HINTS AND NEWS NOTES FOR CITY AND COUNTRY.

If You Desire First Quality Eggs You Must Feed Your Hens First Quality Food—On the Flavor of Butter

The Poultry World very truly says that the flavor of eggs depends very much on the kind of food given to the poultry. When hens are fed largely or almost exclusively on milk, the yolk is lighter in color, the white has a milky look and the whole egg is watery and less firm in texture than those laid by grain-fed hens. The taste of the egg is also effected, being insipid and unsatisfactory when boiled or poached, and less fine for ordinary cooking purposes even. There is no use in saying that the idea of the quality of eggs being influenced by the food of the hens is a mere whim; since it is a well-known fact that the eggs of fowls kept in the neighborhood of the sea, and fed almost entirely on fish—taken as they come, embracing the strong and oily, as well as the more delicate sorts—have "an ancient and fish-like" taste, if not "smell"; and eggs coming from these regions sell for less in the market, in some instances, than those coming from districts further inland.

The reasons why hens fed on "slops" of milk, etc., are able to give no better eggs to their owners is because the "old, old story" is repeated in their case. You demand the "tale of a brick" of your servants, but you give them no straw to make them with. Curd hardly comes under the head of milk, and there is little danger of having it in large quantities to offer to your fowls. It contains all the best and most nutritious portions of the milk without its objectionable, watery qualities. But the true feed for laying fowls is one third or one quarter Indian corn, ground or otherwise, and oats or wheat, together with milk or whatever scraps from the house are obtainable, and as much green vegetable food as they will eat, and with these combined and fed properly, your eggs will be of the true gold and silver stamp—when the cook's fire has refined them and prepared them as a relish for your breakfast table.

Flavor in Butter.

A Maine butter-maker writes The Practical Dairyman as follows: "The ideal of excellence in butter is flavor. No matter how high the scale on other points, if off in flavor there is no provision of grace to save it—coming short of glory on that point, as well guilty of all. The ideal of flavor in butter is subject to several conditions; the food the cow eats, the water she drinks, environment of the cow, environment of the milk and cream before churning the latter, and handling the cream and churning; all these have more or less bearing on the one characteristic—flavor. The scale of points adopted in expert judging of butter is classified thus: Flavor, 40 points; make, 20; solidity, 12; grain, 12; color, 8; moisture, 8; perfection, 100; two-fifths of the whole placed upon flavor, thus showing the importance of this one flavor in a fastidious market. This is all very well, but what practical bearing has it in enlightening the man who feeds and cares for the cows, and handles the milk and cream, whether to be churned on his own premises or pooled at the creamery? He knows, if he thinks about it at all, that flavor has the emphasis of 40 points, while no other quality has over half as many. It is doubtful if one patron in 50 of the creameries whose product scales high in competition with others, but fell off more or less points in flavor, ever indulges in lingering thought that he is responsible for the delinquency. If we scrutinize the reports of experts who judge the butter at our fairs and dairy meetings, we find that it is seldom perfection is marked against flavor. I have in mind a butter exhibit where many samples were offered in competition, both creamery and private dairy. The highest scale of each was 98 points, both two points off in flavor. Several others were perfect on all points, but off from three to six points in flavor. These facts are significant and should lead dairymen and farmers to investigation and self-examination, to find at whose doors the delinquency lies. I have no hesitancy in saying, however, that nine times out of ten the farmer is at fault. I have enumerated the causes for off flavor in butter, but one of these towers as high above all the others in point of badness as the sun excels the moon in brightness. And that is the 'environment of the cow,' the condition in which she is kept. Were I to classify the causes generally accredited to off flavor in butter it would be thus: Environment, 50 points; feed, 20; water, 10; care of milk and cream, 10; handling, 5; churning, 5. There are several things which make it impossible to accomplish in this world, one to make butter that will score 40 points on flavor from cream produced from cows kept in the condition we find them on 75 per cent. of the farms throughout the dairy districts; and another great impossibility is to arouse the average dairymen and farmers to a realizing sense of their opportunities and get them to sheer out of the old ruts their ancestors have worn so deep.

Farm Notes.

Select the best ears of corn for seed. Do not remove the husks if it can be avoided, but fasten the ears together in bunches and hang up in a dry place so as to protect from mice. Dampness is injurious to seed corn, and the ears saved for seed should be thoroughly dry before storing.

It costs something to grind the corn for hogs, but if the corn is soaked before feeding it will be more highly relished by hogs, and be in the best condition for them.

The farmers who complain that sheep do not pay are wool growers. When the farmer makes a specialty of mutton sheep they always give good returns.

Public tests bring out the actual work of a cow. Among the Jerseys at the World's Fair is "Little Goldie," who is claimed to have made 34 pounds 8½ ounces of butter at home, but the best she can do at Chicago is 14 pounds in one week. The test at Chicago is playing havoc with private records.

Extend the first milking period of the heifer as far as possible, as the first season will largely affect her future usefulness as a milker.

A Great Society Girl.

Hattie—Is Miss Greatleigh much of a society girl?

Carrie—I should say so. She weighs 200 pounds.

Deservedly Popular.

Our readers have no doubt read with interest the despatches almost weekly appearing in this and other Canadian journals regarding cures of a most startling nature made by Dodd's Kidney Pills. These pills have proven themselves to be a certain cure for all diseases of the kidneys and blood, such as backache, rheumatism, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, etc.

Enquiry amongst local druggists elicits the facts that they have a very large sale and are an infallible cure for kidney disorders.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold everywhere, or by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50.

He Was Convinced.

A man in Nova Scotia was in doubt as to the genuineness of the reported cure of Mrs. Bernard Maguire and ex-Counsellor Lingley, of Petersville, Queen's Co., by a course of Hawker's Nerve and Stomach Tonic and Hawker's Liver Pills. He wrote to Squire Lingley, and that gentle man promptly assured him that the testimonials were genuine.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great Blood and Nerve Remedy.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Only a short time remains in which to visit the world's fair. It has been a far greater success financially than had been anticipated in the early summer. So far as the show itself is concerned, all visitors agree in describing it as marvellous; and when its variety, volume and significance are considered, even this term seems inadequate. When one pauses to think that but a few years ago the very site of the city of Chicago was a wilderness, and that to-day there are gathered within her borders the representatives and the products of the skill of all nations of the earth, a conception of the rate at which the world is progressing dawns upon and almost bewilders the mind. There have been many provincial visitors to the Fair, and many more will register there before its close. The city of Chicago is in itself a wonder world to the visitor, in its vastness and variety. In careful study of its people and the climatic effects, nothing is more noticeable than the prevalence of catarrh. It is a peculiarity resulting from the climate, and is noted by the medical authorities. Unfortunately this annoying and debilitating disease is not confined to Chicago. There are numerous cases of catarrh in the Lower Provinces. It is therefore of the greatest importance that a remedy which has proved its ability to cure the most obstinate cases should be brought into general use. This remedy is Hawker's Catarrh Cure, the most effective in curative power of any before the public to-day. The Hawker Medicine Co. can furnish testimonials and references regarding Hawker's Catarrh Cure that no reader of this paper will for a moment question. Capt. S. F. Belyea, of Greenwich, King's Co., N. B., under date of Oct. 6th, writes to the company that an aggravated form of catarrh had in his case closed the nasal passages so that he could scarcely breathe, had induced serious deafness and caused him great pain and trouble. He tried many remedies, but all failed until he got Hawker's Catarrh Cure, three 25 cent packages of which affected a cure. "I can honestly say," writes Capt. Belyea. "that I am practically well, and I take great pleasure in recommending Hawker's Catarrh Cure to those who may be suffering from this very troublesome disease."
