CONTRACT BRIDGE By B. JAY BECKER

During the play period, when silence is the order of the day, only the cards themselves can be eloquent in the exchange of information between the defending pair. The defenders can speak their piece effectively in many ways. Conventions that have been employed over the years often help greatly in solving defensive problems which the common sense of a situation could not. A choice of plays which appears to be only guesswork can many times be successfully worked out in a sensitive partnership. The report which should exist between partners can save many points that might otherwise be lost. Here is a simple example of partnership cooperation where all that is required is the proper use and interpretation of a convention introduced a quarter century ago. West opens his singleton club which East winds with the ace to return the deuce. West ruffs. If he returns a diamond, the contract is defeated because he obtains another club ruff, but if West returns a spade, declarer makes the contract. The convention to guide West in such a position is simple enough. All that is required is that both defenders be familiar with it. Since East can choose any club to return for the hoped-for ruff, he selects the one to play which will indicate the suit he wants returned. The return of a low club indicates East wants the lower-ranking of the two side suits, diamond and spades, returned. Hence, the deuce is led, asking for a diamond lead back when West ruffs. If East's entry card were the ace of spades, he would return the ten of clubs, asking for spades the higher-ranking suit. High-high: low-low.
