Wallace, onetime minister of transport.

The Sketch report says it is understood the future of the princess has been under consideration at Balmoral Castle during the last few weeks. The report adds:

"Mr. Macmillan, the prime minister, who was a guest at the castle a week ago, may have been consulted about the timing of the formal announcement. Tuesday wealthy land-owner Christopher Loyd, 35, announced his engagement to beautiful Joanna Smith-Ingham, one of Princess Margaret's close friends. With his betrothal went an-

Townsend Is Annoyed

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Group Capt. Peter Townsend, British war hero friend of Princess Margaret, hurled his breakfast plate at a photographer Tuesday.

Fried eggs and chips, rolls and jelly went flying. The photographer ducked.

It happened when Townsend was surprised in his cabin aboard a Japanese freighter on the ship's arrival at the seaport of La Guaira.

Townsend, who is touring the world, refused to comment on a report by the London newspaper that he and Margaret, who parted in October, 1955, had vowed never to marry, anyone else.

"I won't say anything at all about the Royal Family," he said.

Other young man who was eligible by birth, background and financial means to have married Margaret.

Rumored Princess Margaret Has Decided To Wed Wallace

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Sketch reports that it is believed Princess Margaret has decided to marry Billy Wallace, her escort for many years.

A story splashed across the front page says "their close friends think the marriage will take place before the princess goes on her West Indies tour next April."

There was no comment from Buckingham Palace. Princess Margaret was 27 last month. Wallace, 30, is the son of the late Euan Wallace, onetime minister of transport.

The Sketch report says it is understood the future of the princess has been under consideration at Balmoral Castle during the last few weeks. The report adds:

"Mr. Macmillan, the prime minister, who was a guest at the castle a week ago, may have been consulted about the timing of the formal announcement. Tuesday wealthy land-owner Christopher Loyd, 35, announced his engagement to beautiful Joanna Smith-Ingham, one of Princess Margaret's close friends. With his betrothal went another young man who was eligible by birth, background and financial means to have married Margaret.

Rumored Princess Margaret Has Decided To Wed Wallace

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Sketch reports that it is believed Princess Margaret has decided to marry Billy Wallace, her escort for many years.

A story splashed across the front page says "their close friends think the marriage will take place before the princess goes on her West Indies tour next April."

There was no comment from Buckingham Palace. Princess Margaret was 27 last month. Wallace, 30, is the son of the late Euan Wallace, onetime minister of transport.

The Sketch report says it is understood the future of the princess has been under consideration at Balmoral Castle during the last few weeks. The report adds:

"Mr. Macmillan, the prime minister, who was a guest at the castle a week ago, may have been consulted about the timing of the formal announcement. Tuesday wealthy land-owner Christopher Loyd, 35, announced his engagement to beautiful Joanna Smith-Ingham, one of Princess Margaret's close friends. With his betrothal went another young man who was eligible by birth, background and financial means to have married Margaret.