

PRIZE-WINNING CENTENNIAL PHOTOGRAPH

Guardian-Patriot Staffer Wins Top Photo Award

Bill Taylor, staff photographer with The Guardian-Patriot, has won first prize in the Centennial Photo Competition.

The winning photograph was one of Prime Minister L. B. Pearson and Premier Jean Lesage, taken shortly before the premier's conference last year.

Winner in the folio competition was a collection of about 50 photos illustrating all phases of the Centennial Year celebrations, a joint entry by Mr. Taylor and Gordon White, deputy minister of highways.

Frances Davies, ARPS, of Charlottetown, with a dramatic study of the Ladies of Confederation in their century-old costumes, won first prize in the individual photos competition.

COLOR SLIDE COLLECTION

The prize for the best collection of color slides during the year-long celebrations was awarded to Mr. White. Additional prizes were for the best slide submitted. This also was awarded to Mr. White and was a photo in color of one of the floats in a parade. The young couple in the float were dressed in 1864 costumes and it was beautiful composition and color. It was taken during the Gold Cup and Saucer Parade passing North River Road last August during Old Home Week.

The judges for the competition were John Paterson, Public Relations Director of Confederation Centre, chairman; Roly Taylor, jeweller and president of the Charlottetown Camera Club, and Lawson Drake, professor of physics at Prince of Wales College.

The official prizes were awarded as follows:

Best collection of black and white photos in a folio of not less than 25 photos to Gordon White and Bill Taylor — $150; best individual photo in a folio to Messrs White and Taylor, $75; best collection of color slides to Gordon White, $100; best individual slide in color, Mr. White, $25; best individual black and white photo not in a folio, Frances Davies, ARPS, $50.

The prize-winning folio and photos will be hung in the Confederation Centre Library.

Mrs. Gordon MacDonald of Charlottetown was chairman of the Centennial Photo Competition, conducted under the auspices of the Agricultural and Community Affairs Committee headed by Lincoln Dewar of New Perth.

Registration Case Adjourned

Charged with failing to register a motor vehicle in this province while having gained employment here—Lawrence O. Smith of Charlottetown and Monton had his case adjourned to May 12 in city police court.

Acting magistrate was G. R. Foster, QC.

There were four cases of drunk and incapable. One of the accused was fined $20 and costs or 10 days, two were fined $5 and costs or two days and the other accused was given a 20-day suspended sentence.

BEST KIT

Ordinary Seaman Gordon H. Morrell, son of Mrs. Gertrude Morrell, Alberton, has won the Best Kit award on graduation from a 15-week new-entry training course at HMCS Cornwallis, N.S. Ord. Sea. Morrell was born in Alberton in October, 1944 and attended Alberton High School prior to being enrolled into the Navy in December, 1964 by the RCN Recruiting Officer at Charlottetown (Canadian Forces Photo).

Coady Students Visit May 17

Visiting the province the week of May 17 will be 13 students attending the Coady International Institute of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S.

The group will be accompanied by a member of the institute faculty, John Chisholm.

While in the province, the group will examine the workings of the federal provincial agricultural rehabilitation and development program, visit government departments and universities of the province and take a general look at the Prince Edward Island economy.

Kensington Assessment Up 10 P.C.

KENSINGTON — Town council recommended an approximate increase of 10 per cent in real estate assessments Monday night at the regular council meeting.

Coun Charles Bearstoe gave notice of motion of an amendment to the assessments by-law. A motion authorizing payment of bills amounting to $785 was passed.

Mayor Everett Champion announced the sidewalks on Margate Road were to be started soon.

Resolutions were passed granting permits to Texaco Oil Co. to erect a filling station and to the Royal Canadian Legion for alterations on its building.

It was decided to ask Oliver Profit and police officer Vernon Reeves to measure sidewalks on the Summerside road.

5 Island Air Cadets Win Training Awards

SUMMERSIDE — Special training awards to be provided this summer by the Cadet League of Canada and the RCAF have been won by five Island youths.

The Islanders were among 550 top Air Cadets across Canada to merit the awards.

Roxburgh Wand of Summerside's 53 squadron will go on an exchange visit to the United States while John Newsom, O'Neill of Charlottetown and Christopher G. Thomas of Summerside will go on senior leaders course. James Leslie Stright, and James W. Reynolds of Summerside have been awarded flying training scholarships.

Chosen as outstanding representatives of the 28,000 Air Cadets presently serving in 368 squadrons across Canada, the award-winning youngsters have qualified for pilots courses, leadership training, and good-will exchange trips to the United States, United Kingdom and 10 other European countries.

Due to their exceptional records as Air Cadets, this year's winners have successfully passed through Joint League and RCAF selection committees at local, provincial and national levels.

The most sought after award as far as air cadets are concerned is the League's goodwill "exchange visits" project, involving educational trips to 12 different countries. Fifteen cadets will tour the United States, another party of 25 will holiday in Great Britain, and 10 parties of two cadets each will travel to Norway, Sweden, Holland, Denmark, France, Belgium, West Germany, Israel, Turkey and Switzerland.

Equally important to Air Cadets is the award of an RCAF flying scholarship covering 35 hours of pilot training at a civilian flying club or school. The five weeks' course, commencing during the early part of July leads to the award of Air Cadet "wings" as well as private pilot licenses for successful graduates.

The RCAF scheme will be supplemented by the granting of a large number of private scholarships raised through civilian sponsoring committees of the League.

Another 240 cadets, also representing all parts of Canada, will soon receive orders to report to RCAF Station Camp, Borden early in July to commence seven weeks of leadership training aimed at providing a pool of potential officers and instructors for the Air Cadet squadrons.

Legion Branch At Montague Welcomes 9 New Members

MONTAGUE — Nine veterans were accepted as members of the Royal Canadian Legion at the Montague branch meeting in the Legion Home recently.

President L. H. Martin welcomed the new members and expressed the hope that they would avail themselves of the comradeship and unity found in this organization and accept the challenges of service to their fellow men and the community offered in Legion work at the branch level.

A good attendance was present and a lively discussion occurred on a number of important items of business which came before the meeting.

A committee chaired by A. F. Campbell as co-ordinator, and consisting of Bob Simmons, William Rebout and James MacNeil was appointed to inspect in track and field activities for the youth of the area when the season begins.

Discussion took place on the advisability of submitting an application for one member to attend a number of Provinces at a coaches clinic in Ormoco, which is being held at Ormoco in June and the matter was referred to the executive for a decision in consultation with the committee.

Albert Ellsworth was appointed chairman of the committee representing the Legion on the Strawberry Festival Committee.

A substantial donation to the new home from a New Brunswick firm was announced by President Martin, who expressed the appreciation of all members for the fine support given to the branch by this firm in the past, especially in the promotion of sports in general and curling in particular.

storm in the Commons Monday with Mr. Diefenbaker demanding that the government name and possibly prosecute Canadians guilty of "selling out their country."

It was in response to the previous day's demands that Mr. Pearson offered his statement Tuesday.

SPENT MONEY

He said the "thousands of dollars" involved had been paid to the two Canadians in relatively small amounts and over a "considerable period of time." The money apparently was to be used in obtaining information from other sources.

One Canadian, co-operating with security officials, received the money and spent it with official approval on such items

30 Bibles Dedicated At Keir Mem.

Rev. G.R. Tannahill conducted a dedication service Sunday at Keir Memorial Presbyterian Church, when 30 Bibles were dedicated in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacNutt and presented by members of their family.

Also presented in their memory was a Bible given by niece, Mary A. MacNutt, and six Bibles by a son, G.R. MacNutt, through the Protestant Family Service Bureau.

All Bibles were presented for dedication by Frank L. MacNutt.

The dedication was part of a Christian Family Service at the church. Sunday School pupils made up the choir and assisted with various parts of the service. Mrs. Roy Easter was organist.

Among those taking part were Norma Craig, Barbara MacNutt, John MacGougan, Joan Champion, Beverly Champion, Kenneth Hickey and Floyd Wall.

The prime minister said the espionage plot had been caught through information given by the co-operative Canadians and from "other sources" which could not be disclosed for security reasons. This had allowed the RCMP to quell any security threat "but the investigation is continuing."

GIVES OBJECTIVES

Mr. Pearson said the government decision to expel Bychkov and Poluchin had three basic objectives:

1. To bring to an end activity "clearly prejudicial to Canadian interests."
2. To make clear to the Soviet government that such action by "so-called diplomatic staff" will not be countenanced by this country.
3. To serve as a warning to Canadian citizens to be on guard against such attempts and, if confronted with them, to report them to security officials.

These three objectives have been met," the prime minister said.

Mr. Pearson said Saturday's statement by the external affairs department went unusually far in revealing details of the espionage plot.

In some previous cases "no information at all was disclosed," he said. It was this remark that led to disclosure of the previously unannounced expulsions in 1959 and 1960.

Mr. Diefenbaker, calling for a royal commission, said the information given by the prime minister did not add much to what already was made known by the external affairs department last Saturday.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a royal commission would have at its disposal the knowledge of Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, who served on the royal commission which looked into the Soviet spy ring operating here in the 1940s.

He also suggested that Supreme Court Justices J. R. Cartwright and Gerald Fauteux could be of great help.

REALIZE DIFFICULTY

Mr. Diefenbaker said the press release baring the activities of the two Russian diplomats expelled last week was "not very happily worded." As a former prime minister he realized the difficulty Mr. Pearson had in giving out information.

But it was important to know whether the two Canadians had received any money before going to the RCMP with their information. The press release was open to the interpretation that two Canadians had helped

Missing Fishermen Find Own Way Home

ALBERTON — Two Alberta lobster fishermen, Wilson and John Wells, were the subject of some concern yesterday when they failed to return from a trip to the fishing grounds Monday.

The men, who are brothers, were setting traps off Kildare Capes when the rudder broke on their 30-foot boat, but they managed to make their way back to the mouth of the Kildare River where they grounded — on the flats shortly before darkness set in.

During the night they managed to make their way ashore on the Kildare sandbars just across the harbor from Alberton light-house where they took shelter in a shooting blind, equipped with a wood stove. They spent a comfortable night in the blind unaware that a search was being organized to look for them.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning they poled their boat across the Kildare gully to Leavitt's Shore about a mile from Alberton from where they walked to their truck near Kildare bridge and drove home, much to the relief of their families.

that the case was not brought to his attention until the decision had been made to have the two Russians kicked out of Canada.

The Opposition Leader then asked who would make the decision whether to prosecute the civil servant.

It would be made by the cabinet on the advice of the justice minister, Mr. Pearson replied.

APPROACHED TWO

He later told Mr. Douglas that none of the others who co-operated in the case had been in immediate contact with the Russians. Only the two men were directly approached.

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC — Royal) said the original announcement had referred to one of the men as a naturalized Canadian. Wouldn't it have been better to have described him merely as a citizen?

Mr. Pearson said the object was to emphasize that Canadians born in other countries, particularly behind the Iron Curtain with relatives there, were "particularly vulnerable" to Soviet agents.

The junior civil servant—the other Canadian involved was the naturalized citizen—not in the government service—"is very, very ill," Mr. Pearson added. His illness, in fact, had hampered the RCMP in their attempts to "press" him for information.

Asked by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) whether the illness was natural or "self-imposed," Mr. Pearson replied it was natural.
