PARKING RATE UP IN LONDON

LONDON (CP) — Draconian measures were announced here to deal with London's ever increasing car parking problem.

Transport Minister Ernest Marples said parking meters in the city's central area will soon double their charges to two shillings—about 30 cents —an hour.

There was some consolation for hard - pressed motorists who sometimes feel that parking spaces in London's narrow streets are as rare as a desert oasis. Marples said it now will be legal to park beside a meter that is still running. This had been against the law.

The whole problem of cars and parking in newly-affluent Britain has been troubling planners for some time. A recent government report estimated that the traffic saturation point would be reached by the year 2110.

Pessimists were confirmed in their gloom when it was announced car production and car registrations in Britain rose by one third for the first quarter of this year compared with the same period last year.

Marples also announced the penalty for overstaying time on a meter will rise to 10 shillings for each half hour—an increase of 100 per cent.

EXHIBIT IN PEKING

PEKING (Reuters)—A 10-day exhibition of British mining and construction equipment, the largest display of Western machinery held to date in Communist China, opened in Peking's Exhibition Centre Thursday. Fifty eight of Britain's leading manufacturers showed a wide range of equipment valued at more than $104,000,000.
