Throne Speech

every year during the last three and farm income had dropped 40 per cent in that time.

On trade, Mr. Rowe said that in the first eight months of 1954 Canada's unfavourable trade balance amounted to more than $200,000,000. This compared with a favorable balance of more than $325,000,000 two years ago.

COMPETITION INCREASING

"With the ever-increasing competition we face in world markets a sound fiscal policy is required more than ever. Last year we imported more goods made by laboring men in foreign countries than Canada produced altogether in 1953....

"The Canadian worker sees electrical, steel and textile products coming in from countries such as Japan while plants in which his father and grandfather worked are closing down."

Mr. St. Laurent said Mr. Rowe apparently wanted protective tariffs but that the word protection had not been mentioned.

TWO-WAY FLOW

He didn't feel that high tariffs should achieve an expansion of trade. It was unfortunate that production costs of some Canadian goods were greater than those of products which can be imported.

But trade must flow two ways. One couldn't have high exports without high imports. There had been no loss of the British market. Though the British trade situation was improving, the shortage of dollars in the United Kingdom still limited the quantity of Canadian goods Britain wants to buy.

The prime minister said there are unfavorable factors in the economy, but the over-all balance sheet would show a favorable surplus.

RESULT IN DECREASE

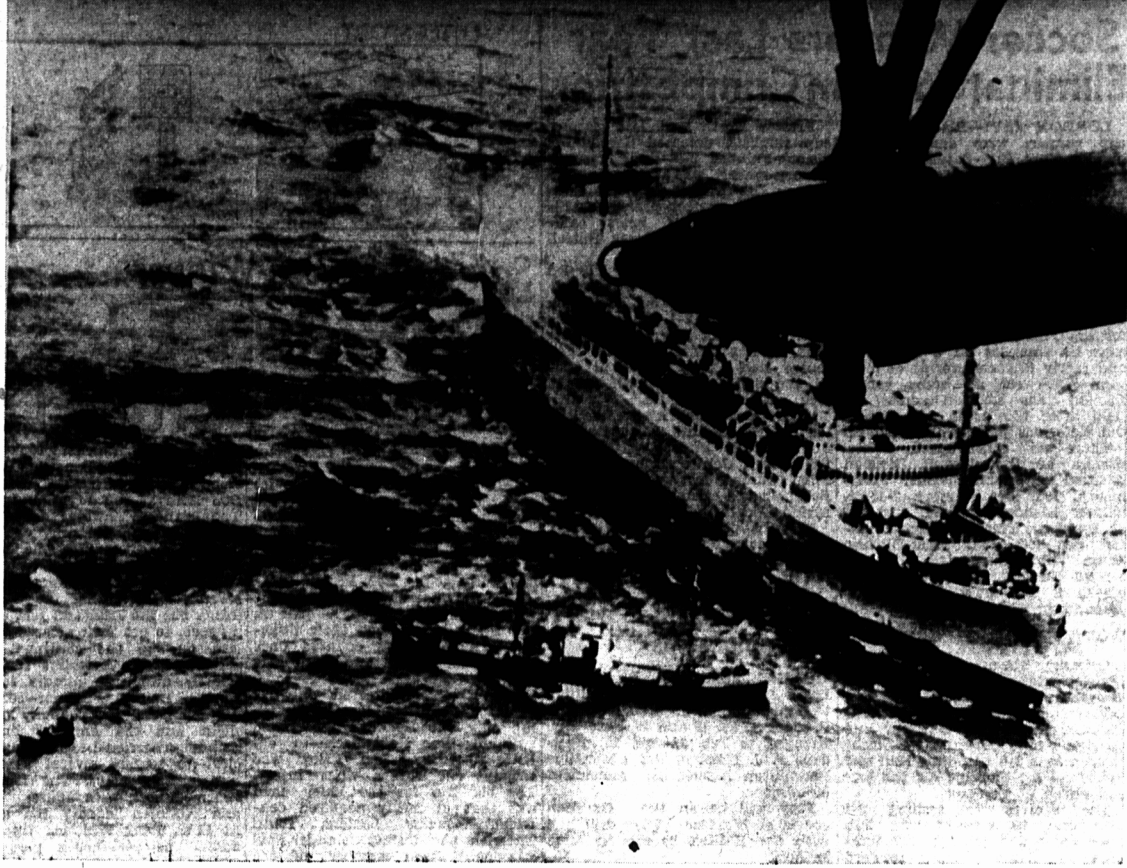

Mr. Coldwell agreed with the prime minister on tariffs. He said "monkeying" with the tariffs would only result in decreased overseas trade.

Mr. Rowe made no reference in his speech to the health plan mentioned in the Conservative non-confidence motion. However, both Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Coldwell did.

The prime minister said a contributory health scheme is "very desirable."

A health plan would come eventually but its timing would depend on circumstances of the Canadian economy generally.

Mr. Coldwell said a national health plan, advocated by the OCF, is "long overdue."

Montague Moves To End Ice Sidewalks Problem

Mayor Bruce Yeo presided at the last regular meeting of the Montague Town Council before the election of a new council. Nominating day will be Jan. 18 and the election day if necessary will be February 1st. There was a full attendance of councillors present.

It was reported that a number of complaints had been received regarding the icy condition of the town's sidewalks. It was decided, after some discussion, that a by-law be passed requesting citizens to remove ice from in front of their homes and if the removal of same is not carried out, then the town maintenance man will remove it and the cost of doing this will be added to the taxes of the property owner.

A cheque for $50.00 was received from the Montague Fire Department to help defray the costs of some recently purchased fire equipment. Councillor H. S. Smith moved that a letter of thanks be forwarded to the firemen acknowledging their generous contribution. The motion was seconded by Councillor Reynolds.

A number of other motions were passed including one that a safety deposit box be rented by the Town Clerk in one of the local banks to be used for the safekeeping for the town's valuable papers, that the town clerk, Mr. Arnold Wightman, be paid the yearly bonus of $100.00 and Mr. H. M. Smith and Mr. Morton, be approached regarding the auditing of the town's books for 1954.

Rescued Captain Thinks About Time He Quit Sea

TORONTO (CP)—Capt. Harry Thomsen of Grand Bank, Nfld., says he feels it is about time he retired from his career as seafarer.

When the coastal freighter Student Prince went down off Bermuda Thursday, it was the fourth time Capt. Thomsen cheated the Atlantic.

Capt. Thomsen visited here Sunday to see a son, Herbert. The 66-year-old skipper didn't look any the worse for the narrow escape of himself and his crew from the foundered vessel.

"We were about 300 miles off Bermuda when we started to take water on Tuesday," said Capt. Thomsen in an interview. "We turned around and made about 140 miles back when the water got into the main bearings on Wednesday and the engines quit."

KEPT CREW WORKING

He radioed the coast guard which sent a plane to watch over the crippled vessel and when he decided he needed help the liner Queen of Bermuda, then 60 miles away, was diverted to his location.

Capt. Thomsen, who describes himself as "a man of hard disciplines," kept the crew hard at work on the hand pumps.

"In a situation like that it is no good to just sit down and wait. You don't know what is going to happen," he said. "But I needn't have worried about my crew, they were perfect."

He said the coast guard did its work superbly. He commended the captain of the liner for his handling of the large ship during the rescue operation, and the crew of the small boat that took them from the Student Prince.

WALLOWING HELPLESSLY

When the liner arrived his vessel was wallowing helplessly in heavy seas with nine feet of water in her holds, said Capt. Thomsen. The tired Newfoundlanders were taken aboard a lifeboat and transferred to the Queen of Bermuda.

Capt. Leslie Baynard, skipper of the Queen of Bermuda, steamed slowly around the stricken vessel and discharged fuel oil to calm the seas, after which the liner's lifeboat was able to transfer the crew of the Student Prince.

Orphans Arrive From Yugoslavia

HALIFAX (CP)—Two teenage orphans landed here Sunday from the liner Scythia en route to Humboldt, Sask., after eight years in a Yugoslav home for waifs.

Elizabeth, 14, and Barbara Pape, 13, will live with a grandfather they have never seen. He was not identified but was believed to have emigrated to Canada about 30 years ago.

The girls' mother died in what was described as "a war camp" in 1946. They said they do not remember their father who is believed to have died in Hungary in 1950.

The Red Cross through its international agencies obtained the release of Barbara and Elizabeth from the Yugoslav orphanage. They spent two months in an Austrian home while arrangements were completed to bring them to Canada.

The girls speak only Croat, one of the Yugoslav national dialects.

The grandfather was reported to have financed the ocean journey.

The Late Mrs. Duncan Campbell

"One of North Lakes most highly respected and loved citizens, Mrs. Duncan Campbell (nee Jessie McPhee) passed away very suddenly at Belvedere, Charlottetown on December 24. Mrs. Campbell had been residing with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Shea while Mr. Campbell was recovering from a recent operation in the Charlottetown Hospital and his condition was so good that they both planned on returning to their home at North Lake the first of the week.

Mrs. Campbell was of a jolly, friendly nature. To know her was to love her and many had the pleasure of receiving the warm and true hospitality at her home in North Lake. When she resided in U. S. A. it was a welcome home for the many P. E. I. folks to visit. Words cannot express the feeling in which Mrs. Campbell will be missed not only in the home but community.

Her remains were conveyed by motor hearse to the home of her brother, Mr. Annes P. McPhee and Mrs. McPhee Elmira—on December 24 and the throng of sympathetic friends who come to pay their last respects to one that was highly honored was the evidence of the esteem in which she was held in all the surrounding districts.

The funeral was held Monday
