A PECULIAR CUSTOM.

THE HIGHEST DECORATION OF A CARIB BELLE.

The Strangest and Possibly the Most Cruel Feminine Adornment in the World is the Garter of the Guianans of South America—Proud of Their "Sapuru."

Probably the strangest feminine adornment in the world is the garter of the Guianans of South America. The Caribs are one of the five tribes inhabiting that country, and are a fine race of people. The women are intelligent and uncomely. They wear very little clothing, and so, as is usual in such cases, they devote great pains to what they consider the highest decoration of their bodies and limbs. The garter, or sapuru as they call it, is an ornament that can well be entered into a competition for ugliness with the compressed foot of China, or the wasp-like waist of a society belle. While the Carib girl is still young and her limbs have not attained their full development, a band of rattan is bound tightly just under the knee, and another is similarly placed just above the ankle. To give them an ornamental appearance they are dyed with a bright red dye obtained from berries, but they are, in fact, an instrument of torture beside which tight shoes pale in envy, and a twisted hairpin becomes a luxury. Deprived of its natural powers of extension, the limb has to expand as it can, and the consequence is that it is obliged to develop itself in the comparatively narrow space between the two bandages. To obtain a correct idea of the accurate shape of the leg of a Carib belle, when the sapuru is completed, take an ordinary broomstick, eighteen inches long, and push it through the middle of a small Stilton cheese. The cylindric shape of the cheese represents the shapeless calf of the leg, and the broomstick the attenuated part immediately above and below, where the bandages have cut and compressed the flesh. Wrap the stick round with red bandages, and trace blue varicose veins on the cheese, and the semblance is complete. The Carib women are inordinately fond of the sapuru, and those who do not wear it are treated with even greater scorn and contumely by her own sex than is the Chinese woman who does not wear the "golden lilies."—Household.

Wives and Mothers-in-Law.

The blame for so much of the misunderstanding which exists between wives and the mothers of their husbands cannot be justly placed upon the mothers any more than it can upon the daughters. I fancy that in most cases "honors are easy." Concessions come as hard to the one as to the other, and yet in their hearts both desire to meet on equal terms. Things seem not exactly to come together. And as "Meerschaum paid the freight" in Eugene Field's Horatian ode, so the husband stands the blows, and is asked to decide between his mother and his wife—in every respect the most trying position in which a man can be placed. I am inclined to believe one cause of discontent finds its roots in the unwillingness that is often present on the part of the mother to accept the daughter. Of course, mothers will differ with me in this statement. But it must not be forgotten that where the encouragement is not held out by the elder, the response cannot come from the younger. The happiest instance that I know where a wife loves her husband's mother almost as fondly as she does her own, is one where the mother unreservedly received the daughter into her life at the very start, and made her a part of herself. I fancy it is in this, as in a great many things in this world: much depends upon how we begin. But no matter what the relation or the cause of other feelings than those of true affection, there should never be any other attitude on the part of a wife toward her husband's mother, or from the husband to the wife's mother, than that which youth owes to maturity: a respectful deference.

No Longer a Mere Plaything.

The bicycle, to sum the thing up, is no longer a plaything or a luxury. It has become a necessity. Where the roads are good it assures rapid transportation at a minimum outlay of physical exertion. It is easier to propel a wheel than to govern a spirited horse—to say nothing of the healthfulness of the exercise. Is it any wonder, therefore, that young and old, men and women, take kindly to the sport? I know one lively gentleman of sixty, who, whenever the weather permits, rides from his suburban home to his office in the morning and rides back in the evening—nearly twenty miles a day. Of course he is an exception; but his remarkable vim and energy show what a person imbued with the bicycle fever can and will do. The exercise has not only benefited his health, but is giving him real enjoyment which robs routine duty of some of its wearisome features.

He Got Even.

The melodrama proceeded in its cyclonic course, and the villain had taken violent measures for three acts to dispose of the hero, only to be confronted and discomfited by that mirror of virtue whenever the curtain rose. Although built on the good old plan, it was a bad play and worse players.

Finally one man, whose countenance grew sadder with each passing moment, turned to the auditor on his left and remarked, "Bad play, eh?"

"Yes, sir," returned the other, forcibly, chuckling at the same time at some bon mot of ancient Rome.

"But you seem to enjoy it," objected the sad man.

"Well," was the answer, "I do—because I know I'm getting my money's worth. It's a bad play, as you remark, but (with a chuckle) I gave a bad half-dollar at the box-office for my seat."

An Eastern Diamond.

The traditional diamond of the East is the Great Mogul. The original weight was 787 carats, and it disappeared in the last Tartar invasion, when treasures to the amount of $350,000,000 were captured by Nadir Shah. The Shah of Persia has in his treasure room jewels valued at $40,000,000. His crown contains a mass of diamonds surmounted by a ruby as big as a hen's egg. His royal belt weighs 20 pounds, and is a solid mass of diamonds, rubies and emeralds. When the Shah was in Europe he wore a variety of diamonds and gems, the smallest of which would have been a fortune to the lucky possessor. The buttons of his coat were five in number, and each button was a diamond larger than the kohinoor.

Luck in the Number.

Spencer—I saw a man pay $36 in cash for a silver dollar the other day.

Ferguson—Some old coin collector, I suppose.

Spencer—No; a man who kept a roulette table.

In the Spring

Nearly everybody needs a good medicine. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood durin the cold months must be expelled, or when the mild days come, and the effect of bracing air is lost, the body is liable to be overcome by debility or some serious disease. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a trial. We are sure it will do you good. Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people. They tell the story. .....

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified by pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Have the early frosts or too late a lingering by the garden gate again aroused that RHEUMATISM so peacefully slumbering the summer long? It will certainly be much relieved. Now that you have the POND'S EXTRACT try it for any of the many things its buff wrapper mentions. It's a wonderful curative. But don't accept substitutes.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ar

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

AFTER TYPHOID FEVER.

Harvey Neff has Kidney Disease, which Doctors could not cure—Dodd's Kidney Pills Restored him to Perfect Health.

Port Colborne, April 9—In March, 1893, Harvey H. Neff of this place had a bad attack of typhoid fever. Good nursing and medical attendance brought him round but the attack left him a victim of kidney disease. This the doctors failed to cure, but Dodd's Kidney Pills, the infalliable remedy, did the same good work in this case as in all others and Mr. Neff is well to-day. Dodd's was the first kidney remedy in pill form ever offered the public. Its wonderful curing in all forms of kidney disease has led to the introduction of numerous cheap and worthless imitations. Purchasers, for their own safety, should insist in getting Dodd's Kidney Pills. Sold in large boxes: price fifty cents or six boxes for $2.50. To be had of all dealers. .....

A Tale of the Sea.

"While we were in South American waters" said Capt. Brooks, of the bark "Douglas," my second mate went in bathing. He was afterwards seized with violent cramps and vomiting and we feared he would not recover. I gave him a "dose of Dr. Manning's German Remedy, and to our delight it gave him instant relief." "On another occasion," continued the captain "one of my crew had such a lame back that he could not stand up. Two free rubbing with Dr. Manning's German Remedy cured him. I consider it to be invaluable to a shipmaster and would not be without it if obtainable." This valuable remedy is manufactured by the Hawker Medicine Co., St. John, N. B., and is for sale by all druggists and dealers. Price 50 cts.
