

JUST IN TIME.

(CONCLUDED.)

She's only mamma's aunt, you know interpolated Faith, apologetically, and she died seventeen years ago! Mamma did ever any one search,—a real, good old-fashioned search,—for Aunt Patience's money!

Her mother smiled sadly.
Yes, indeed. For years we could not give up the hope of finding it. Every nook and corner about the old place has been carefully examined. No, no, my child, Aunt Patience laid her money away too safely for any hope of recovery after all these years. Don't let such a foolish thought enter your head my dear it is but waste of time!

Faith reached across the table, and laid one finger on an ancient looking box.

'See, Max,' she cried, 'here's the old lady's workbox—I don't believe mamma has ever disturbed its contents. Who knows,' she cried, with a sudden fire in her brown eyes, 'but Aunt Patience may have hidden her money away in it.'

Vain hope! said Mrs. Lyndsey; 'the box has been overhauled and examined over and over again.'

Faith sighed.
'Ah, well,' she said resignedly. 'I suppose I must submit to fate's decrees. But if only we had a little of that money—think how much it would accomplish!'

She had taken from the box a ball of wax—such as commonly forms part of the paraphernalia of a workbox, and toyed idly with it as she talked.

But as she finished the last sentence her eyes met her lovers gaze, and she blushed rosily at the thought of what her speech implied.

In her confusion she dropped the ball of wax. It rolled across the rug at her feet, and right into the blazing wood fire.

Faith sprang to her feet with a little cry of dismay.

'Oh, what a pity!' she cried brandishing the poker, 'and it is over seventeen years old!'

She thrust the implement she held into the flames and rolled the melting wax toward the rug. But it was too late to save it.

The wax had entirely melted and lay upon the hearth in a great soft pool, and there, before their astonished eyes, as though a magician's wand had called it forth, glowed and sparkled something—shining, scintillating. With a low cry of rapture Mrs. Lyndsey stooped and raised it.

'Max—Faith,' she said, brokenly, 'Aunt Patience's fortune is found at last!'

And so it proved. The eccentric old lady had converted all her ready money into one immense diamond.

How she had obtained it no one could conjecture, but she had hidden it away in this odd receptacle, only to be resurrected after seventeen long years.

And Mrs. Lyndsey—hair at law—as well as by the old lady's will—had no trouble in exchanging the jewel for greenbacks—a handsome fortune.

Mrs Lyndsey insisted on purchasing the practice of Dr. Shipton for her future son-in-law, and Max accepted the money as a loan.

He and Faith were married soon, and with Mrs. Lyndsey went to live in a pretty Gothic cottage just within the city of Rochester.

Max is a popular physician now; gossip says he is getting rich fast; and hearts of the happy trio are ever grateful for the unlooked-for discovery of the fortune which came just in time.

The peculiar merits of sheep raising are worthy of all attention on the part of our farmers. Notwithstanding its vast extent the United States raised in 1878 only one million more sheep than Great Britain, and the weight of the years product of wool in Great Britain actually exceed the weight of the same product in the Republic by thirty-three millions of pounds. Australia raises almost double the number of sheep that are raised in Great Britain and the United States together, although its yearly weight of wool is only thirty-seven millions of pounds more than the yearly weight raised in Great Britain. Notice should be taken of the value of mutton as food. A recent agricultural writer has estimated that a pound of pork costs the farmer three times as much as the creation of a pound of mutton, a much more healthy and nutritious meal.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style. Buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple pure remedies, Hop Bitters that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read of it in another column.

August Flower.

The immense sale and great popularity of Green's August Flower in all towns and villages in the civilized world has caused many imitators to adopt similar names, expecting to reap a harvest for themselves at the expense of the afflicted. This medicine was introduced in 1868, and for the cure of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, with their effects, such as Sour Stomach, Sickheadache, Indigestion, Palpitation of the Heart, vertigo, etc., etc., it never has failed to our knowledge. Three doses will relieve any case of Dyspepsia. Two million bottles sold last year. Price 75 cents. Samples 10 cents.

LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY.
AN ANALYTICAL SANITARY INSTITUTION, 54, Holborn-viaduct, E. C., London, Aug. 18, 1879
REPORT on the LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY: "We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis. The samples were very fragrant, mellow, and of pleasant flavor, and possessed all the characteristics of pure and well-matured Scotch Whisky of the first quality."
