Belgium Has New Leader Whom Foes Are Calling "Baby Hitler"; He's 29

Young Newspaper Editor, Leon Degrelle, Smiles as 21 Candidates of Party He Founded Win Parliamentary Seats.

Leon Degrelle, 29-year-old leader of Belgium's Rexists, who has been nicknamed "Baby Hitler" by his adversaries.

By MAX LEKUS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

BRUSSELS, July 14—A one-year-old party led by a 29-year-old newspaper editor competed in the recent Belgian elections with such phenomenal success that 21 of its candidates were elected to the chamber of deputies.

As a result, the historical array of conservatives, Belgium's three parties, the Socialists, Catholics and Libearls has received a severe jolt by the "Rexists," as the new group calls itself.

Leader of this youthful party, and one may say its founder, is young Leon Degrelle who hails from Bouillion in the south of Belgium.

Organizer

Gifted with a surprising talent for organization, Degrelle created the movement of "Rexism" without any means other than his magnetic personality and the clever tactics of his newspaper "Rex."

A graduate of the University of Louvain, Degrelle himself was a zealous member of the Catholic party until 1934. That year, however, be began to expose—in the new weekly Rex—financial irregularities within the Catholic as well as other parties.

The cry for a general cleansing of Belgium's political life raised by "Rex" found its echo among tens of thousands of people. During the summer of 1935 Degrelle, who until then still remained loyal to his party, seceded and founded his "Rexist" movement which attracted tremendous following among the peasants, small shopkeepers and sections of the white collar class.

The name of "Rex" refers to Christ, the King of Kings. "Rex vaincra"—Christ will win—is the slogan of the party. Its symbol is the broom with which M. Degrelle hopes to clean political life.

But behind Degrelle's demands for honest government, protection of the small shopkeepers against the big department stores and of the small farmer against the big landowners, looms the tendency of fascism. He also proposes to reduce the number of deputies to half and deprive the chamber of all rights except passing on the budget. He further proposes that all married women should be deprived of jobs.

Another Hitler?

Due to his anti-parliamentary program, Degrelle has been nicknamed the "Baby Hitler" by his adversaries. He himself has repeatedly admitted that his party would use force if it could not have its way otherwise.

As a personality, Degrelle exercises a magnetic influence upon his followers. An excellent orator, and gifted with a booming voice that carries wide and far, he attended as many as ten mass meetings during the recent election. Married and good looking, and of athletic build, Belgium's Baby Hitler may well become one of the leading political figures in his country's history.

Moore & McLeod Limited

Belfast

Last Sunday morning one of the largest congregations for many years gathered at the St. John's Church when the midsummer communion service was celebrated. It was one of the few occasions when seats in the gallery had to be utilized.

The choir was large and led very effectively in the hymn singing of the congregation; Miss Annie MacRae at the organ.

The Rev. D. L. Griffiths based the remarks of an inspiring sermon upon the words of Jesus: "No man taketh my life from me, but I lay it down of myself." His theme was "The voluntary offering of His life by our Saviour."

The Rev. Malcolm J. MacLeod, D. D., New York, who was among the many vsitors present from various parts of the continent took part in the Sacrament ceremony, and also offered prayer, at the invitation of the pastor Mr. Griffiths.

Five new members were added to the membership roll of the church, and partook of the sacrament for the first time.

The Rev. J. Owen Hughes, Cardigan, conducted preparatory services on the previous Friday and Saturday.

The evening service was also largely attended, during which Mr. Dave Griffiths gave a very sympathetic rendering of the beautiful song "The Stranger of Galilee."

On Sunday afternoon the mortal remains of Mrs. Mary Wallace were laid to rest in the Belfast Church cemetery, she having passed away the previous morning at her home situated near the Presbyterian church. The late Mrs. Wallace was a widow and in her eighty fifth year at the time of her passing. The cause of death was pneumonia from which she suffered for only a few days. With her, at the old home, lived one of her sons, William, and it is a comfort to remember that one of her married daughters and three granddaughters and one great granddaughter were on a visit from Detroit, Mich., at the time she was stricken with illness. With them at the funeral on Sunday were also two married sons of the deceased, who reached the old home less than twenty-four hours after their mother's death.

A brief service was held at the home, after which quite a large number of friends, neighbours and relatives attended the service at the church.

The Rev. D. L. Griffiths, her pastor, paid worthy tribute to Mrs. Wallace as a faithful member of the church, an exceptionally peaceful and kindly neighbour, removal of whom will leave the district all the poorer. Mr. Dave Griffiths was at the organ during the impressive service.

The relatives able to be present at the funeral were the two sons, John and Frank from Detroit; a married daughter, Belle, also from Detroit, and her own two daughters; also the son William, already mentioned, who lives at home.

There is also another daughter married, Margaret, in New York City, who failed to reach the old home in time for the funeral service.

THE FOLLY OF GUESSING

The "eye-guesser" is everywhere. Men and women guess. Children do not bother to do even that. Many guess their eyes need attention, many more that they DON'T. The former guess is more likely to be true. FACTS are easily obtained, and should be secured by everyone who is not sure of his vision.

Treasures Fill Aviatrix Home

RYE, N.Y., July 14—(C.P.)—When interviewed here the other day Amelia Earhart was digging in her garden clad in an old pair of her husband's trousers and a sweat shirt, her blond hair shining, a trowel in one hand and an uprooted plant in the other, she stood up and smiled a greeting.

The house is a casual livable sort of a place overflowing with books and treasures collected in odds and ends of the earth. George Palmer Putnam, husband of Miss Earhart, interrupts his publishing activities now and then to jog about in far away places with expeditions to explore unknown corners that have whetted his interest. So both Putnams bring to their home the flavor of adventures.

Few homes reverberate more faithfully to the interests and personalities of their owners than this one. Even the guest rooms have succumbed to the lure of strange scenes. One has deep sea murals in sea greens and blues, in corals and brilliant flashs of unusual tropical fish colors. Another has a rank jungle painted on the walls. And every room has sheaves of books.

The Putnams share a study that is somewhat detached from the main part of the house, a room with wide desks, many book shelves and rough timbered walls and ceilings. Unusual photographs of most of the famous explorers and aviators of the century line the walls, together with historic pictures of events and people in the development of flying. Among the museum documents here is a matrix of a front page of a newspaper that carried the story of Miss Earhart's last transatlantic flight.

Something of Amelia Earhart's own quietness pervades this house in Rye, and so, for all its reminders of spectacular wanderings, it is a peaceful place.

ENGLISH BEHIND IN KITCHEN PLANNING

MONTREAL, July 14.—(CP)—Kitchens of Canada and the United States has been a revelation to many countrywomen from across the seas, Mrs. Frank Gresham of Wales, a delegate to the recent convention in Washington of the Associated Country Women of the World, commented as she passed through here en route for her home.

Mrs. Gresham said that in English kitchen old pans and old ways were too prevalent, while kitchen planning was still too much "an idea only." "It is nonsense to say we have nothing to learn from other countries," she remarked.

ASCOT, Eng.—(C.P.)—Use of refrigerators has now extended to race tracks. Ascot has ordered a household appliances firm to instal seven ultra-modern models in the luncheon rooms and kitchen of the royal enclosure.
