around as he demonstrated the handling, time and size required for the sprout required some frost for best results and it could also be dug from the snow in spring and processed. Second from left is Agriculture Minister A. B. MacRae, while Stewart Wright, deputy minister is second from right.

THE BRUSSELS sprout shown in the above picture was taken after front leaves were removed by hand to show how they grow on the stock. The growth to date has been good but some time is required as yet so that the sprout will tighten up and reach a preferable size of 1 1/4 inches in diameter. Frost is considered necessary for best results. This

New Plant Demonstrates Brussels Sprouts Growing

MONTAGUE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
Approximately 100 growers and prospective growers were on hand yesterday afternoon at the Langley Field Packers Ltd. Brussels sprout plot for a field lesson on the growing of brussels sprouts and other fruits and vegetables.

The sprouts were given by Ernest Buffum, manager of the new plant now nearing completion at Montague. Also present were members of the department of agriculture, Stewart Wright, William Stems, Lou Wright, and Kings County Agriculture representative David Smith.
Hon. A. B. MacRae, minister of agriculture was present and a spoke briefly to the growers.
Quality control, handling and growing were discussed by the speaker with questions being asked by the growers.
Mr. Buffum in his remarks pointed out the number one size for sprouts would be up to 1 1/4 inches, number two 1 1/2 inches with large sizes out.
He also stated that it was possible that 1,000 acres of peas could be acquired when the plant goes into production, and also said that from 5,000 to 6,000 tons of first and second grade potatoes would be required in the next few years with Kennebec and Sebago as the preferred group at present.
It is thought that the plant will be ready to harvest the brussels sprouts at any time which could be about Oct. 15, and fish and chips will be processed during the winter months.
In the beginning the processing of vegetables and fruit crops was to diverge surplus grow and the plant is cut at the ground with a long knife.
Other crops mentioned were broccoli, strawberries, peas, beans and apple. Following the instruction period a method of harvesting was demonstrated in the form of a seven-inch square hole about 12 inches high with a handle at the top. This implement is placed over the top to remove the heavy leaves between with a single cut and the plant is cut at the ground with a long knife.
The fact that the plant was not completed it could possibly be damaged by such a large crowd to visit at this time but that they would be welcome in the near future.

Extension To Be Urged In Winter Works Plan

Advice that the winter works program will get underway this year on an annual basis by Oct. 30 has been received here by Welfare and Labor officials. In former years the program has run from Oct. 15 to April 30 and was subsequently extended to May 31.
Following the receipt of this information Premier Walter R. Shaw has suggested to federal labor minister MacEachern that for this province the winter works program should be extended, not shortened.
The federal government assumes 50 per cent of payroll costs on winter works projects, while the provincial government pays 50 per cent of costs.
The club leader, Mrs. John MacKie, was presented with a gift, in appreciation of her time and effort spent with the club. Presentation was made by Wendy Dingwall and Clara Macdonald. Two assistants were also presented with gifts.

New Sir Winston Proposal Has Constitutional Problem

By FRASER WIGHTMAN
LONDON (Reuters)—A new proposal to honor Sir Winston Churchill—now 80—has raised a constitutional problem for Britain's legislative experts.
Briefly, the proposition is that the veteran statesman and British Second World War leader who will not run again for Parliament at the next general election, should be made an honorary member of the House of Commons.
The idea has been brought to the notice of Prime Minister Macmillan. It is primarily a matter for the legislature—and politicians say it involves big snags.
These were pointed out in a newspaper article by former Labor prime minister Earl Ailes who said he had never heard "a more preposterous proposal".
Ailes said "it would yield to no one in supporting any reasonable proposition for doing honor to a great man, but as an old House of Commons man I should bitterly resent any proposal for diluting its membership by adding to it a person who is not a member of the House for a real constituency."
Politicians said this was the intrinsic weakness of the proposal. A basic concept of British democracy is that all members of the House of Commons—sovereign body of the legislature—must be the elected representatives of the people.
The protagonists of the idea—which include a Conservative Sunday newspaper—concede it would involve an important change in the constitution. This might consist of the creation of a special constituency—containing no voters and having no geographical area— which Churchill would technically "represent".
The argument is that as it would have no electors or voters, it would be disenfranchised and no one injured by the existence of such a "constituency".

TCA Aims To Keep Pressing For Lower Ocean Air Fares

MONTREAL (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines said Monday it intends to keep fighting for lower transatlantic air fares.
TCA issued a statement "to clarify our position" following the release of fare negotiations of the International Air Transport Association, took part in the fare discussions which are to resume Oct. 22.
TCA said it went to the conference proposing the lowest fares of any carrier. At the recess Friday, TCA proposals were still lower than any others put forward.
The Canadian carrier wanted the price of a one-way economy class ticket between Montreal and London cut to $189 in the off-season from the current fare of $287.10 year-round.

Montreal Woman Pays $3 Million For Riviera Villa

LONDON (CP)—A Montreal woman is reported to have paid $3,000,000 for a villa on the French Riviera once owned by King Leopold II of the Belgians. The Evening Standard says 64-year-old Mrs. Dorothy Killam, wealthy widow of Canadian financier Isaac Walton Killam, bought the property after weeks of negotiation. It formerly belonged to Gianni Agnelli of the Italian automobile company, Fiat.
The villa overlooking Beaulieu stands in 20 acres of ground. The Evening Standard says Mrs. Killam already has residences in Montreal, Nassau, New York and near New York. Her late husband, a native of Vermont, N.S., was president of the Royal Securities Corporation and a number of other companies.

Two Captured After Holdup

TRIOIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Provincial police captured two men and scored dense brushland for two others today after a man—wielding a handgun—robbed a suburban bank branch. No money and no guns were recovered in the car of the two men arrested.
Four hooded men smashed a plan and scored dense brushland for two others today after a man—wielding a handgun—robbed a suburban bank branch. No money and no guns were recovered in the car of the two men arrested.
They held employees at the bank with sub-machine guns while they cleaned out the deposits made in drop-in boxes at the bank since Friday.
The bandit's car was found near the dump. It bore stolen license plates, police said.
The men had been seen running across the dump to the shelter of thick brush, and police surrounded the area with patrol.
No one was injured in the swiftly-executed robbery.
