Stresses Farm Problems At Union Annual Dinner

More than 140 members, their wives and guests sat down to the tenth annual dinner of Local 282, U.P.W.A. at Holy Redeemer Community Centre Saturday night. The function was presided over by Leo Dowling, with W.R. Shaw as guest speaker.

"Agriculture is keeping you going", Mr. Shaw said in his opening remarks to the group who are employed at Canada Packers, "and I am deeply concerned over the situation in which the Island farmers find themselves." Quoting figures with which he is familiar, Mr. Shaw stated that between 1941 and 1951, 2,000 farms had ceased to function on the Island and between 1951 and 1956 almost one thousand more had been withdrawn from production."

"The youth of the province, our very best production, are getting out in an endeavour to better their situation, leaving those in the 10-15 year bracket to carry on with the old people", Mr. Shaw said. "Agriculture is the stabilizing factor with us and the big problem of it's continued activity is a problem which has not yet been decided. Every province in Canada shows a substantial gain in population while the Island remains dormant in this respect."

COOPERATION NEEDED

Mr. Shaw stressed the need of organization among the farmers and closer cooperation between farm and labour. "We need organization on the farm just as you need it in labouring classes. We know how it has improved your status and we should get together so that a wider and deeper flow of money, between many rather than a few, will improve the economy of the province", he said.

"Working together in the single purpose to build up the country, without jealousy, every one of us can benefit by the increase of money, bringing a social and economical upsurge to place us in a more suitable situation in comparison with other provinces." Mr. Shaw said.

"No individual organization can live to itself. To solve this problem for the common good and improved standards of living, there must be a sincere attempt made by agriculture, labour and management to meet and overcome all obstacles". Mr. Shaw concluded.

President Murphy expressed the thanks of the membership for the address of Mr. Shaw and other speakers. He strongly endorsed the suggestion of cooperation between workers and farmers. "To a great extent, the farmers of this province hold the key to our economy. The small farmers are not getting support from the powers-that-be", he said.

Tom Jones, District Rep. U.P.W.A. expressed pleasure at being privileged to meet so many members of local 282 on this his first visit to the city following his appointment as District Representative, with headquarters at Moncton. He was glad of the opportunity to describe his experience and training in labor objectives. "More than 22,000 packing house workers in Canada, with 6,000 with Canada Packers, testify to the assertion that the best people to organize are organized people," he said.

"Labour recognizes the necessity of education and we are spending a lot of money to forward this object and organize the unorganized in an intelligent and progressive way." Mr. Jones said.

Mervill McAlduff, President, Charlottetown Labour Council brought fraternal greetings from his organization and congratulated Local 282 on their social activities in bringing members and their wives together as on this memorable occasion. "Organized labour and organized agriculture can and should cooperate to the fullest degree in overcoming problems of mutual concern. The surface, in this respect, has only been scratched," Mr. McAlduff said.

Canada Packers Plant Supt. Joseph Moloney voiced his pleasure at being present and pointed out that management has problems which must be faced and ironed out. When these arise they are met and corrected if at all possible," Mr. Molloy said.

Supported by an adequate number of ladies, Mrs. A.J. MacDonald President of Holy Redeemer sub-division of the C.W.L., catered for the excellent turkey dinner provided and received the thanks of those in attendance through President Murphy.

Previous to the most enjoyable dance which followed, Duke Neilsen entertained with feats of magic and Charles Chamberlain sang two numbers in his inimitable manner. Dance music was by Don Messer and his orchestra.

Head Table seating included Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Shaw, Tom Jones, District Representative U.P.W.A. and Mrs. Jones, Clifford Murphy, President U.P.W.A. Local 282, and Mrs. Murphy, Mervill McAlduff, President, Charlottetown Dist. Labour Council, Leo Dowling, Chairman Entertainment Committee, and Mrs. Dowling, Alyse Peters, Chief Steward Local 282, Jos. Molloy, Plant Supt. Canada Packers and Mrs. Molloy, Sven Hoyem, Toronto office, Canada Packers.

Heavy Rain Troublesome For PEI Farmers, Welcomed In NS

Sodden potato and turnip fields and acres of spoiled grain cover Island farmers this morning in the wake of a weekend of heavy rain that dumped 2.59 inches of rain on the rolling countryside.

In the 24 hours ending Sunday at 8 p.m., 1.55 inches fell according to the Dominion Government Meteorological station located at the Charlottetown Airport.

The heavy downpour yesterday proved too much for the city's run-off system; the back - up resulting in deep pools at many of the low-lying intersections.

The same storm brought relief to parched Nova Scotia communities, bringing to an end a month-long drouth that was beginning to affect seriously t h e water supply of several mainland centres.

By late Sunday night the storm had dumped six inches of rain on Sydney. The Cape Breton town's pumping station was reported to be delivering at full capacity for the first time in a month.

Police reported near - flood conditions in some areas of the N.S. mining centre, as sewers backed up and spilled the excess into the City's streets and residents' basements.

In Liverpool, where the Mersey Paper Co. and Town reserves of water were rapidly diminishing, 2.04 inches raised available supplies considerably, but restrictions on water use were not expected to be relaxed unless at least three inches come down.

Ecum Secum in Eastern Nova Scotia was the wettest spot in the Province reporting a rainfall of 5.27 inches during the day storm.

HALIFAX (CP)—The weather office says a disturbance will move across the Maritimes today bringing an end to the wet weather over the southern regions.

Regional forecasts:

Northern Nova Scotia: Overcast, occasional rain and drizzle and fog patches ending in the afternoon; very mild; light winds. Low-high at New Glasgow 52 and 60.
