Rotary Luncheon Held At Marshfield

Because of the strike, the Charlottetown Rotary Club held its weekly luncheon yesterday at Sandy's Restaurant, Marshfield. The speaker was Rotarian Kenneth Partridge, barrister, of Port Credit, Ont. He said that James Wheeler Davidson of Calgary, Alberta, was Rotary's greatest Canadian Ambassador, and that many of the Far Eastern clubs owed their beginning to his dynamic personality.

"Good movements among us would quickly die if they were merely calculations of good," said Rotarian Partridge. "We respond to them as good movements because there is something within us which is divine answering to an overtone which is itself divine." Such a movement is Rotary. Its members give of their best to each other and the community and they find themselves in a community made better by their giving.

When he died in 1933 Rotarian Jim Davidson had lived fully. He had a useful business and professional life, filled with travel and adventure. He was born in the United States and in his younger days had gone on an expedition to the Arctic with explorer Peary. He became newspaper correspondent attached to the Chinese and later to the Japanese army. He could speak Japanese fluently and wrote a book on Formosa where he was American Consul. He also served in that capacity at Shanghai.

In 1906 he came to Calgary and became a Canadian citizen. Joining Rotary in 1914 he was enthused with its objects and he gave the remainder of his life to carrying the ideals of Rotary to the far places of the earth. Together with the late Col. J. L. Ralston he took a year off to establish Rotary in Australia and New Zealand. Later accompanied by his wife and daughter he travelled to Cairo, Bombay, Madras, Malay States and many other places of the middle and far east establishing clubs and spreading the ideals of Rotary.

Rotarian Gordon Ives was chairman assisted by Rotarian Edwin Johnston. A presentation was made to Rotarian Roy Kendall who leaves shortly for a new appointment in Trenton, Ontario. Congratulations were extended to Rotarian T. W. L. Prowse on his appointment as Lieutenant Governor.

Guests yesterday included Rotarians David Morton, Toronto; Rev. E. M. Aitken, Hamilton, Ont.; Orrin MacGregor, Halifax, N. S. Other visitors were Rev. T. E. McLennan, Montreal, Russel Sterns, and Prof. W. J. Duchemin.

Civil Defence Measures & Responsibilities Outlined

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—(CP)—A Dominion Provincial conference on civil defence yesterday agreed on a division of responsibilities among the three levels of Canadian Government and gave the green light to municipalities to organize themselves for the worst.

A statement by Defence Minister Claxton, chairman of the meeting, disclosed that: 1. A special school on atomic warfare will be established within the next few weeks, either at Camp Borden, Ont., or Meaford, Ont. It will have a series of courses for doctors and others, to build up a core of leadership on which local organizations can build.

2. A continuing Dominion-Provincial advisory committee on civil defence is being established. 3. The Federal Government will issue a pamphlet which will be a manual on civil defence problems. 4. It was agreed that the question of the responsibility for civil defence in event of emergency would be studied further by the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

5. The question of the division of financial responsibility for key personnel and for equipment such as hose couplings is "being given further consideration." 6. There was no disagreement on any major matter at the conference. Mr. Claxton said, and it completed its agenda.

He said plans already are made for Provincial authorities to attend two courses in civil defence against atomic attack at Borden. A separate school was being established, one that would take elaborate steps to train key personnel.

The Minister said the conference "agreed on the desirability of local communities planning to meet civil disaster." It was recognized too that the forces should be available to help out as they did in the Manitoba floods but that they should always come under the civilian authority. Subject to the approval of the Provincial Legislatures, these were the broad lines of responsibility accepted for what was called the pre-emergency—that is before actual war—period:

- Federal 1. Organization of Federal departments, forces and agencies for civil defence, and arranging their co-ordination with provincial and local authorities. 2. Provision of information to Provinces regarding general policy; civil defence activities of the Federal Government and other Provincial Governments; developments relating to co-operation with the United States. 3. Operation of a central training school for civil defence specialists.
