

Keep in mind that Scott's Emulsion contains the hypophosphites.

These alone make it of great value for all affections of the nervous system.

It also contains glycerine, a most valuable, soothing and healing agent. Then there is the cod-liver oil, acknowledged by all physicians as the best remedy for poor blood and loss in weight.

These three great remedial agents blended into a creamy Emulsion, make a remarkable tissue builder.

The Transvaal War

Wireless Telegraphy for Boers.

A despatch to the London Daily Mail from Cape Town, dated November 9, says that a complete wireless telegraphic apparatus has been seized on a vessel there. The vessel was bound for Delagoa Bay, and the apparatus was obviously intended for the use of the Transvaal Government. Suspicion in regard to the package was aroused by the anxiety exhibited by a Boer sympathiser as to its immediate transmission. But for his official connection with a certain European Government, this individual would have been arrested.

Britain's Interests and Duties.

"All successful industry breeds commerce, and all commerce has produced is to the advantage of England; and all industries and commerce flourish better under her good government than under any other regime in the world.

"But that is the limit of our interest. What we desire is equal rights for all men of all races and security for our fellow-subjects and our Empire.

"The hour for asking by what means these results can be obtained is not yet come; but these are the objects, and the only objects, we seek.

"We do not allow any other consideration to cross our path.

Whenever we are victorious we shall consult the vast interests committed to our care.

"Vast duties lie upon us to perform and taking counsel of the uniform interests of our Colonial Government, and of moderation and equal justice to all races of men, which has been our uniform practice to observe I do, not doubt we shall so arrange that the issue of this conflict will confer good government upon the district where it rages, and give the security sorely needed against the recurrence of any such dangers and the necessity of any such future exertions, and for the restoration of peace and civilization to that portion of the world."—Lord Salisbury, at the Guildhall, Nov. 9th.

Good fragments of the shells with which the Boers are bombarding the principal damage reported as the result of a day's shelling is said to be the smashing of a cooking pot. It is possible, therefore, that the situation is thus fairly described. Experience shows that the most terrible thing about a bombardment is usually the noise it makes.

Gen. Sir Charles Warren has been appointed chief of the 11th infantry division, ordered to Cape Colony. He has seen considerable service in South Africa. The appointment is heartily approved on all sides. Sir Charles Warren was born in 1840, and entered the Royal Engineers in 1857. He has had an extensive South African experience, having served in the Kaffir and Griqualand wars of 1877-78, commanded troops in the Northern Border Expedition, 1879, and also the special expedition to Bechuanaland in 1884-85. He is well known in London where for two years, 1886-88, he was chief commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

It turns out that in connection with the arrangements for sending the Canadian contingent to South Africa no provision was made for the transport wagons; none being taken on the Sarindian. Some military authorities are puzzled to learn whether this omission was designed. The feeling prevails that it would have been better had the Dominion government sent transport wagons with the regiment. It is just possible that a supply will be available on arrival at Cape Town or Durban, but then, on the other hand, it is feared there may not be sufficient for use of the Canadians. The only result can be then that the Canadian contingent will reach some terminal point on a railway and be stuck there unable to move.

The Black Danger

The dread of a native uprising hangs over the councils of both white Governments presently engaged in war with each other in a corner of what is still "the black man's continent." The whites, when united, are but a handful in the midst of a vast native population; and, as is the case everywhere in the world, the native leaders keep alive a spirit of independence among their people. It may be bad for the natives as a whole to have the management of their own government but is usually far better for the "leaders" according to their notion of what constitutes a "better" regime. They like it better at all events.

When the whites are united, they have learned well the folly of attempting to regain their ancient sovereignty. But when they are divided and when the issue of the conflict seems doubtful, what is more natural than that the natives should easily imagine that they could intervene and decide the contest? If the Dutch Boers did not know enough of the enormous reserve power of the British Empire to understand the hopeless character of their challenge to Britain, is it likely that the blacks would understand that one of the white combatants could pour in men and guns from over seas until both Boer and native were beaten down? Then they are moved by savage love of a fight. It is their instinct to war as it is our's to keep the peace; and the sight of marching men and the sound of battle must act upon their blood much as the war bugle does upon the horse which it has summoned again and again to the charge.

In this peril that keeps British police in garrisons all through the native country when they might be well used just now at half a dozen besieged points. Nor is the Boer likely to involve the aid of a native. The danger is too great. It is not only the Boer who would inevitably introduce into the conflict methods of warfare not contemplated by the Geneva Convention; but they might—like our own civilized pugilists—want to try conclusions with the winner, in which case Britain would have a larger problem on her hands than Oom Paul has presented her with. Any news that the blacks are beginning to take a hand in the "unpleasantness" cannot be read without apprehension. Rumors of native forces fighting on the Boer side have been received, but it is probably wise to regard such reports with suspicion until fully confirmed—Montreal Star.

PRISONER RELEASED.

Victim of Kidney Disease Escapes From its Clutches by Means of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Sharbot Lake, Nov. 6.—Twenty years ago this month, John Nicholas Babcock first noticed the symptoms of Gravel and other Kidney troubles. Since that day he has never been free from pain until immediately previous to the report of his complete cure which appeared recently. He has been like a prisoner sentenced for life but his sentence has been up to-day.

He says: "After twenty years of pain caused by Gravel and other kidney trouble, I am pleased to make it known that I have been completely cured by one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. During these years I have spent hundreds of dollars without receiving any lasting relief."
