

Gulls Wallop Giants 10-4; Orioles Defeat Yankees

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Ernie Banks pounded a three-run homer and Al Dark and Dale Long each hit two-run blasts to propel Chicago Cubs to a 10-4 victory over San Francisco Giants in a National League game in Chicago Thursday.

Three other National League battles were carded at night, with Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Milwaukee at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles at St. Louis.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

Night games in that league had New York at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at Kansas City.

At Chicago, Banks' shot over the left field stands scored Don Elston, the Cubs' second pitcher, and Ernie Noren. It was Banks' 22nd of the season.

The lone day game in the American League saw Min Lemon belt a three-run homer in the last of the 10th to lead Washington Senators to a 6-5 win over Boston Red Sox.

HUNTERS CORNER Huns' Coveys Will Soon Be Making Appearance

July is the month when the coveys of Huns make their appearance and the hatch is at its peak on, or about, the twelfth. Farmers have reported nests over by hay mowers on this date, or within a day or two of it, when the chicks were in process of pecking out. Seldom have I had Hun coveys reported in June and several that were reported turned out to be pheasants. Huns are late hatching whereas pheasant broods have been seen in late May. I note where the West Prince Fish and Game Association are once more concerned over a close season on Huns in West Prince and expressed concern as to why their request was not granted in 1958. I presume by "West Prince" is the area west of Portage is the section specified.

GET ATTENTION
Among subjects discussed their current pheasant re-stocking program and the Magnum 10 gauge shotgun were given mention. I note where the good hatch from their pheasants was stressed. Hatchability of pheasants never was a problem it was their survivability that drove more than one pheasant re-stocking program on the rocks. The West Prince pheasant re-stocking experts missed the boat when they failed to drive for a close season on pheasants ten or twelve years ago. At that time Queens County pheasants were making good progress in their expansion westward. In the Miscouche Swamp and Muddy Creek areas they had established a solid foothold if given half a chance. A conservative estimate placed the number of birds in these two areas alone in excess of one hundred in mid-September. Scattered birds were reported at points much farther west.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

On the opening day in October hunters from Summerside flocked to the pheasant concentration area in droves. I wafted members of the Prince County Fish and Game Association that they stood a good chance of killing the goose that laid the Golden Egg but they shrugged it off as an alarmist theory. For the past 4 or 5 years West Prince Game Association members have been conducting an all out drive to establish them artificially. So far results, if any, have been kept under wraps. With no wild stock to pinch for them it is unsafe to make any claims that have no foundation in fact. It is this columnist's firm belief, based on past experience, that if pheasants in a West Prince area present in numbers sufficient to warrant an open season 15 years from this date the re-stocking program will have run pretty well on schedule.

So far as the recommendation that the Hun season be closed in the area west of Portage is in this columnist's opinion that West Prince needs a close season on Huns about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel. I have talked with farmers in the area as well as Railroad-men and Commercial Travellers and the general opinion is that Huns are normal in the area of Prince County concerned. Farmers this spring are reporting that it is not unusual to have two nesting pairs on a farm. They are quite scarce, alarmingly so, in the Bedouque area according to reports of farmers in the district. They blame spraying operations for the mortality. As has farmer remarked: "We grow a lot of late maturing potatoes in this section of Prince and spray until the crop matures and then spray to kill the tops. Huns have been found dead and rabbits that have eaten grass at meadows edge where the sprayers have turned have died." This angle of the Hun scarcity in some sections will be commented on later.

California Carries Hopes Of U.S. At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (Reuters) Chubby Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., Thursday carried American hopes of a 16th straight title into the final of the women's singles at the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

Miss Hard, a 25-year-old medical student, defeated South African champion Sandra Reynolds 6-3, 6-4 and will meet Maria Bueno of Brazil in the final Saturday.

The determined little Brazilian champion wiped out hopes of an all-American final when she eliminated 19-year-old Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-2, 6-4 in Thursday's other semi-final match. American players have won the women's singles at Wimbledon for the last 15 years.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Miss Hard, who missed last year's Wimbledon because of her studies, carried far too much all-round power for the 20-year-old South African.

Top Notch Races Go Here Tonight

This is race night again at Charlottetown Driving Park. This week officials of the Driving Park are trying a Friday night program instead of Saturday and starting time has been fixed for 9 o'clock to accommodate all shoppers.

It's a good looking program that has secretary and classifier Frank Acorn has lined up for tonight. It's an eight-dash show with two singles and three doubles forming the lineup.

Midgets Thrill Wrestling Fans

Approximately 600 enthusiastic fans turned out last evening to see the exciting mat work at the local Sports Arena.

Highlighting the card were the sensational TV midgets, Little Beaver and Tiny Tim Girard were matched against Sky Low and the Mighty Schultz in the best of three falls.

Minor Baseball Gets Underway

Charlottetown Minor League baseball got underway yesterday morning at Memorial Field.

The first game in the Bantam bracket saw the Gulls down the Cardinals 14-10 in a see-saw battle. Alfred Wakelin started for the Gulls but was relieved in the fourth by 'Joey' Gallant who got credit for the win.

Minor League Ball Schedules

The following are Minor League schedules for the month of July.

July 2 - Red Sox vs. Browns
July 3 - Dodgers vs. Giants; Indians vs. Tigers
July 6 - Red Sox vs. Dodgers
July 7 - Browns vs. Giants; Dodgers vs. Indians
July 8 - Giants vs. Tigers
July 9 - Red Sox vs. Giants; Browns vs. Dodgers
July 10 - Dodgers vs. Tigers
July 13 - Red Sox vs. Indians; Browns vs. Tigers
July 14 - Giants vs. Indians
July 15 - Tigers vs. Red Sox; Browns vs. Indians

Executive Upholds Protest By Lions

A protest made by coach Forbie Kennedy of Barry's Lions against a call by the umpire in a game between the Lions and Irish on May 31st has been upheld by the executive of the City Softball League.

At the time the call was made the Irish were leading 4-0 in the sixth inning. The executive ruled that the game must revert back to the time the erroneous call was made. The fixture will be completed on Saturday, July 4th.

Early 7-5 Odds Surprise Ingo

PORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson expressed surprise Thursday at the early 7-5 odds against him in his rematch with Floyd Patterson.

"I don't understand such things but I'm not worrying about it," he said at a news conference. "We don't have betting in Sweden."

Today's Minor League Activities

9 a.m. - Dodgers vs. Giants.
10.30 - Indians vs. Tigers.
2.30 - All minor Leaguers practice.

PRACTICE

A practice has been called for Junior Abbies Friday at 5:30 at Memorial Field.

Henderson & Cudmore's Vacation

FOR RENT
floor sanders and others also "FABULON" the famous "BOWLING ALLEY" finish for home floors.
CHANDLER BROS.
1 Plywood Place

CONTINUES TODAY - TONIGHT SATURDAY til 1 P.M. - EXTRA STAFF

Lightweight SUITS

Drastically Reduced

- NEW! ...
- Terylene & Wool $
- Crisp as Lettuce
- Crease Resistant
- Reg. to $69.00

SPORT SHIRTS

100 Only to $5.00

SALE 1.99

White Bucks

Canvas Shoes

Reg. to 7.95

Bouncy Foam Soles

2.99

POLISHED COTTON TROUSERS

also
Worsted Flannel Dress Pants

Regularly to $12.00

4.99

HENDERSON & CUDMORE

WHERE QUALITY IS SURE

OPEN TIL 9:30 TONIGHT - SAT TO 1 P.M.