AN IDYL OF THE SUBURBS

BY AN CONAN DOYLE

CONTINUED.

"I was speaking to your sister Ida last night." She noticed that there was a slight quiver in his voice, and glancing up at his dark, clear-cut face she saw that he was very grave. She felt that he was settled—had he had come to ask her for her sister's hand.

"She is a charming girl," said he after a pause.

"Indeed she is," cried Clara warmly. "And no one who has not lived with her and known her intimately can tell how charming and good she is. She is like a sunbeam in the house."

"No one who was not good could be absolutely happy, as she seems to be. Heaven's last gift, I think is a mind so pure and a spirit so high that it is unable even to see what is impure and evil in the world around us. For as long as we can see it, how can we be truly happy?"

"She has a deeper side also. She does not turn it to the world, and as not natural that she should, for she is very young. But she thinks and has aspirations of her own."

"You cannot admire her more than I do. Indeed, Miss Walker, I only ask you a favor: if you will, please tell me how you brought into her relationship with her and to feel that there is a permanent bond between us."

It had come at last. For a moment her heart was numbed within her, and then a flood of sisterly love carried all before it. Down with that dark thought which would still try to raise its unhallowed head! She turned to Harold with sparkling eyes and words of pleasure upon her lips.

"I should wish to be near and dear to both of you," said he as he took her hand. "I should wish Ida to be my sister and you my wife."

She said nothing. She only stood looking at him with parted lips and great, dark, questioning eyes. The lawn had vanished away, the sloping gardens, the brick villas, the darkening sky, with half a pale moon beginning to show over the chimney pots. All was gone, and she was only conscious of a dark earnest pleading face, and of a voice far away, disconnected from herself, the voice of a man telling a woman how he loved her. He was unhappy, said the voice, his life was void; there was but one thing that could save him; he had come to the parting of the ways; here lay happiness and honor and all that was high and noble; there lay the soul killing road, the lonely life, the base pursuit of money, the sordid, selfish aims. He needed but the hand of the woman that he loved to lead him into the better path.

And how he loved her his life would show. He loved her for her sweet face, for her womanliness, for her strength. He had need of her. Would she not come to him? And then of a sudden as she listened it came home to her that the man who Harold Denver, and that she was the woman, and that all God's work was very beautiful—the greenward beneath her feet, the rustling leaves, the long orange slashes in the western sky. She spoke. She scarce knew what the broken words were, but she saw the light of joy shine out on his face, and her hand was still in his as they wandered amid the twilight. They said no more now, but only wandered and felt each other's presence. All was fresh around them, familiar and yet new, tinged with the beauty of their own new found happiness.

"Did you not know it before?" he asked.

"I did not dare to think it."

"What a mask of ice I must wear! How could a man feel as I have done without knowing it? Your sister at least knew."

"Ida?"

"It was last night. She began to praise you, I said what I felt, and then in an instant it was all out."

"But what could you say—that could you see in me? Oh, I pray that you may not repent it!" The gentle heart was ruffled amid its joy by the thought of its own unworthiness.

"Repent it? I feel that I am a saved man. You do not know how degrading this life is, how debasing, and yet how absorbing. Money forever clings in your ear. You can think of nothing else. From the bottom of my heart I hate, and yet how can I draw back without bringing grief to my dear old father? There was but one way in which I could defy the taint, and that was by having a home influence so pure and so high that it would be a power up against all that draws me down. I have felt that influence already. I know that when I am talking to you I am a better man. It is you who must go with me through life, or I must walk forever alone."

"Oh, Harold, I am so happy!"

USE POND'S EXTRACT

FOR PILES, BURNS, SORE EYES, WOUNDS, SORES, Headache AND ALL PAIN.

FOR COLDS, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, SORE THROAT, Catarrh AND AFTER SHAVING.

Have the early frosts or too late a lingering by the garden gate again aroused that RHEUMATISM so peacefully slumbering the summer long? Well, if it's very bad you must change your diet and perhaps take some distasteful drug—the doctor will tell you what—but first rub thoroughly the part afflicted with POND'S EXTRACT, then wrap it warmly with flannel, and the rheumatism may wholly disappear. It will certainly be much relieved. Now that you have the POND'S EXTRACT try it for any of the many things its buff wrapper mentions. It's a wonderful curative. But don't accept substitutes.

Dr. G. C. Casson, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various back nostrums which are destroying the lives of our children, by forcing opium, nuxomine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending us to premature graves."

and the admiral had congratulated once upon the closer tie which was to unite their two families, and to turn their friendship into something even dearer and more intimate, that Miss Ida Walker received a letter which caused her some surprise and considerable amusement. It was dated from next door and was headed in the red-headed page after breakfast.

"Dear Miss Ida," began this curious document and then relapsed suddenly into the third person. "Mr. Charles Westmacott hopes that he may have the extreme pleasure of a ride with Miss Ida Walker upon his tandem tricycle. Mr. Charles Westmacott will bring it round in half an hour. You in front. Yours very truly, Charles Westmacott."

The whole was written in a large, loose jointed, schoolboyish hand, very thin on the up strokes and thick on the down, as though care and pains had gone to the fashioning of it.

Strange as was the form the meaning was clear enough, so Ida hastened to her room and had hardly slipped on her light gray cycling dress when she saw the tandem with its large occupant at the door. He handed her up to her saddle with a more solemn and thoughtful face than was usual with him, and a few moments later they were flying along the beautiful smooth suburban roads in the direction of Forage Hill. The great limbs of the athlete made the heavy machine spring and quiver with every stroke, while the mignon gray figure, with the laughing face and the golden curls blowing from under the little blue band, strayed last, simply held firmly by her perch and let the treadles whirl round beneath her feet. Mile after mile they flew, the wind beating in her face, the trees dancing past in two long ranks on either side, until they reached a round Crofton and were approaching Norwood once more from the farther side.

Don't Start a Cold.

If you do you will nine times in ten, have a fever to starve.

A cold is a shock received by the myriad nerves that exist near the surface of a human body. This shock is transmitted to the nerve centres, and then back to the mucous membranes, forcing a great amount of blood to those membranes, creating a more or less severe irritation, and consequent rise in the temperature, followed by chills. Excess of food in the stomach still more increases the temperature, and, worst of all, helps clog secretions of nature, and of the body. At a high time we broke away from an old notion which, like some others, has done more harm than good. For example, in years past how many poor fevers, sore throats, burning internal fire and thirst, were hurried to an untimely grave because not allowed cooling drinks or a bit of ice by the old time treatment for fevers as foolish as the usage for colds. At last one cunning delirious patient got to a pump of cold water and drank his fill; determined not to leave till the well ran dry, he slacked the fever, recovered, and doctors learned a lesson. Experiencing with a second cold is a dangerous custom, as most people try one remedy only until some friend suggests another "sure cure," as Mark Twain so humorously described. When slight hoarseness or tightening of the nose membranes warns one of a skin exposure or chill from wet, act promptly; a delay with children may mean a dangerous pneumonia. If neglected, nothing can prevent the sneezing, red nose, and weeping look of a person with a cold. Scores of mothers would as soon go to bed without matches in the house, as without that old-fashioned remedy, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, near hand for croupy children. Used with a mild laxative, as described in a pamphlet which J. S. Johnson and Co., Boston, Mass., will send free to anyone, Johnson's Liniment will cure a cold far quicker than any other remedy. A mild nutritious diet, a gentle physic to open the secretions, and a bottle of that Anodyne from your druggist, will conquer any cold. Johnson's Anodyne Liniment was originated by an old family physician more than seventy years ago.

WATERFUL, PLEASING RELIEF AFTER MANY DAYS.

How a Queens County Man Found Permanent Healing

His Own Experience Tells Fully and Freely some Truths which all Readers of this Paper Should Know.

Here and there, in almost every town of our province, are "chronic" cases over which doctors disagree; cases that become worse year after year. It is to reach such the gentleman to whom these lines refer, and whose portrait is here given, has written the story of his case.

Mr. Branscomb's home is a Chipman, Queens Co., N. B.

It was there that a representative of the Groder company called upon him, Sept 1st, the present year. His greeting was most cordial. He gladly acknowledged his thanks, giving expression to the toll-worn statement:

"It is five years since I became afflicted with a form of indigestion. Last winter it became more severe, developing into chronic diarrhoea. I cannot tell you how much I suffered for six long weeks. It seemed as though relief could not be found. You will remember, I told you of my condition, and asked your advice about taking a bottle of GRODER'S SYRUP. You told me that the medicine was a laxative and might meet my needs. I delayed buying for a few hours until I began to hope that it would help me. Even my clothes seem to be a burden because of bloating of stomach. I was with difficulty that I kept about sufficiently to attend to my business.

But I am a well man now from the use of your remedy. In three days after I bought GRODER'S SYRUP the terrible pain and distress across my stomach were removed. My bowels rapidly assumed a natural, healthy condition. Now I eat an drink as well as I ever could. I have gained constantly in flesh since March last. I am perfectly cured.

It seems a duty for me to state my case fully, that others who suffer as I did may know where to find a cure."

Truly yours,
E. A. BRANCOMB,
