SPRING SONG

The whisper of taffeta rustles through the spring sartorial symphony. Nat Kaplan uses inky black silk taffeta for a most attractive two piece dress with touches of white for an added attraction. The skirt is a full swirl of knife pleats slightly rounded over the hips. The molded jacket is double collared and cuffed with richly embroidered white organdy. A beautiful idea for an important occasion such as a wedding and perfect for important late-day dates. Delightful, too, in navy blue with white.

ELLEN'S DIARY

May Takes Us Along To Blossom-Crowned June

This May - week was cool—"backward" as to its weather, we said. Yet we saw fields green and dry, buds unfold on the lawn-trees, daffodils blow goldenly. And remembered that this one is pretty much as were former May's... Already, marking Spring's progress, some of our flock of sheep are on peramnent pasture and before long the younglings of cattle will be off to the fields.

This week was full of choring for the farmers, each day seeing some addition made to herd or flock: calves in mixed shadings and the solid colors of those more royally born. And from a small beginning, dating back to a time when for a few years this farm was without sheep, the flock has increased almost magically to make now an engaging sight as they range on a pasture.

"There's no other stock so easily care for," we overheard the younger farmer say of them to an admiring visitor today. "A bit of extra work in the lambing season—that's all. Fencing? You'd be surprised at the light fence that will hold them—if they're not used to roving. But let them get into that habit and at once there's trouble on your hands!"

The spring fencing of the farms is about completed. Presently the land-work will commence. Recently to lighten further the labor of handling the quantity of barnyard manure, now in heaps along the fields waiting to be spread, a lift has been added to the machinery at Rob's, an item which "all in the family" will also prove its worth at Alderlea, in this initial work of the cropping.

So May takes us along and past first flowers and new leaves, just around a bend of way, June crowned with blossoms waits.

This week? How good it was to the folks to these farms! Returning to us safe and well, Jeanie and her new-born He is a sturdy child, dark-haired, while Granddaughter and Mack were—and are, fair. Pretty? As are all babes, and certainly already very dear. Truly as someone declares in verse each babe is "God's Masterpiece."

"From graceful lilies pure and white
God fashioned lovely skin;
Forget-me-nots He chose for eyes
Then formed your baby chin.

He took a tulip bright and red,
'Twas one that did not fade;
A softer sweeter little mouth
Before was never made.

Another flower next He used—
A rosebud pink and fair;
Touched it to your dimpled cheeks
Adn bade it blossom there.

Then with His magic fingers picked
Two morning-glories white;
Curled and shaped your little ears
Soon they were fastened tight.

That crowning bit of golden down
Will soon become your hair;
He gathered pollen from the flowers
And sprinkled it with care.

For dainty little fingers, dear,
And precious tiny toes,
He used the slender daisy frills
A snowdrop for your nose.

This world and all within it
He created here for man;
But baby was 'God's Masterpiece'
Since time and life began."

Until Monday — — — Diary — Good-night.

Women's University Club Enjoys Wide Interests

Dr. Doris B. Saunders president of the Canadian Federation of University Women in her newsletter to club members prior to summer vacation says in part.

Dear Members:

Two matters of National importance have lately added zest to our endeavours. As the Canadian Federation is always interested in the development and preservation of Canadian culture in all its aspects, and as we were spurred by the intelligent concern of the Oakville and Cornwall clubs over the demolition of buildings along the St. Lawrence seaway, our members in the East went into action. A survey revealed that the Government of Ontario has formed some exciting plans to preserve buildings of historic and architectural interest. Some of the exceptional aspects are: the establishment in Upper Canada Village of a working farm of pioneer times, and an historic centre designed by Professor Anthony Adamson of Port Credit; an inter - denominational church, and nearby a Wild Fowl Sanctuary, connected by a scenic drive to link together the whole park area. The excellence of these provincial plans led us to ask the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources, Mr. Lesage, what was being done at the national level to preserve building of architectural and historic significance, and indeed, their interior fittings such as fireplace mantle, wood panelling, etc. which might later become a valuable contribution to the furnishing of the proposed Museum of Human History. A reply has been received from Mr. Lesage, and we are eagerly awaiting the complete report which he has promised to send us.

With the recent appointment of Miss Ruth Addison to the Civil Service Commission, we rejoice that another milestone in our work to improve the status of Canadian women has been reached.

In February the Toronto club finally saw its dreams fulfilled when President Sidney Smith opened their remodelled club-house. The spacious new lounges and new dining-room facilities have to be seen to be fully appreciated. To the reception on February 22nd came the officers from surrounding clubs, and gaiety reigned supreme.

Way off in Victoria, over 200 members from all parts of British Columbia gathered on March 9th for a Regional Conference. Members asked, "What do we need from our Universities?" and discussed "British Columbia's New Teacher Training Programme". A stimulating speech by Mr. Willard Ireland, Provincial Librarian and Archivist, on "Culture in Canada: Its Prospects and Problems" together with a reception, at the gubernatorial home of Mrs. Frank Ross, made a memorable day.

The C.F.U.W. has been invited to send representatives to the British Federation's fiftieth anniversary celebration in London in May, and to the American Association's seventy-fifth anniversary celebrations in Boston in June. Mrs. E.W.S. Kane, a past president of the Edmonton Club, will attend the former's festivities and Mrs. M.T. Bancroft the latter's.

Miss Saunders closes her letter concerning the clubs many activities with good wishes to everyone for a happy and restful summer.

Lost Fishing Record To Shark

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP)—Hungry sharks robbed Mrs. Dorothea Dean of Palm Beach, Fla., of a probable women's worlds' record for blue marlin Tuesday.

They chomped between 150 and 300 pounds off a fish Mrs. Dean hooked while competing in the Bimini Big Game Fishing Club tuna tournament.

The remains boated by Mrs. Dean weighed 568 pounds and measured 13 feet from bill to tail.

Veteran fishermen who examined the catch said it would have exceeded the current women's world record of 606 pounds held by Mrs. Harley Earl of Grosse Pointe, Mich., boated off Bimini in 1949. The all-tackle record is 780 pounds.

Green grass, unfolding leaves, flowers — and golf are all manifestations of the springtime. Saturday, May 25th, is the opening of the golf season at the Belvedere Links, Charlottetown. There is to be a delicious sliced turkey salad supper served at the club house. What to wear playing golf (as well as how to play golf) will be foremost in the conversation. A golfer's sweater that is popular at present is in cozy white wool, red-flagged or done with green applique. Golfing skirts in pastels are smart accompaniments to the pullover or shirtwaist. Dining on the terrace using nests of tables could become a pleasant custom at Belvedere as the view is really beautiful from the clubhouse. However the main thing is that golf balls have appeared, spring is here and golfers are happy.

Girl Prefers Good Driver

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP) — Local beauty queen Liliane Lavallee, 22, says she'd rather drive with a boy who keeps both hands on the wheel than with one arm around her.

"Show-off drivers really make me mad," she says.

Since she holds these convictions, officials look to her as an efficient mentor of the provincial roadeo to foster safer teen-age driving, scheduled for St. Lambert on June 1.

At this safe-driving exhibition boys who have previously won driving contests in their communities will compete for a gold cup and a $100 prize for skill and safety on the road.

The teen-age roadeo was begun two years ago and provincial officials hope that youngsters taught safe driving habits will retain them as they grow older.

DON'T IMPRESS

Miss Lavellee thinks that reckless drivers impress very few girls on a date.

"If boys realized this, I think a lot of dangerous driving would stop," she says.

Apart from speeding, bad driving habits which she frowns on include lighting cigarets while driving, "tourist-guiding" with attention of the driver fixed on anything except the highway, and talking over the shoulder to someone in the back seat.

"I don't want to be an accident statistic," says Liliane.

Women Run Home Defence

Under the civil defence plan, Wilmot township would be required to accept 12,280 evacuees from Hamilton in the event of atomic attack.

This is more than twice the township's population of 5,500.

Helen Yeo Gives Her Views On United Nations

The following article is from the Business and Professional Womens Magazine for May and June 1957 The caption is "First Impressions of the United Nations" by Helen Yeo, national federation's U. N. fellowship winner for 1957. The article is as follows:

The soft white of marble, stretching on toward the skyline beyond the great windowed walls; the broad winding stairs and the surging orderly crowds, moving with something of awe through the beauty and dignity of the counsel rooms—this was my first impression of United Nations.

Standing alone in the midst of hundreds from just anywhere, I felt something of the symbolism, the serenity, amidst movement.

The days slipped by. Days that were fuller than any I had ever experienced.

There was the working sessions. In the chair was Agda Rossel, well-known and beloved past international deputy president. On her right was Mrs. Tennison-Woods, chief of the Commission on the Status of Women; on her left the competent secretary of commission. Behind them were the members of the secretariat.

In dignified order the business progressed. Political rights for women, in all countries, young and undeveloped, old and experienced. Access to education; equal pay, the problem partly solved, but still holding many pitfalls; occupations for older women, for women in the home, for young women, even now standing at the door of a new age. These were some of the topics that were debated by representatives from 18 member states, seated in a semi-circle in Conference Room 2.

There were exhaustive documents on each of the 12 items on the agenda, giving background material for the discussions. We followed the debates throughout by instantaneous interpretation

Behind the delegates was a second circle of tables where representatives of specialized agencies —IOL, UNESCO, WHO—affiliatd with the Economic and Social Council were seated. In the same circle were the observers of non-governmental organizations, including Internation Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Our Delegation, IFBPW, was composed of Judge Sarah Hughes, UN chairman; Mrs. Louise Arnold, Cape Town, South Africa, international federation fellowship winner; Mrs. Suzanne Shallnar; Mrs. Esther Hymer, technical advisor and myself.

The group was one with consultative status B. That is, we had the privilege of speaking on the subject which was being debated and which we and our federation might have studied. We spoke on equal pay, political rights, and vocational guidance. Statements were based on information from member clubs all over the world.

Thus, the commission, government appointed, whose purpose was to study problems relating to women and to report to the Economic and Social Council, looked for assistance from groups of individuals who had studied the problems in their own communities. So it was that our member clubs made their contributions to the "Workshop of Peace."

The whole story was not unfolded in Conference Room 2. There were luncheons, teas and dinners; informal chats with Ceylon and Pakistan, with Japan and Australia; an exchange of ideas with the USSR (through the interpreter) across a table. There was the privilege of hearing speakers such as Mr Cordier, assistant secretary-general, in a UN briefing session and Mr. Francis Wilcox, assistant secretary of state of the United States, guest speaker at the United States non-governmental organizations dinner. There was the honor, too, of being a guest at a reception given by the UN to delegates to the Commission These occasions were made possible to us—the Fellows—by the never-failing thoughtfulness of Mrs Esther Hymer.

After the working day was over, there was the "sidewalks of New York", a Disneyland from the Empire State Building at night; the Planetarium and a "Visit to the Moon"; dinner in Chinatown with the Pan-Pacific group; Radio City Music Hall and the Philharmonic Symphony; Carnegie Playhouse, the Metropolitan Opera; Sunday service with a Prince Edward Islander in the pulpit and always at night, through the windows of my 19th floor room, the lights speeding across the bridge that spans the dark water and the rhythmic swish and roar of the city below.

"New York is a friendly city!" said a newly found friend of a BPW friend in Prince Edward Island. I found it so at a BPW dinner on Staten Island; at a BPW tea in Barclay Hotel; in a new friend from Cape Town and in many other contacts,

All this was mine for the weeks while I attended the UN Commission on the Status of Women.

The clubs of Canada gave it to me.

I am very grateful!

Those Tonsorial Troglodytes!

LONDON (CP) — British men who don't like women to tint their hair were described as "tonsorial troglodytes" by J. G. Laurie, president of the Hairdressing Manufacturers and Wholesalers Association.

"One meets men who, in this supposedly enlightened age, in which fashion has become available to all women whatever their status in life, believe that tinted hair is in some way the first step on the road to immorality.

"It is time that we exposed these tonsorial troglodytes —for that is what they are. Hair coloring has now come to stay."

The Oxford Dictionary defines troglodyte as a cave-dweller or hermit.
