

Dr. A. W. CHASE

Triumphs over the Worst Forms of KIDNEY... DISEASE

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills adds to the fame of the great doctor whose name is familiar in almost every home as the author of the world famous Recipe Book.

Scores and thousands of grateful men and women have been rescued from the miseries and dangers of kidney disease by this greatest of all kidney cures.

Mr. D. C. Simmons, Mabee, Ont., writes: "My kidneys and back were so bad I was unable to work or sleep. My urine had sediment like brick dust, I was compelled to get up four or five times during the night. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and concluded to give them a trial. I have only used one box and am completely cured. I was a great sufferer for 18 years, but my kidneys do not bother me now. I enjoy good rest and sleep and consider Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills a boon to suffering humanity."

FOR THE WOMEN

A Dainty Madame.

She is not born, but made, that most charming woman who is sweet with neatness plus an indefinable something more. The dainty woman is sweet and charming on the most trying occasions; she has acquired the habit.

She brushes her hair religiously every night—not spasmodically for a week or two—and so it requires a rare glossiness and smoothness. Her hot bath at night is a regular affair, dating back years to its beginning, and consequently her complexion always preserves its freshness. Her clothes always lie in sweet smelling sachets, so that the faint elusive fragrance which seem part of her personality can no more be missing when she appears in a dressing-gown and slippers than when she comes out robed for a reception.—McCall's.

Scalloped Potatoes.

Slice raw potatoes thin, and place them in layers in a baking dish, strewing over each layer grated bread and a seasoning of butter, pepper and salt; add a few slices of onion or a little chopped celery if liked; moisten with hot water and bake in a moderate oven three quarters of an hour.

Ginger Cookies.

One pint of molasses, one coffee cup of lard and butter, using equal parts; put these over the fire and boil two minutes. When nearly cold add three tablespoonfuls of boiling water and one small tablespoonful of soda; stir briskly until it foams, then add one tablespoonful of ginger, a little salt, a little cayenne pepper, and flour to roll

Cake Baking

Experts in cakemaking very often say that the whole secret of success lies in the baking. There is a good deal of truth in this, and it applies specially to rich solid cakes, which are not difficult to make, but are rather difficult to bake. The following rules are well worth remembering:

Light cakes require a rather brisk oven to raise and set them. Cakes raised with chemicals, such as baking powder and its equivalents, also require a quick oven. Cakes that have much sugar in them are apt to burn quickly. Therefore for them the oven must not be so hot. Large rich cakes require long and careful baking. Small sugar cakes require a slow oven. Cakes, bread, too, excepting the light thick kind, should be gently baked.

A slack oven is more dangerous than one that is a little too hot. With the latter one can adopt expedients to regulate the heat. The cake tin can be lined with double paper, or it can stand in the oven on sand or salt, or if the worst comes to the worst and the cake gets burnt some of the burnt part can be scraped off, but with a too slack oven the cake is almost sure to be ruined.

The oven door should be kept closed until the dough sets, and it should be opened and shut as little as possible during the process of baking. Cakes must not be shaken while baking, and if it is necessary to turn them, they should be turned as gently as possible. Slamming the oven door even to shut it may make a cake heavy.

Inexperienced persons should always test a cake before taking it out of the oven by putting a skewer or knitting needle into the centre. If this comes out clean, the baking has been sufficient. Experienced persons however, can generally tell by the look or by lightly tapping it whether the cake is done.

Large rich cakes should have a piece of paper laid over them when put into the oven to prevent scorching and they should also be allowed to remain cool before being removed from the pan. They will keep best with the paper in which they were baked left round them. Even after a skewer leaves them dry they need to be left in the oven for a few minutes to "soak," as it is called. When taken out of the tin, cakes should be laid on a sieve till cold to facilitate the escape of the steam.—Exchange.

The walk is not in the valley, but through the valley. Ah! then it must be a straight and plain path, and one that leads somewhere. It must be a direct journey to a distant destination. Yes, I am assured that it is, and that the destination is nothing less delightful than heaven itself. How, then can, I fear when once by faith I have connected the valley with the heaven to which it leads? This going must be like the flight of a bird through some dark cloud, and then out into the full light of the sun. It must be like some traveller journeying through the mountains, and then coming out into the broad and smiling country where the sun is shining in its glory, and where every green herb and beautiful flower is springing up to bless. Surely, if it is only a quiet walk through the sheltered valley, and the valley itself opens out full and broad in the shining fields of heaven, why, indeed, should I fear? —G. B. F. Hallock, D. D.
