

Odds and Ends.

A certain physician at sea made great use of sea-water among his patients. What ever disease came on, a dose of the nauseating liquid was first thrown down.

A boy from the country was recently taken into a gentleman's family. One afternoon, just before dark, after having been called up to the drawing-room, he came down into the kitchen, laughing immoderately.

A tricky individual was refused a drink unless he paid for it in advance. A bystander who owed the bar-keeper one in the way of practical jokes, bid him give the man his liquor, "and," said he, "if he refuses to pay for it, I will."

A Scotch barber, who was much given to dram drinking, was one day shaving a customer, who finding the fumes of whiskey too much for him in the job lost his patience, and exclaimed: "That horrid drink!"

Two wags in Illinois agreed to swap horses without seeing them—if either refused a forfeit of $5 was to be paid. One trotted out a sorry looking steed, and the other appeared with a wood-sawyer's horse on his back.

A young man, who recently fell in love with a very beautiful young lady says that when he ascertained last evening that she reciprocated his passion, he felt as though he was sitting on the roof of a meetinghouse and every shingle was a jews-harp.

"Why did you leave your last place?" inquired a young housekeeper about to engage a new servant. "Why, you see, ma'am," replied the applicant, "I was too good looking and when I opened the door folks took me for the missus."

A gentleman was considerably surprised to see a plump turkey served up for his dinner, and inquired of his servant how it was got. "Why, sir," replied Cuffee, "dat ar turkey had been roostin' on our fence des tree nights; so dis mornin' I thought I would seize him for de rent ob de fence."

At a school at Newcastle, the master asked a class of boys the meaning of the word "appetite." After a short pause, one little boy said, "I know, sir; when I'm eaten I'm happy and when I'm done I'm tight."

"Pray, Mrs. Radiski, why do you whip your children so often?" "La, Mr. Worthy, I do it for their enlightenment. I never whipped one of them in my life-time that he didn't acknowledge that it made him smart."

"Good morning, Mr. Henpeck," said a printer in search of female compositors: "have you got any daughters that would make good type-setters?" "No, but I have got a wife that would make a very fine devil."

A returned California found the baby he had left at home a miss of five summers. One day he offended her, and she irefully exclaimed: "I wished you had never married into the family."

"Three and sixpence per gal," exclaimed Mrs. Partington, looking over the prices current. "Why, bless me, what is the world coming to, when the gals are valued at only three and sixpence!"

A credulous man said to a wag, who had a wooden leg, "How came you to have a wooden leg?" "Why," answered the wag, "my father had one so had my grandfather. It runs in the blood."

If you would find a great many faults, be on the look-out; but if you want to find them in unlimited quantities, be on the look-in.

None are more to be pitied than those who have the means of gratifying their desires before they have learned to govern them.

If every man would reform himself, the world's reformation would be accomplished, and philosophers would be needless.

How few read for instruction as compared with the multitude that read for mere entertainment.

Silence is the safest response for all the contradictions that arise from imperfection, vulgarity, or envy.

Heaven rarely grants to the same man the gift of thinking well, speaking well and acting well at all times.

Make friends of your creditors, if you can; but never make creditors of your friends.

The trials of life are the tests which ascertain how much gold there is in our character.

There is hardly any circumstances so bad that it may not be made worse by mismanagement.

Never act in the heat of emotion; let reason answer first.

Weep for love, but not for anger; a cold rain will never bring flowers.

Our great glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall.

No snow falls lighter than the snow of age; none heavier, for it never melts.

It is said that hoops surrounds the loveliest of all things—girls and whiskey.

Why was sampson like a good actor? Because he "brought down the house." People seldom improve when they have no other model but themselves to copy.

Fortune is like a good swordsman; she scorns to encounter a timid, fearful man.
