ELECTRIC GLOSS.

FOR cleaning Solid Silver, Nickel, Brass, Copper and Plate Glass. Quick! Sure!
Permanent! No dirt, no trouble, no labor.
Being entirely free from grit and acids, it cannot injure the most finely burnished surface. It is the only preparation ever produced that will polish brass or copper without the use of acid. Nothing approaches it for removing grease and finger marks from Brass, Copper, Glass, etc.; while for cleaning Nickel or Stoves it is especially useful.
Retail price, 25 cents per bottle.
MICA WASH.—This wash is the only thing of the kind ever invented. A stove may be as handsome as a jewel and shine like ebony; but smoked mica lights will spoil it all. Day by day mica becomes scarcer and higher in price, and an article that will clean and preserve it is valuable to all concerned.
Try this wash once, and you will always use it. Retail price, 25 cents per bottle.

CHAPTER II.

In front of Sandy Jim stood Chad's Bess, who had shown an unwonted quietude and fixity of attention ever since Dinah began to speak. Not that the matter of the discourse had arrested her at once, for she was lost in a puzzling speculation as to what pleasure and satisfaction there could be in life to a young woman who wore a cap like Dinah's. Giving up the inquiry in despair, she took to studying Dinah's nose, eyes, mouth, and hair, and wondering whether it was better to have such a pale face as that, or fat, red cheeks and round black eyes like her own. But gradually the influence of the general gravity told upon her, and she became conscious of what Dinah was saying. The gentle tones, the loving persuasion did not touch her, but when the more severe appeals came she began to be frightened. Poor Bessy had always been considered a naughty girl; she was conscious of it; if it was necessary to be very good, it was clear she must be in a bad way. She couldn't find her place at church as Sally Rann could, she had oft been tittering when she "cureched" to Mr. Irwine, and these religious deficiencies were accompanied by a corresponding slackness in the minor morals, for Bessy belonged unquestionably to that un-soaped, lazy class of feminine characters, with whom you may venture to eat "an egg, an apple, or a nut." All this she was generally conscious of, and hitherto had not been greatly ashamed of it. But now she began to feel very much as if the conscience had come to take her up and carry her before the justice for some undefined offence. She had a terrified sense that God; whom she had always thought of as very far off, was very near to her, and that Jesus was close by looking at her, though she could not see him. For Dinah had that belief in visible manifestations of Jesus, which is common among the Methodists, and she communicated it irresistibly to her hearers; she made them feel that he was among them bodily, and might at any moment show himself to them in some way that would strike anguish and penitence into their hearts.

"See!" she exclaimed, turning to the left, with her eyes fixed on a point above the heads of the people, "see where our blessed Lord stands and weeps, and stretches out his arms toward you. He watches you; he says: 'How often would I have gathered you as a hen gathereth the chickens under her wings, and ye would not!'
and ye would not!" she repeated in a tone of pleading reproach, turning her earnest eyes on the people again.

"See the print of the nails on his dear hands and feet. It is your sins that made them! Ah! how pale and worn he looks!
He has gone through all the great agony in the garden, when his soul was exceeding sorrowful even unto death, and the great drops of sweat fell like drops of blood to the ground. They spat upon him and buffeted him, they scourged him, they mocked him, they laid the heavy cross on his bruised shoulders. Then they nailed him up! Ah! what pain! His lips are parched with thirst, and they mocked him still in his great agony; yet with those parched lips he prays for them, 'Father forgive them, for they know not what they do.' Then a horror of great darkness fell upon him, and he felt what sinners feel when they are forever shut out from God. That was the last drop in the cup of bitterness.
'My God, my God!' he cries, 'why hast Thou forsaken me?'

"All this he bore for you! For you—and you never think of him; for you—and you turn your backs on him; you don't care what he has gone through for you; he has risen from the dead, he is praying for you at the right hand of God—'Father forgive them, for they know not what they do.'
And he is upon the earth too; he is among us; he is there close to you now; I see his wounded body and his look of love."

Here Dinah turned to Bessy Crange, whose bonny youth and evident vanity had touched her with pity.

"Poor child! He is beseech-ing you, and you don't listen to him. You think of earrings, and fine gowns and caps, and you never think of the Saviour who died to save your soul. Your cheeks will be shriveled one day, your hair will be gray, your poor body will be thin and tottering.
Then you will begin to feel that your soul is not saved; then you will have to stand before God dressed in your sins, in your evil temper and vain thoughts. And Jesus, who stands ready to help you now, won't help you then; because you won't have him to be your Saviour, he will be your judge.
Now he looks at you with love and infinite mercy, and says, 'Come to me that you may have life;' and he will turn away from you and say, 'Depart from me into everlasting fire!'

Poor Bessy's wide open black eyes began to fill with tears, her great red cheeks and lips became quite pale, and her face was distorted like a little child's before a burst of crying.

"Ah! poor blind child!" Dinah went on,
"think if it should happen to you as it once happened to a servant of God in the days of her vanity. She thought of her lace caps, and saved all her money to buy 'em; she thought nothing of how she might get a clean heart and a right spirit, she only wanted to have better lace than other girls.
And one day when she put her new cap on and looked in the glass, she saw a bleeding Face crowned with thorns. That face is looking at you now—here Dinah pointed to a spot close in front of Bessy. "Ah! tear off those follies! cast them away from you, as if they were stinging adders. They are stinging you—they are poisoning your soul—they are dragging you down into a dark bottomless pit, where you will sink forever, and forever, and forever, further away from light and God."

Bessy could bear it no longer; a great terror was upon her, and, wringing her earrings from her ears, she threw them down before her, sobbing aloud. Her father, Chad, frightened lest he should be "laid hold on" too, this impression on the rebellious Bess striking him as nothing less than a miracle, walked hastily away, and began to work at his anvil by way of reassuring himself. "Folks men ha' ho-shoes, praichin' or no praichin'; the devil canna lay hold o' me for that," he muttered to himself.

But now Dinah began to tell of the joys that were in store for the penitent, and to describe in her simple way the divine peace and love with which the soul of the believer is filled—how the sense of God's love turns poverty into riches, and satisfies the soul, so that no uneasy desire vexes it, no fear alarms it; how, at last, the very temptation to sin is extinguished, and heaven is begun upon earth, because no cloud passes between the soul and God, who is its eternal sun.

"Dear friends," she said at last, "brothers and sisters, whom I love as those for whom my Lord has died, believe me I know what this great blessing is; and because I know it, I want you to have it too. I am poor, like you; I have to get my living with my hands; but no lord nor lady can be so happy as me, if they haven't got the love of God in their souls. Think what it is—not to hate any thing but sin; to be full of love to every creature; to be frightened at nothing; to be sure that all things will turn to good; to not to mind pain, because it is our Father's will; to know that nothing —no, not if the earth was to be burned up, or the waters come and drown us—nothing could part us from God who loves us, and who fills our souls with peace and joy, because we are sure that whatever he wills is holy, just and good."

"Dear friends, come and take this blessedness; it is offered to you; it is the good news that Jesus came to preach to the poor.
It is not like the riches of this world, so that the more one gets the less the rest can have. God is without end; His love is without end—"

Its streams the whole creation re-eb, So plentiful is the store;
Enough for all, enough for each;
Enough for evermore.

Dinah had been speaking at least an hour, and the reddening light of the parting day seemed to give a so much emphasis to her closing words. The stranger, who had been interested in the course of her sermon, as if it had been the development of a drama—for there is this sort of fascination in all sincere unpremeditated eloquence, which seems to one the inward drama of the speaker's emotions—now turned his horse aside and pushed his way, while Dinah said, "Let us sing a little, dear friends," and as he was still winding down the slope, the voices of the Methodists reached him, rising and falling in that strange blending of exultation and sadness which belongs to the cadence of a hymn.

(To be continued.)
Sunlight in Stables.

We tried an experiment some years since to test the absence of sunlight on a calf.
We had two deep red calves of the same age (sixty days), one weighing 180 pounds and the other 182 pounds. The latter we placed in a dark room, with a trough that could be filled by a spout through a partition. The other was confined in the same amount of space, but in full light, and both were fed just exactly alike for the next three months. The object was to test the effect of light upon such a growing animal. At the end of the three months the one in the light weighed 430 pounds, and the one in the dark weighed 360 pounds and its color had faded to a very pale, dirty red. Its eyes were so much affected that when admitted to the light it kept them closed most of the time for the first week or two. The two calves were kept on together, but the one from the dark room never fully recovered from this three months of darkness. It never recovered its deep red color, though the color improved. Any one who noted these two calves during this experiment would never doubt the impolicy of dark stables.—Live Stock Journal.

A Great Cow.
The New Glasgow Chronicle says:—A. C.
Thompson, Esq., of this town, is the fortunate owner of a thoroughbred Jersey cow, "Mullbury Maid," No. 12,129, A. J. C. C., that has made 11 lbs. 4 ozs. of butter, in 2 1/2 days, or 7 milkings without any extra food.
The following is the weight of milk per day:—
Oct. 25th..... 34 lbs.
Oct. 26th..... 34 1/2 lbs.
Oct. 27th..... 42 lbs.
Oct. 28th (one milking)..... 20 lbs.
Total..... 130 1/2 lbs.

Mr. Thompson confidentially believes that a proper test would give her a record of at least 75 lbs of butter per week. "Mullbury Maid" is dark fawn, solid color, and in respect a perfect model.

Did not Refuse.
The Montreal Star of Wednesday says that Hon. Mr. Masson did not, as was stated, refuse to take the oath of allegiance.
He took the oath in its entirety, but protested against the following clause:
"I do declare that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state or potentate hath, or has a right to have, any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm."
