OUTLINE OF THE QUEEN'S SPEECH

For the Opening of Parliament.

MANY SUBJECTS TOUCHED UPON FOREIGN RELATIONS PACIFIC.

Concern for the Plague, Cape Colony Complimented.

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament will make the usual reference to the pacific relations existing between Great Britain and foreign countries, and will then deal with the recent operations in the Sudan and with affairs in Crete, expressing the hope that the Crete question is in a fair way of solution by the appointment of Prince George of Greece as High Commissioner of the Powers in Crete.

The speech will also refer to the invitation to attend the Czar's Peace Conference which has been accepted, and contains a very sympathetic reference to the assassination of the Empress of Austria.

It mentions the Antiarchist conference at Rome, and the probable necessity for alteration of the law of Great Britain with respect to anarchism is foreshadowed.

The speech expresses great concern at the fact that the plague continues in some localities in India.

Cape Colony is complimented upon its patriotism as demonstrated in its recent vote for navy defence, and there is a very sympathetic allusion to the disaster in the West Indies.

Finally the speech announces that bills will be introduced for the municipal government of London and for the promotion of secondary education, etc.

THE ELECTION TRIAL

Meddie Gallant Unseated and Disqualified for Eight Years.

(SPECIAL BY TELEPHONE.)

ALBERTON, Feb. 6.—The court-room here was densely crowded.

The court held the respondent, Meddie Gallant, to be guilty of treating by Martin Hussler and Trail Reid, his agents.

Also of treating by Benjamin Gallant, an agent, but without the knowledge of Meddie Gallant.

The charge of bribery of Wedge by Meddie Gallant was examined at great length by the Judge, and although the circumstances were very suspicious he held that there existed reasonable doubt, which every one charged with an offence is entitled to. He therefore held the charge "not proven."

The charge of bribery of Col. Arsenault by Gallant was held by the Judge to be fully established and the Election was set aside.

The result of this finding is that Meddie Gallant is debarred from voting or being voted for, or from holding any office under the Crown, or under the Lieutenant Governor for eight years.

Before the close of his judgment the Judge paid a high compliment to the manner in which the evidence had been reported by Mr. Crosskill, the stenographic reporter.

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The peace treaty was ratified yesterday.

After the ratification the Senate took up the joint resolution offered by McEnery (Dem. La.) declaring a policy for the Philippines, and an effort was made to adopt it, but the debate occupied so much time that the resolution went over.

Public Attention

It is at present being directed to Catarrh, and much interest has been aroused by its marvellous effect upon disease germs. Catarrh, bronchitis, irritable throat, and such maladies instantly disappear when this apparently mild pine-scented gas is inhaled. It penetrates wherever gas can go. Messrs N C Polson & Co, Kingston, Ont, have generously intimated that sample outfits of catarrh-gone will be given our readers free, for a short time, if sent for immediately.

MILES WILL BE RELIEVED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—A Washington despatch to the Press says: Major General Merritt is to succeed Major General Miles as major general commanding the army. The orders relieving Miles of command have not been signed by the President, but this action is practically settled upon. Not all of the President's advisers are entirely satisfied with the contemplated degradation of the ranking major general from the command of the army. They think the offence calls for something more. They have urged that the relief from command be followed by court martial. The president however has expressed himself as unwilling to appear harsh. He has chosen the penalty of relief from command as being the least that he can do, if he is not to ignore Miles repeated acts of insubordination and acts prejudicial to good military discipline.

ANOTHER FEDERATION

The Australian Colonies Have Agreed to Agree.

LINES OF THE AGREEMENT

The Constitution of the New Dominion Differs From That of Canada in Some Important Respects.

MELBOURNE, Victoria, Feb., 4.—The unanimous agreement finally reached by the Australian colonial premiers, who have been in conference here for some days regarding certain unsettled questions connected with the Australian Federation bill, referred to them by the colonial legislatures, seems to insure the success of the federation project.

The federal capital will be, like Washington, federal territory, the existing capitals being excluded. It will be established in New South Wales, but at least a hundred miles from Sydney, the colonial capital. Pending the erection of a capitol building, the Australian Parliament will meet in Melbourne.

The Parliament is to consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives and an absolute majority of the members of both houses shall decide all differences that may arise between the two. In other respects the original bill is unaltered. The delay in accomplishing Australian federation has been principally due to the hesitating policy of New South Wales, the chief trouble originating with the financial basis of the proposed commonwealth.

The matter first came formally before the representatives of the colonies at a convention which met in Adelaide in March, 1898. The colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, Tasmania and South and West Australia sent delegates. Resolutions were adopted embodying the principles of the new constitution, and a committee was appointed to draft a bill, to be reported to the convention and then after discussion, to be referred to the various colonial legislatures.

The draft having been made, submitted to and modified by the convention, went to the colonial legislatures in March of last year. The subsequent discussion revealed the existence of an important anti-federal section, the crux of the difficulty being the question of securing the rights of the smaller states, without depriving the other of the advantages which should be theirs from the fact of their larger populations. One by one, the colonies, with the exception of New South Wales, approved the bill. Victoria, South Australia, West Australia and Tasmania derive their revenue from excise and custom duties; but in New South Wales these have been partially abolished, their place being taken by income and land taxes.

The opponents of the federation project in New South Wales contended that, as under a federal Government the four protectionist colonies would lose a large proportion of their revenue by the abolition of border duties and as a federal tariff of a somewhat prohibitive nature would become necessary, except in New South Wales, where there are no border duties to be repealed, the practical result would be that the deficient revenues of the four protectionist colonies would have to be made good very largely at the expense of New South Wales. That is to say, Australian federation on the lines of the bill as originally prepared, would mean an increase of taxation in the parent colony and diminished fiscal burdens in the others.

Apart from this feature, the New South Wales colonists have all along approved the proposed constitution and it is fair to assume that their demands for an equitable arrangement have been met, as the foregoing despatch from Melbourne refers to a "unanimous agreement."

The Australian Federation Bill vests the legislative authority in the Queen who will be represented by a Governor-General and in two Houses of Parliament the members of each being elected on the basis of manhood suffrage and each elector having only one vote. Each colony or state will send six men to the Senate, each elected for six years. The House of Representatives will consist of 63 members elected for three years, twenty-four by New South Wales; twenty-three by Victoria; seven by South Australia; five by West Australia and five by Tasmania.

The Australian Parliament will have power to make laws regulating trade and commerce with other countries and among the several states, regulating taxation, but not so as to discriminate between states or parts of states, or between persons or things passing from one state to another; regulating also bounties on the production or export of goods, borrowing money on the public credit of the federation, postal, telegraphic telephonic, and other like services, naval and military defence, navigation and shipping. The executive Government is to consist of several ministers, with salaries aggregating £12,000 per annum. The expenditure of the federal Government is put at £1,500,000 per annum. Each state will for the present retain possession of its own railways, subject to the control of an inter-state commission, and so long as this is the case the federal government will not have charge of the public assets.
