55th Annual Meeting Of W.A. Of Church Of England In Canada

The 55th annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada met for it's opening session in St. Paul's Parish Hall, Charlottetown, on Wednesday afternoon, March 12th with a large attendance. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and prayers by Mrs. A. B. Cosh, Diocesan President.

Mrs. G. B. Whiteside, president of St. Paul's Evening Branch, on behalf of the Charlottetown branches, welcomed the visiting delegates and expressed the hope they might find the meetings both enjoyable and instructive. In a fitting response, Mrs. Reg. Haslam of Springfield stressed the importance of the fellowship among W. A. members that results from devotion to a common task.

Letters of greeting were received from Mrs. Wodehouse, Dominion President, Mrs. Soward, Dominion Secretary, Mrs. MacIntyre, Vice-President for Eastern Canada, Mrs. H. D. Raymond, Honorary President, and Miss Eva Dyer, 3rd Vice-President of the P. E. I. Board, and from various Diocesan Boards across Canada. These were read by Miss Margaret Cotton, Corresponding Secretary, who was given a hearty welcome back after a long absence through illness.

Following the roll call of officers, life members, presidents and delegates, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Mrs. E. V. Bell, recording secretary, and approved.

The retiring president, Mrs. A. B. Cosh, in a brief resume of her 13 years in office, spoke of the goal that should always be before W. A. members, viz: a constant endeavour to pray, learn, work and give towards the threefold aims of the great Auxiliary: Missions, Social Service, and Religious Education. She expressed gratitude to officers and members who have helped to make possible the great advancement shown during this time in every department of W. A. work and paid tribute to departed members in the words: "With faith unwavering, with hope undimmed, with love unwearied, they served Christ and His Church." In closing, Mrs. Cosh asked for her successor continued support in order that, as in the past, the W. A. may exemplify the Diocesan motto, "As servants of Christ doing the will of God from the heart".

Regret Expressed

Many sincere expressions of regret at Mrs. Cosh's resignation were received and glowing tributes paid to her years of devoted service by both Dominion and Provincial officers and members. Then, in a beautiful ceremony, Mrs. C. H. Coles, first vice-president presented Mrs. Cosh with a Dominion Life Membership, the loving gift of the P.E.I. Branches.

Following this, five Diocesan Life Memberships were presented as follows: To Miss Lilla Coles, the gift of her sisters; Miss Ada Harris, from St. Paul's Evening Branch; Mrs. Ruth Dennis, from the Senior Branch, St. James Church, Port Hill; Mrs. Helen Matheson, from St. Paul's Branch A., and Mrs. S. Bryant from her husband and daughters.

The Recording Secretary's report was read by Mrs. E. V. Bell and the Corresponding Secretary's report by Miss Margaret Cotton, followed by a splendid and most gratifying report by the treasurer, Miss Ada Harris.

Mrs. Cosh then warmly welcomed the special speaker, Venerable Archdeacon Stead, who paid warm tribute to the part taken by women in the work of the church and gave an interpretation of what is needed to be a good Christian. One must accept the fact that Jesus Christ came for our salvation, take His life as an ideal and lead a life of fellowship with Him and with others.

Mrs. Cosh thanked the speaker and called on Mrs. J. B. Murley who made an appeal to all church people to give a warm welcome and a helping hand to the many new Canadians now with them.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by the members of St. Paul's W.A. and a social hour enjoyed.

Evening Service

At 7.30 p.m. a joint service for D.C.S. and W.A. was held in St. Peter's Cathedral when the speaker was Venerable J. Stead who was assisted in the service by the clergy of the diocese.

The second day of the annual meeting opened with service of Holy Communion at 7.45 a.m. in St. Peter's Cathedral. At this service the presentation of the Thankoffering was made.

The business meeting re-convened in St. Peter's Hall at 10.15 a.m. with Mrs. E. V. Bell leading the devotional period. Mrs. Cosh expressed pleasure at the substantial increase in membership reported this year and welcomed Mrs. Jollimore representing the newly formed branch at French River. Following the reading of minutes, reports of the year's work were given by the various officers.

Mrs. H. K. S. Hemming, Educational Secretary, reported that only three branches are now without an educational secretary and closed her most inspiring report with an appeal for more intelligent reading and thinking by all members. She spoke of the splendid assistance given her by Mrs. G. D. DeBlois who undertakes the sale of calendars.

Miss Gladys Hart, Girls' Secretary, spoke of the splendid camp held last year at Crapaud and appealed for leaders for this year's camp. A letter from Mrs. Carrington, suggesting that a G. A. Conference might be held in Toronto in 1953, was read and discussed.

Represented C. A. C.

Mrs. Cosh then called a brief recess and introduced Mrs. J. A. Lawson, representing the Canadian Association of Consumers, who briefly and convincingly outlined reasons why all Canadian women should give their active support to the work of that organization.

Mrs. W. E. Champion, Candidate's Secretary, spoke of the visit of Miss Francis Grey and the splendid work that has been done by the Anglican Woman's Training College during the past 60 years. There girls between the ages of 19 and 35 are given a three-years' course to fit them for work in the church or mission fields.

Mrs. Geo. Rogers, Living Message editor, gave a very complete report that showed once more an increase in subscriptions. She felt that many more should be taking advantage of the opportunity to have this splendid publication in their homes.

Mrs. M. Weeks, secretary-treas. of Juniors, reported for this very important branch of the W. A. work, making special mention of the outstanding work being done by the Kensington branch.

Due to the regrettable illness of Mrs. W. J. Paynter, Thankoffering Secretary, her report was given by Mrs. Townsend. It is most gratifying to know that this fund is once more oversubscribed.

The report of Mrs. S. Bryant, Dorcas Secretary, showed in detail the great amount of work done by her department during the year and expressed the appreciation of the recipients for the beautifully made and carefully picked articles which are always received from the P.E.I. branches. In answer to inquiries, Miss L. Young gave an interesting description of the work of the Bishop's Messengers at St. Faith's Mission.

Mrs. I. Horne, Secretary-Treas. of Little Helpers, reported a most satisfactory year and Miss Maude Haslam, Prayer Partner Secretary; made members more conscious of the great value of this contact with workers in lonely places by her quotations from correspondents' letters. In the absence through illness of Mrs. T. E. MacNutt, Cent-a-Week Sec'y., her report was read by Miss Ada Harris.

Noontide Devotional

The noontide devotional period was conducted by Rev. R. W. B. Coupland who spoke of the ever present need of the world for the services of faithful women and admonished all, as parents, to instil in our children a love of and devotion to the Church.

Mrs. J. T. Rodd, Social Work Sec'y., reported a steady growth of that department in work for both home and abroad.

Miss Laura Young, custodian of the Book of Remembrance, that beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Simpson, reported a total of 94 names now inscribed.

Mrs. W. E. Scantlebury brought in the report of the nominating committee as follows:

Hon. Pres., Mrs. H. G. Raymond; pres., Mrs. W. E. Champion; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. C. H. Coles; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. W. J. Dennis; 3rd vice-pres., Miss Eva Dyer; Corresponding Sec'y., Miss Margaret Cotton; Recording Secretary, Mrs. E. V. Bell; Treasurer, Miss Ada Harris; Girls' Secretary, Miss Gladys Hart; Sec'y.-Treas., Juniors, Mrs. M. W. Weeks, Secy.-Treas. Little Helpers, Mrs. I. Horne; Dorcas Sec'y., Mrs. S. Bryant; Living Message Sec'y., Mrs. Geo. Rogers; Thankoffering Secy., Mrs. W. J. Paynter; Cent-a-Week Secy., Mrs. Harvey MacPherson; Supt. of Prayer Partners, Miss Maude Haslam; Educational Sec.-Treasurer, Mrs. H. K. S. Hemming; Social Service Secy., Mrs. J. T. Rodd.

Luncheon

At noon a delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of St. Peter's W. A., after which the meeting re-convened to discuss reports and conclude the business of the day.

A discussion of Young People's work and G. A. work in particular aroused a great deal of interest since the importance of young people taking an early interest in the mission work of the church is appreciated by all. A lively discussion of Social Service work as carried on in the various branches led to a clearer picture of the distinction between W. A. Social Service and Parish responsibility.

It was decided to send the Little Helper's donation as usual, to the Sunday School by Post, and a sum of money was voted to the Canadian Mission for the Araucanian Indians of Chile.

Greetings were sent to Bishop Waterman, Mrs. Wodehouse, Dominion President, Mrs. Raymond and Miss Eva Dyer, also to the newly organized branch of St. Thomas in St. John's, Nfld.

Resolutions of sympathy in illness were sent to Rev. J. T. Ibbott, Mrs. T. E. MacNutt, Mrs. W. J. Paynter and Mrs. W. W. Clark, and affectionate greetings to Dr. Florence Haslam and Rev. Neville Palmer, missionaries on active service, and to retired missionaries Miss Audrey DeBlois and Father Cotton.

The thanks of the meeting was extended to the clergy who took part in and helped to arrange for the various services. It was decided to hold the semi-annual this year at the Youth Center in Crapaud.

The new president, Mrs. W. E. Champion was given a hearty welcome to her office and Mrs. Harvey MacPherson was also welcomed to the executive.

Following a vote of thanks to Mrs. Cosh for her capable handling of the meetings, the annual meeting came to a close with prayers offered by the retiring president.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
Part One

"Sally, how nice of you to come!" beamed Catherine Wingate, advancing to the door.

"How nice of you to say I'm nice," shot back Sally suavely. "I was under the impression that you didn't like the Allistons."

"Then what I said at the tea shop that afternoon was wasted?" Catherine looked regretful. "I really meant it, too. I dislike people who take advantage of other people, and you've not taken advantage of Philip, now have you?"

"I never made a play for him."

"I know." Catherine deliberated. "I suppose you are here about your mother?"

"Naturally."

"Your mother was wrong, Sally. You know that. Her approach has always been wrong."

"She is still my mother."

"Grandfather Jethrup is going to remain in the house. Philip and I—" She broke off as the man in question came ambling in. The serene expression on his face disappeared the instant he saw Sally. She laughed: "Philip Jethrup, don't you dare look at me that way! We were reared together, remember?"

"Sally, I . . ."

"I know, Philip. But honestly, did I ever make a play for you?"

He caught the implication almost at once, and back came the serene expression. Catherine put her arm through his and laughed.

"Grandfather Jethrup is used to your mother, Sally. Doesn't that answer your question?"

"Maybe I ought to kiss the bride."

Dronda Moore nodded with satisfaction as the great airliner taxied to the far end of the runway in preparation for the take-off. She did not know how Bill Burke had managed to do it, but there they all were—Helen and Sally and Mike.

She turned to Jimmy and took his arm with something akin to delight.

"Excited, chum?"

"Ready to burst out into song," he admitted. "Golly, I have to pinch myself to make sure I'm not dreaming."

Sally laughed as she passed them en route to her station. "What an original remark, Mr. Kennedy."

"Stewardesses," he said frigidly, "should keep their remarks to themselves."

Remarked Helen sweetly: "Someone's riding to an awful awful fall."

"Do you have to talk like that?" demanded Dronda with a superstitious shiver. "Do you want to jinx us?"

"And what are you doing here, anyway?" queried Jimmy. "Getting a transfer?"

"Could be. Won't you miss me, ducky wucky?"

"You are talking to my future husband," Dronda Moore informed her icily. "Kindly keep the pet names to yourself."

"Come, come, ladies," intervened Mr. Burke. "Is this the way to behave?"

"Does The Romantic Blitzkrieg know how to behave?" Helen clapped her hands. "How wonderful!"

"I like the clouds," murmured Dronda. "They're so beautiful. Jimmy, you mean you can give all this up for me?"

Around her shoulders went his arm; down dropped his voice into the throaty whisper all three girls knew, "Darling, I would give the world up for you."

And she had to stand there and take it, take this triumph! Stewardess Sally Alliston wanted to cry with vexation, wanted to hit him with all her might.

And soon they'd be in Buffalo, and soon Jimmy would be married to Dronda, and soon he would be out of her reach. She ground her teeth. Out of her reach!

"Stewardess," said Dronda suddenly, "I bet you heard those words before, huh?"

"My memory is a faulty thing at best, Miss Moore."

"Huh!"

"Still, that's just as well. For example, if I had a good memory I might remember a girl who was rather nice to me on several occasions. A girl I thought was my friend."

New York police are awaiting an improvement in the condition of Albert Partridge to learn who slugged and robbed the 65-year-old Barrie, Ont., resident in a New New York YMCA. Partridge, who was said to have come from Bermuda to New York, was found beaten and roped to his bed, his two suitcases missing.

grumbled today, at the thought of it, recent buyings were brought in — prospective feeders to maintain the traditions of our occupation, that, come many an unexpected discouragement, and despite loss and cross, farming must continue. No matter plagues or wars, presently the land, clean-washed and spring-new, will await the seedtime; soon too, the fresh verdure of pastures will beg for the herds and the flocks that even by cropping them assure us of other verdures to come. James complained but stepped out with alacrity in his heart to meet the newcomers and welcome them to the ups and downs of their station here.

This week too, brought increases in the piggeries, the first of our fortunes which in time will be continued in repetitions along the months ahead. Fat hogs in an initial shipment "to sort of get the rights of these new shipping regulations" left the farm, ushering in a nice period, granddaughter and others of the womenkind are pleased to know will continue to give them not only—though it is in questionable measure —promise of sustenance, but also outings by small truck to the city.

Today—and yesterday, in repeated trips, loads of feed were brought in by horses and sleighs along the winding and less direct road-of-field from the vicinity of the cornerstore to replenish our stock of it put in, back through the months and now depleted. The farmers breathed more freely at the completion of this because March— and April storms could put an end to all traffic.

"Where is your milk-stool, Ellen?" James beamed, springing to his feet when we entered a stable this morning and the chore was already in progress. "Why, here it is, Right here!" At length, one milked brought his "You'd better not try any of the others, Ellen . . . unless .. . . but she's a quiet animal . . . if you like you might milk that heifer by the door!"

And now week's end. Workaday cares rested . . .an exquisite peace lingering about. And presently, while night-angels keep watch and ward, sleep, sound or such as will allow pleasant dreams.

"Now our wants and burdens leaving
To His care, who cares for all,
Cease we fearing, cease we grieving,
At His touch our burdens fall."

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of outstanding accomplishment, with fulfilled desires, hopes and wishes. There may be promotion, new business deals of importance, with honors, dignities and tokens of appreciation from those in authority or high place and power. Pleasure and gratification in private as well as public esteem may spur exalted ambitions with corollary rewards and emoluments. But be not carried into false positions through reckless or impetuous speech or actions.

A child born on this day is splendidly gifted for a constructive, prosperous and happy life — talented and aspiring in its drive for happiness.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

For Divisions or elocution Contests

INTEMPERANCE

Intemperance! thou are the rapids!,
A cataract of misery untold,
And down in the seething waters
Are going the young and the old.
Who never awake to the danger
That lurks in the habit of drink
Until they are caught in the current
And carried right over the brink.

Now, what must we think of the many
Who engage in this business of woe,
Who for greed will debauch their weak brothers
That wealth to their coffers may flow?
And how will they stand in the judgment,
Where nothing unholy can hide,
Or how give account to the Master
Of the souls they have marred and destroyed?

We must never give up our endeavour
To bridge o'er this torrent of sin;
We will still in the name of our Master
Keep on, till the battle we win.
Oh! the pity that lives that are precious
Should be blighted and ruined to day,
When a jaw could be formed that would save them,
With temptation kept out of the way.

Arise you, ye grave politicians!
Take your stand for the right in this strife;
The demon of drink is a menace
To the growth of our national life.
Sobriety builds up a country
In all that is good and sublime,
While drunkenness always conduces
To idleness, poverty and crime.

Wake up to this fact, Christian people,
And reach out a firm helping hand,
For the sake of the youths and the maidens,
Who are the hope of the land.
Wake up to the true situation
That government cannot control,
And when next called to vote on this question,
Vote it out! Vote it out at the poll.

HUNTER RIVER W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday night, Feb. 7th ,at the

The meeting opened with the singing of Hymn 148, "Breathe On Me" and verses 1-22 of the second chapter of Ephesians were read in turn by the members, and Mrs. Orville Sellar led in prayer. Mrs. Emmett Bernard read a report of Berwick Camp meeting which described in detail the setting, speakers and services. Hymn 252, "In Christ There Is No East or West" was then sung.

Mrs. Seaman took the lead in the study book period in the absence of Mrs. Jack MacLeod. Those assisting her in the final chapter, "Our Fellow Canadians From the Orient", were Mrs. Emmett Bernard, Mrs. Edison Newman, Mrs. Clayton Tremere, Mrs. Wellington Patterson, and Mrs. George Nesbit.

The minutes were read and approved and 22 answered the roll call, three paying their dues. Mrs. J. L. LePage read letters from the Presbyterial Christian Stewardship Citizenship Secretaries and it was agreed to work for the 10% above $200.00 allocation. Mrs. J. Andrews reported 76 home and 20 hospital calls were made.

Mrs. Fred Smith reported 11 books were read and collection amounted to $4.13, and several members sewed their contributions into the apron patches.

Lunch committee for the next meeting is Mrs. E. Bernard, Mrs. C. Whitlock and Mrs. J. MacLeod and the meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. J. L. LePage.

The meeting closed with prayer in unison, and refreshments were served.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

by being pleasant? Both are wrong! A warm, cordial, friendly encounter is in order.

What about your conversation? Here's where I think some of the trouble may lie. Are you so wrapped up in sports that they exclude all other topics in your conversation? Do you give the girl a chance to get a word in edgewise? Or are you, perhaps, so self-conscious that you make her carry the burden alone?

If you want to get ahead socially—and it will also help you in business—I suggest some attention to acquiring a little more formal education. Both your writing and spelling could be better, and if these deficiencies mirror your general knowledge, there is room for improvement. Perhaps your speech is careless. A certain amount of laxity in observing rules of pronunciation and grammar is not taken amiss, but lapses that are too frequent or too noticeable might irk the young ladies whose favor you seek. Read more; increase your knowledge of current events, books, movies and the theatres as well as sports. Learn to dance, if you cannot already do so. Above all, take yourself apart, figuratively, and try to find out what's wrong with the pieces. A little effort, a little patience, and the girls will stop turning down your invitations.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 24, and for some time have been in love with a man 39 who has been married before and has two children. Last summer we broke off, and he went away to get a job. I then met a man 28, and we became very friendly, though I wouldn't say I'm in love with him. Then Dave, the first man, came back to town and we began seeing each other again. He said he is not financially able to marry, and thinks I should stop wasting my time on him and find someone else. Do you think I should wait for him, or not?

ELIZABETH

ANSWER: It appears that you are being let down very gently, and the most graceful thing, by all means, is to take the hint and break off with Dave. Perhaps he met someone else while he was away this summer, or perhaps he is just marriage shy. One bad matrimonial experience often makes a man quite timid about a second try. At any rate, he obviously does not want to marry you, and you'll save yourself heartache and embarrassment by letting him go.

DEAR MISS DIX: Six months ago, when I was 14, I met an 18-year-old boy. He gave me a ring that had his name in it. Two months ago I returned the ring because he was seeing other girls. Now he won't even speak to me. Was I wrong to return the ring?

BETTE R.

ANSWER: You were wrong to accept it in the first place. Having accepted it, you certainly weren't entitled to exercise such proprietary rights over a boy as young as he. You're acquiring domineering ways at quite an early age. Both of you were, and are, too young to become involved with rings. You were right to return the ring, but wrong to make demands

Card Of Thanks

I wish to thank Doctors, Nurses and Staff of the Provincial Sanatorium for their kindness to me. Also those who sent flowers, letters and cards or visited me during my stay there.

Card Of Thanks

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. T. Mercer and family wish to express their appreciation to the friends of Prince Edward Island, who visited them, and all those who sent floral tributes, letters and cards of sympathy at the time of the passing of Mrs. Mercer's mother.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Husband and Father, Angus MacEachern, Rocky Point, P. E. I., who passed away March 15th, 1950.

Time speeds on, two years have passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast,
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.

We miss that light, and ever will,
His vacant place their is none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.

COVEHEAD Y. P. U.

The Y. P. U. of Covehead met at the home of Verna and Gideon MacLauchlan on Feb. 22nd with an attendance of 14 members. The meeting opened by singing "He Leadeth Me", followed by the reading of the Scripture by Beryl MacDonald.

Rev. Mr. Wilson led in prayer and Doris Brown read a very touching story entitled "Two Died For Me". This part of the program closed by singing "Softly and Tenderly".

The president, Erma Hughes, took charge of the business period and the minutes were read and approved, and the roll answered.

It was reported that $6.00 was taken in at the last crokinole party and it was decided to have another at the home of Erma and Chesley Hughes. The collection amounted to $1.45.

A questionnaire from Presbytery was read and the questions discussed and answered. It was moved and seconded to give $3.00 towards sending Miss Underhay to the National Council at Winnipeg.

The devotional leader for the next meeting will be Alta Bearisto and the recreational leader Shirley MacMillan. Lunch committee for next meeting is to be Doreen Hughes and Doris Brown.

The recreation consisted of a contest put on by Doreen Hughes and won by Erma Hughes, also a contest by Beryl MacDonald which was won by Chesley Hughes. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and committee in charge.

JOHN STANLEY MOSER

John Stanley Moser died suddenly early Wednesday morning, February 27th, at his home at 74 Mokema Avenue, Waltham, Mass., U. S. A.

Mr. Moser was born at Flat River, P. E. I., 57 years ago, eldest son of the late Daniel Henry Mark Moser (of Moser River, N. S., and Flat River, P. E. I.) and Margaret Moser (the former Margaret Riley of Flat River).

Besides his widow, Mary (Smith) Moser of Waltham, he leaves his mother, sister Margaret and brother Cecil R., all of Flat River. Another brother, Guy H. died in childhood. Marjorie, daughter by a former marriage resides in Nova Scotia.

Funeral services for Mr. Moser were held on Saturday, March 1st, at 10 o'clock at the Wentworth Chapel, Waltham. Rev. Gordon P. Tate, pastor of the Lakeview Congregational Church, officiated, and incorporated into his service Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar". Paul Dexter Wentworth was at the organ and played favorite hymns. Russel Porter Wentworth, tenor, sang the hymn "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

There was a delegation from the Cambridge Electric Light Co., wher Mr. Moser was employed as maintenance engineer.

Burial took place in Vine Hill Cemetery, Plymouth, Mass.
