END OF A CAMPAIGN.

By MATT CRIM. Copyright, 1895. CHAPTER II.

Jasper Noel did not suit Barbara exactly, even more perfectly than she had even fancied any man could. He was frank and simple in manner and open of speech, but had a strong will, and Barbara loved a strong will. Then he also had that quality which is apt to accompany the aristocratic temperament. His admiration for women was of the idealistic sort, tenderly chivalrous and reverential. Barbara laughed to herself over his unworshipful faith, while the sensation of tears stung her eyes. She saw that his worldly experience had not been excessively broad or else that he had passed along with eyes closed to the selfishness and folly of her set. He painted well, surprisingly well for a young man of such great expectations, and devoted himself assiduously to work. This also appealed to her. "He will be great as well as rich, and he is so lovable, so lovable," she acknowledged to herself.

She had always expected to be interested in the personality of the man she married, but not to the extent that Noel absorbed her. He was almost alarming. "I think about him every minute of the day," she thought. "I'm sure I love him."

She rested her chin on her hands and mused awhile. Why should her heart beat so fast and every time she recalled a tender glance or a whispered word of his? He never had made love to her as other men, why should she blush and palpitate? "Well, positively this is the first love I have ever known in my life. I feel so different, so very different."

She began walking the floor of her little room with a restlessness that would have astonished Mrs. Waring, should she have been a spectator. "Yet they say that's always the way," she continued muttering to herself. "One reads about it until one is nearly crazy, and then it comes just the same, and it is always new."

The deep disquiet of her soul bewildered her. There were some trinkets on her bureau and she arranged and rearranged these, scanning the effect each time, as though the result were a matter of grave moment. But her thoughts were of the white busy work of other things. Finally obeying an impulse she put on her best walking gown and set forth for Noel's studio, but this was the first time she had ever gone alone, and she wondered now what her mother would say. But she must see him, analyze him in the light of this new revelation, if she couldn't analyze herself. She knew that it was his working hour, so she opened the door and walked in.

He was painting away with all fervor, with a dirty heavy-mouthed drop-eyed child before him as a model. "Why, Miss Waring," he cried delightedly, "I'm so glad you've come to-day. I've been wishing all morning that you could be here. I wanted you to see this new model of mine. It's a wild, wild tangle in her hair, and what long eyelashes she has. I found her on the street and asked her to come up with me. She makes a fine study in color with that yellow drapery behind her."

Barbara was not artistic enough to easily reflect his enthusiasm, yet the picturesqueness of the child was not entirely lost upon her. "She is very good," she agreed, absently, and now that she stood in his presence wished that she had not come. "Please come with your work," he begged after a moment. "I shall feel sorry if you don't, and talk to me about your model. Where did you find her?"

"On that street. Do sit here on this chair where I can see you, too, if I am to work while you are here."

But she was too restless, uneasy over the boldness of her seat, to sit down. She continued to walk around looking at sketches and odds and ends of drawing. Noel's eyes followed all her movements and his interest in his work flagged. When Barbara saw the little model standing so softly away, some shining coins in her dirty little hand, she felt that she too must go.

Medical Testimony

During half a century proves Cod Liver Oil to be the most necessary thing to take for consumption. But the trouble has been its improper methods of preparation for infants. Mr. Waring's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the only reliable formula on the market.

FROM ALL POINTS OF THE COMPASS. Canada's Fiscal Policy Defended.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Standard this morning says that Sir Charles Tupper, speaking at Newcastle-on-Tyne yesterday, defended the fiscal policy adopted by Canada in her relations with England. He contended that Canada's system of incidental protection are immediately increasing instead of decreasing her trade with Great Britain. England, he said, was the only country which, in respect to trade, treated her colonies as foreigners, and he expressed his regret that the subject should be dealt with in a manner likely to prove to the advantage of both England and her colonies.

THE DEAD RAISED UP. A Former Resident thought to be Dying of Bright's Disease—Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

LONDON, (Special) Nov. 25.—A despatch reaching here relating to the recovery in Neepawa, Man., of Mrs. T. H. McKee formerly living here was a surprise to her friends and acquaintance. She was met by doubt, however, until confirmed by a report from Neepawa. Her case was well known here as this lady was treated by several of the local doctors for Bright's disease and her friends thought, as did her physicians, that her case was hopeless, and it was as a last resort that she left here to try climatic change. That Mrs. McKee was cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills in a few weeks, speaks volumes in their favor.

Bad Blood Between Them. The ever-slaving farmer's wife, her delicate sister in the city, suffer more than they care to tell. The dark rings round her eyes, headaches, dizziness, palpitation or rheumatic twinges, broken a run-down system. This is not poor, but a bar to enjoyment of life. Scott's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, strengthens and vitalizes the system, and speedily restores the bloom of health to the cheeks. It cures when all others fail.

Mr. F. A. Rowe, of East Conant, O., grew 62 tons of pumpkins on three acres, the sum realized being $128. It took three teams and five men three days to deliver them at the Canning factory, netting Mr. Rowe about $150.

For Nervous Prostration and Anemia there is no medicine that will so promptly and infallibly restore vigor and strength as Scott's Emulsion.

Cured Weak Back for 25 Cents. For two years I was doled, pilled and plastered for weak back, scalding urine and constipation, without benefit. One box of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills relieved, three boxes cured. R. J. Smith, Toronto. One pill a dose, price 25 cents.

Remarkable Cure—J. W. Jennison, Gifford, spent between $200 and $300 in consulting doctors, tried "Dixon's" and all other treatments, but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies; in fact, I consider myself cured, and with a 25-cent box at that.

The great success of the chocolate preparations of the house of Walter Baker & Co.
