

Local and Other Items.

STRAWBERRIES and cream at Vatcher's, j2 1w

SERVICES at the Y M C A tent, Camp Brighton, to-morrow afternoon at 4 30 o'clock.

Go to McLeod's Shoe Store to-night. They offer great bargains.

LEAVE your orders for Boston baked beans and brown bread at Murphy's Bakery, Kent St. j16 3w eod

S. or T.—The Grand Division, S. of T., will meet in quarterly session at Cavendish on Wednesday, the 13th inst.

A lot of women's light boots and low shoes, to be closed out to-night at J. M. McLeod & Co's.

TEA PARTY—Remember the big tea party at Kelly's Cross on Tuesday next, 5th July.

PHILHARMONIC.—The Secretary requests that all members make returns for tickets sold for the late concert on Monday next if possible. —Horace Hazard, Secretary.

THE BEST SELLER.—The druggists and dealers throughout the Island say that Every-body's Pills are among the best-selling medicines, and give perfect satisfaction.

SKODA'S OINTMENT, the Great German Ointment, and finest Cosmetic made. Removes Blackheads, Pimples, etc., as if by magic. 3 oz. tubes in elegant cartons 50 cts.

We forgot to mention on Thursday that a prize—Macaulay's History of England—was presented by His Worship Mayor Haviland to Charles Myers, West Kent Street School, for History.

FIRE—A fire occurred at Riverdale, Lot 65, on Thursday last, when the barn and all outbuildings, farming implements and some stock of Mrs. Francis Malone were completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $1,600.

THERE will be no service in the Second Methodist church Sunday morning owing to the military parade and sermon by Rev. Dr. Carman in the brick church. There will be the usual services in the evening.

Two hundred pair of men's light boots and shoes on bargain counter at J. M. McLeod & Co's to-night.

The Juvenile Temple are requested to meet at McLeod's Hall on Monday evening at half past 4 o'clock, to make arrangements for the meeting of the Grand Lodge. By order of the Superintendent. j2 21

DISSOLVED.—The partnership hitherto existing under the name of James Paton & Co. was dissolved to-day by mutual consent. The business will be continued by Mr. James Paton, under the same name of James Paton & Co.

OUR clocks have arrived and we believe the peddlers did not wait to see them. We desire fair competition but think this clock peddling business was ill conceived. Remember our price for the same article is one third less than theirs and we make a fair profit at that.—E. W. Taylor. j2 4d w

TEA PARTY.—A grand tea party will be held at St. Eleanor's on Tuesday next, July 5. Arrangements have been made with the P. E. I. Island Railway for single first-class fares from all stations, good to return the following day. A good time is assured all who attend.

CHURCH PARADE.—To-morrow morning Rev. Dr. Carman will preach in the First Methodist Church. About four hundred of the militia now in camp are expected to attend. Those holding pews in the front of the church are requested to occupy seats elsewhere in order to accommodate them.

DOMINION DAY.—The day passed off quietly in the city. At noon a salute of 21 guns was fired from Fort Edward and a feu de joie was fired by the militia in camp, who had been drawn up in line on the lower field. Several private picnics were held and some excursions to the country by carriage were made.

A PLEASANT TRIP.—The steam yacht Ellida, of New Glasgow, N. S., arrived here yesterday forenoon with a party of gentlemen on board. She made the run from New Glasgow in the splendid time of five and a half hours. The party was made up of Graham Fraser, Manager New Glasgow Steel and Forge Company; T. Cantley, G. F. McKay, Captain J. C. Graham, Captain A. Fraser, Captain A. Chisholm, W. P. McNeil, I. Rice, A. Fraser, and ex-Mayor Sutherland. They visited the park in the afternoon and witnessed the sports, with which they were delighted, and in the evening took a run up the river in the Ellida with a few invited guests on board. The Ellida left for home again this morning.

Religious Services.

St. Paul's Church.—Services to-morrow: Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 o'clock; Sunday School at 2:30; Evening Prayer and Sermon at 7 o'clock.

St. Peter's Cathedral.—Services to-morrow (Sunday after St. Peter's Day) will be as follows: Holy Communion at 8 a. m.; Matins at 10:15; Choral Celebration of the Holy Eucharist and Sermon at 11 o'clock; Evensong and Sermon at 7 o'clock.

Gospel Meeting.—Remember the Gospel Meeting Sunday afternoon in McLeod's Hall, at 4 o'clock, conducted by the R-I-way men. Strangers always welcome. Lesson: Romans 8:33—"Paul's Persuasion."

Second Methodist Church.—Prayer meeting at 10 a. m. No service at 11. Sunday School and Bible class at 2:15. Class meeting, led by Mr G W Ritchie, at 3:15 p. m. Preaching at 7 p. m. by Rev C W Hamilton, followed by the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. All welcome. Attentive ushers to show strangers to comfortable seats.

Rev B Atkinson will preach at both services in St James' church to-morrow.

Baptist Church.—Services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. The pulpit will be occupied morning and evening by the Rev C W Williams, of St. Martins, N. B.

The Salvation Army intend holding a great camp meeting at Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Supreme Court.

SATURDAY, July 2. The Queen vs McTague—Indictment for perjury. A motion was made to quash indictment but was lost, and case stands for trial on Monday next.

Damaged pineapples very cheap to-night at Beer & Goff's.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Debates and Proceedings

OTTAWA, July 1.

Owing to the criminal code, not being reprinted, the senate cannot consider it until next week. Possibly prorogation will be postponed until the week following.

John Y. Payzant, of Halifax, has been gazetted a Queen's Counsel.

Yesterday the Speaker announced that he had received the resignation of Rielot Watson, member for Marquette, and had issued a writ for a new election.

In reply to a question Haggart stated that the deficit of the Intercolonial Railway for the current year up to the first June last was $345,048.

Foster said the recent negotiations with the United States would be explained on Monday. Boulton informed the senate yesterday of his intention to resign and contest Marquette.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND SYNOD

Bishop Courtney's Address.

HALIFAX, July 2.

The Church of England Synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

The church of England synod opened yesterday, the session being presided by Ven. Archbishop James, of Windsor. In the Bishop's opening address to the synod he said: "Every sober minded Christian must deeply regret the touch of sensationalism which is beginning to show itself in newspapers in reference to providing pleasant Sunday afternoons for working people. Any sensible man would approve of an effort to draw the laboring class away from the amusements of the beer saloon, which too often end in a drunken carouse. He would not express his opinion upon the opening of amusements or the delivering of scientific lectures on Sunday afternoons, but he was concerned about keeping the church a holy place, and in his opinion it was impossible to make the people see sacredness of secular things by giving concerts and so on in a church. Only the tendency would be to secularize religion itself." The report of the widows and orphans fund committee was by no means a hopeful one. It showed a debit of $3,000, while the present income is merely $1,900. The pensions for the present year cannot exceed $100 each. The report of the domestic and foreign missions shows a much less despondent tone.

GREAT BIG PICNIC

-AND-

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION!

The SECOND METHODIST CHURCH SABBATH SCHOOL will hold their Annual Picnic, on THURSDAY, July 7th, AT WESTVILLE.

A Good Time May Be Expected!

Tea and Refreshments and Lots of Fun.

Big Fire at Yarmouth.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 2.

A fire at Yarmouth yesterday destroyed Kenney, Haley & Co's factory chute, Hall organ factory, G. P. Allan's barrel factory, the dwellings of George Rogers, John Beas, James Goudrie, Jacob Vanamburges, Thomas Longs and Toussain Music. The fire badly damaged Louis Potters and Amos Smith's houses. Leavis & Cook's provision store, which also took fire, was saved.

McAuliffe Defeated.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.

Goddard won the fight with McAuliffe in the 16th round at San Francisco last night.

The Races at Georgetown.

The following entries have, up to date, been received by the secretary of the King's County Exhibition for the races at Georgetown, on July 7th, 1892:

THREE MINUTE CLASS. P. S. Brown, Charlottetown, ns Ilderin, r s, sired by Olympus.

P. P. Gillis, Charlottetown, ns Parnell, b s, sired by Abdallah Messenger, 4869.

James Daly, Georgetown, ns Della, blk m, sired by Abdallah Messenger, 4869.

Owen Hughes, Montague Cross, ns Dean br s, sired by Highland Laddie, son of Dean Swift.

James McCabe, Montague Cross, ns Fairy Queen, blk m, sired by Dean Swift. 2 40 CLASS.