Scrofula

Infests the blood of humanity. It appears in varied forms, but is forced to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and vitalizes the blood and cures all such diseases. Read this:

"In September, 1894, I made a misstep and injured my ankle. Very soon afterwards,

A Sore

two inches across formed and in walking to favor it I sprained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My is now well and I have been greatly benefited otherwise. I have increased in weight and am in better health. I cannot say enough in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. H. BLAKE, So. Berwick, Me.

Chinese Food.

The Chinese esteem shrimps above all things. At a well served table they are brought on swimming about in a glass bowl of water flavored with oil and vinegar, which renders the creatures hysterically alive. With an unerring thumb and forefinger the Chinese diner-out plucks forth the struggling fish, nips off the tail at one bite nd casts the useless head behind him.

Shocking as it may seem to a civilized housekeeper, the older the egg in China the more perfect from an epicurean standpoint does it become, for no Chinaman who has a right regard for his palate eats a fresh-boiled egg. Taken fresh, eggs are sent to soak, after having been washed, in a tub of aromatic water. After a time they are removed, and the water used in mixing a paste of lime and salt, in which the eggs are packed in jars. These are hermetically sealed and set aside to stand for a month, when they are supposed to be fit for eating. Those left packed in salt and lime for twelve months, or more, when opened, are found to have changed color, solidified partly, and are odorless.

The chief care of the Chinese is to eat nothing cold. Warm or hot food they absorb in abundance, but rightly they maintain that cold food lowers the temperature of the stomach beyond the point where digestion can continue, and so the whole health of the body is endangered.

The Right Hand.

The reason for using the right hand more than the left is one of the still unsolved problems of physiology, although hundreds of people have addressed themselves to it. Some think the reason is that the great innominate artery carries more blood to the right side, and nourishes it more. Others think it is because the supply of blood to the left side of the brain is more plentiful than to the right. And, as it is the left brain which works the muscles of the right side of the body, this may really be the reason. One philosopher thinks it is due to the fact that the right side of the body is heavier, owing to the situation of the liver. But the most likely of all explanations is that of Mr. Herbart Spencer. He says that uncivilized men very early found out that they were more vulnerable on the left side than on the right. With their left hand, therefore, they held the shield that protected the heart, and with their right wielded the spear and club. Of course, the active right arm became much stronger than the resting left.

The Vastness of Siberia.

A graphic idea of the immense size of Siberia may be gleaned from the following comparison: All of the states, kingdoms, principalities, empires, etc., of Europe (except Russia), and all of the United States, including Alaska, could be placed side by side in Siberia, and yet but little more than cover that immense country.

The Sidewalks of New York.

May be an improvement on the ones we have in Charlottetown, but New York or no other city can show a finer display of Clothing in one establishment or a finer range of goods at the price.

Our Clothing trade this fall despite the hardness of times has been good. Our low prices good goods draw. We intend, for one week, beginning to-day, to make a run on Youths' Ulsters, size, 31 to 35 breast measure. We have the finest range in this line that has ever been shown in Ch'town, and will offer special inducements for the coming week.

ALSO, Children's Overcoats size 22 to 27 we will sell for one week at prices that will clear.

OTHER LINES

Will receive our usual attention and will continue to go at our regular low prices.

THE MOST USEFUL METAL.

It is said that a ton of steel will make 1,500,000 pens.

Steel rails were first used for railways at Chalk Farm, near London, in 1862.

Occasional instances have been found of perfectly pure native iron in meteorites.

A large part of the finest iron and steel of commerce is made from magnetic ores.

A chemical authority states that silicon, as well as carbon, renders iron more fusible.

The hot blast was introduced into furnace use some time between 1832 and 1838.

Mulhall says the United States produces one-third of the steel manufactured in the world.

The iron deposited by the galvanic battery is grayish white and takes a beautiful polish.

Ships built of steel are said to be able to carry 20 per cent more freight than those of iron.

In the fourteenth century Belgium was the principal seat of the iron manufactures of Europe.

It is said that the first cannon cast in the United States was made at Hagerstown, Md.

The iron pyrites, or "fool's gold," is abundant in many parts of the world. It is a bisulphide of iron.

Rust consists of ferric oxide, ferrous oxide, ferrous carbonate, calcic carbonate, silica and ammonia.

The common copperas of commerce, so extensively used as a disinfectant, is a salt of iron, the sulphate.

It is said by geologists that iron in marketable quantities has been found in every country on the globe.

The first successful furnace for smelting iron ore with anthracite coal was built in Pennsylvania in 1838.

Swedish iron has a wide reputation in the arts. The best, it is said, is obtained from the mine of Dannemora.

The so-called "tinwares" used by tinners are merely sheets of iron rolled very thin and plated with tin.

Iron is not the only metal which can be welded, but no metal possesses this property in so high a degree.

In oxygen gas, a piece of heated iron wire burns with remarkable brilliancy throwing off intensely bright sparks.

It is said by an historical authority that the average life of an iron rail is 16 years; that of a steel one, 40 years.

Many doctors believe that iron, medically considered, is a sort of food and is given with best effect at meal times.

The tonnage of the iron and steel ships built in the United States was greatest in 1891, when it was 105,618 tons.

Some archaeologists declare that the first use made of iron by the human race was in the manufacture of weapons.

According to Moses, the first ironworker was Tubal-Cain, who was "an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron."

Besides the steel factories in the United States, there are fourteen in Birmingham, three in France and two in Germany.

UNUSUAL INCIDENTS.

Paris tribunals have decided that the habit of gambling in the wife is a valid ground for divorce.

Lightning struck a football team as it was about to play a match at Liverpool recently, killing one man and badly injuring two others.

An ex-clergyman arrested in New York for embezzlement pleaded that he was affected with "clergyman's mind," which he explained was a childlike ignorance of worldly affairs.

Ex-Queen Isabella, II. of Spain recently celebrated her golden wedding. She gave a luncheon in her palace in the Champs Elysees, to which her husband, Don Francis of Assisi, who also lives in Paris, was not invited.

The grand jury in New Orleans has indicted the officers of the American National Bank, who received deposits after they knew the institution must ultimately close. These men are going straight to the penitentiary. Officers of the Bank of Commerce, New Orleans, who did the same thing, are already behind the bars.

While at table a good and safe rule to follow is always to do that which will attract least attention.

The Food of Whales.

The food of whales has long been known to consist of minute sea crustacea. Mr. Gray was familiar not only with the whale's food, but observed its manner of feeding and the way in which it took its nap "after meals." "No doubt," he wrote, "whales are very particular in the quality of their food, for they are never to be found feeding where the water is dirty, but almost invariably in clean, clear, dark-blue or light olive-green water. The usual way in which a whale feeds is to chooose a spot where the food is plentiful and swim backward and forward for 200 or 300 yards, with the nose just under water. They invariably swim from one side of the beat back again to where they started from with their mouths open. They then close their jaws and swallow the food caught.

"They will go on in this way feeding for an hour or more; after this they will disappear under the nearest ice and sleep there until they come out for exercise or for another meal. Unlike other warm-blooded animals, they do not require to breathe through the nostrils while asleep and they do not do so. Whales can sleep as well under water as they do upon the surface, as I have often seen them disappear under solid ice and remain there for many hours at a time. Sometimes they fall asleep with their heads down and only their tails standing out of the water."—The Spectator.

Anxiety Hurtful.

And what does your anxiety do? It does not empty, to-morrow, brother, of its sorrow; but, ah! it empties to-day of its strength. It does not make you escape the evil, it makes you unfit to cope with it when it comes. It does not bless to-morrow, and it robs to day. For every day has its own burden. God gives us power to bear all the sorrows of His making; but He does not give us the power to bear the sorrows of our own making, which the anticipation of sorrow most assuredly is.—Ian Maclaren.
