

3,000 VISITORS SEE H. M. C. S. ALGONQUIN

An estimated 3,000 persons inspected H.M.C.S. Algonquin during "open ship" on Sunday afternoon and kept crew members busy conducting groups about the ship and explaining the purposes of machinery and armament in various sections of the ship which were open to the public. In order to handle the crowds the visitors were admitted to the ship in groups as space on board permitted, and officers in charge later expressed appreciation of the way in which large numbers of people waited patiently on the pier for their turn to board the ship.

Pigeon Survives Ocean Adventure

MONTREAL (CP) — If Homer the homing pigeon was looking for shipboard romance, his strange Atlantic adventure was all in vain. But at least he's alive to coo about it. Homer arrived here Monday aboard the liner Ascania, on which he landed near mid-Atlantic Thursday, after flying many hundreds of miles over the sea. There was gossip that Homer had pursued his lady love, a Finnish female pigeon that was travelling with her owner to Canada aboard the Ascania. But the Finn fluttered in a cold, stand-off manner when the birds were brought together, and Homer went back to his barley and corn. Homer's only belongings were two bands on his legs, carrying the legends YA 725 and J. 6210 NURW. As he landed without the means to pay his westbound passage, he will be returned to England by the Ascania, possibly to take a few new lessons in "homing."

Egyptians Take Over Officially At Suez Canal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, proclaimed by mobs which tried to kiss him, raised the green flag of Egypt over the Suez canal zone Monday and formally took over guardianship of the 100-mile life-line between the East and West. Opening a national three-day celebration of departure of British troops after 73 years of occupation, Nasser was visibly moved as he uttered a prayer that "God may forbid any other flag flying over our land and sea." Russian-built MiG fighter planes streaked overhead and an Egyptian frigate boomed a 21-gun salute from the harbor as Nasser kissed the flag and hoisted it to its staff over Navy House. The last British forces, 11 officers and 80 men, withdrew last Wednesday in advance of the celebration. As Nasser led the celebration two warships, the Nasser and the Victorious, identified by Egyptian officials as "heavy Russian destroyers," paraded under Egyptian colors in Alexandri harbor. Presumably they were received as part of the cotton-for-arms deal concluded with Czechoslovakia last year. At the same time the Egyptian army for the first time unveiled anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns and mortars received in the arms deal.
