Tired but Sleepless

Is a condition which gradually wears away the strength. Let the blood be purified and enriched by Hood's Sarsaparilla and this condition will cease.

"For two or three years I was subject to poor spells. I always felt tired, could not sleep at night and the little I could eat did not do me any good. I read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before I had finished two bottles I began to feel better and in a short time I felt all right and had gained 21 pounds in weight. I am stronger and healthier than I have ever been in my life." JOHN W. COUGHLIN, Wallaceburg, Ontario.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye today. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's. Do not be induced to buy and other.

ADOPTED THE SWEATER.

Is Straight Lines Changed to Beautiful Curves—Now It is a Feminine Garment.

The "sweater," once a shapeless thing in straight lines and coarse threads has been transformed into a thing of beauty and joy, and has been adopted by woman as her own.

In the shops which cater to the need of the new woman it may be seen, but as they say in novels—oh, how changed! The erstwhile simple sweater, the simplest of all know garments, has become under woman's gentle influence a curious mongrel piece of attire. It retains its old seamless-ness, but it boasts of sleeves distended as though with crinoline. It haunts itself in every known color. It encircles the form of the store dummy with the rose and gray stripes of Vassar. It flashes forth in vivid Yale blue for the benefit of Yale sympathizers. It burns in crimson for the damsels whose affections turn towards Harvard. Princeton black and orange and Cornell white and cardinal fight together for supremacy in producing blindness. And not only in gorgeousness of hue and in breadth of sleeves does the woman's sweater show the influence of woman. There are sweaters which, opening at the neck, are laced daintily with silk cords run through eyelet holes. There are sweaters which show revers of contrasting colors. There are even sweaters adorned with white ribbon bows. Fancy a man going forth to practice for a rowing contest clad in a gray sweater with big sleeves, pink revers, pink lacing cord and a pink ribbon bow flutt-ring from his breast.

The Baby on the Farm.

Even if the baby's coming interferes with all sorts of thrifty plans to help the husband pay off the mortgage on the farm, an acute financier once gave a large sum of money to endow a college upon the ground that he considered boys a better investment than land. writes Helen Jay, in the July Ladies' Home Journal. In the childless home the money may come in more quickly than it goes out until the whole farm is paid for, but what does it profit if there are none of our own to enjoy it with us, and no one to receive it as a sacred inheritance when we are gone?

As a class, farmers' wives identify themselves more closely with their husbands' financial interests than any other class of women. They are willing to work hard and sacrifice themselves to help buy a home and to educate their children. They feel that if they cannot earn money they can at least save it. It becomes a problem sometimes how to steer between legitimate thrift on one hand and unnecessary economy on the other. Sometimes a woman works so hard in trying to increase the bank account that she ruins not only her physical health but her disposition as well. A nervous, worn-out, fretful woman is not a fit associate, even on hygenic grounds, for a sensitive, impressionable child, who reflects the passing moods of those about him as in a looking glass. If it is a question then of bank account, immaculate closets and well-filled storerooms on the one hand, and a bright, cheerful mother on the other, I would unhesitatingly choose the latter. The children whose mothers have no time to pet them are to be pitied. To amuse the baby and to romp with it is sometimes quite as much a religious duty as to pray for it.

Dr. Parkhurst on Early Marriage.

It is closely in keeping with the whole train of argument to say a word in regard to early marriages, writes the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D., in an article on "The Safeguards of Marriage," in the July Ladies' Home Journal. That is the natural order of event. Divine intention seems quite distinct upon the matter. Such marriages when properly consummated are a means of personal establishment and security to the parties implicated. For a young man or a young woman to be wholesomely married is the next step to being regenerated. To be out of that condition is counter to nature, and to disregard nature subjects to all kinds of exposure. It is sometimes forgotten that nature's arrangements and intentions are in the nature of a divine ordinance, which may be of the same authoritativeness as though drafted literally and included in the decalogue.

Didn't Know Her Customer.

Princess Christian is, perhaps, the best known of Queen Victoria's daughters, and is always actively engaged in philanthropic causes. At a recent bazaar she was seen going from stall to stall making purchases. Prince Christian good-naturedly stowing away the small parcels in his pockets. One article purchased, however was of considerable size, so the attendant put the question: "Shall I send it for you, madam?" To which the Princess made answer: "O, yes, send it to Buckingham palace, if you please." "To whom shall I address it?" was the next query, and her Royal Highness, who dearly loves a joke, gave the prince a comical warning look, and said: "Address it to Mrs. Christian." The attendant was quite unsuspicious of the rank of her customers, and so the parcel was duly dispatched to "Mrs. Christian, Buckingham palace."

Woman's Greatest Charm.

I am quite sure that men regard "sweet simplicity" as the greatest charm in women, and especially in girls, writes Ethel Ingalls in a delightful little dissertation on "The Girl in Society," in the July Ladies' Home Journal. This does not mean simplicity in the simpering sense, but an absence of that affected air of boldness and mannishness which has lately been assumed by too many really lovable girls. Then, too, sincerity in expression is one of the characteristics that charm men. To be sincere and candid the girl in society need never be abrupt nor self-assertive.

A Husband's Revenge.

Some time ago the proprietor of a travelling wild beast menagerie well known in Italy, quarrelled with his wife and the pair separated. The wife soon afterwards went into business on her own account in the wild beast line. Last week the husband's menagerie arrived in Bologna, and it was followed two days later by that of his wife. The husband was equal to the occasion. He had the walls of the town placarded with the following ambiguous announcement: "In consequence of the arrival of my wife in this town the stock of wild beasts has been increased."—London Daily News.

A pleasing agitation will shortly fill the minds of the ladies touching new costumes. Nothing better can be obtained than a Cravenette. In a variety of shades, it makes up as a smart costume or wrap, or cloak, if need be, while it is at the same time absolutely impervious to rain or dust. It is rainproof, and yet as porous as any other dress material, so that it is free from the objections of the rubber goods. Cravenette in Navy, Myrtle, Brown, Grey, Castor and Black, the ideal dress goods for spring and summer. Save money, in wear, while it guarantees as distinguished appearance.

MERRY MOMENTS.

Biggs—Why does Brown always write his jokes on such thin paper? Diggs—So the editors can see through them, I suppose.—Albany Journal.

Cholly—Why do so many of the girls get married in June? June brides, you know. Polly—That's easy. It's because they're asked.—Chicago Record.

Tommy's Pop—Why is it the little boy who lives across the street seems to have no friends? Tommy—Why, his father's a baseball umpire.—Philadelphia Record.

Casey—Phat made Mulligan fall off de ladder? Did his fut slip? Reilly—It did not. Oi told him a joke an hour ago, an' sure he jist now tumbled.—Philadelphia Record.

Willie—What does allmony mean, pa? Does it mean all the money? Pa (bitterly)—Yes, all the money a man can scrape together, and more, too, sometimes.—New York World.

She—I was playing whist algo last night. It was the first meeting of our Young Ladies' Whist Club. He—I wondered what made you so lousse.—Harlem Life.

"Talk about daylight robbery being the height of impudence," said the man as he shook his fist at the gas meter, "it is not in it with gaslight robbery, No."—Indianapolis Journal.

"Have you read my last poem in the magazine?" "No, but if it's really your last, just name the magazine and I'll buy it."—Atlanta Constitution.

He—You see, the free coinage of silver would inflate prices——" She—Would it? Then you'd better let me have some money so I can get in some bargains at once.—Brooklyn Life.

Hojack—The air seems rarer than it used to be. Tomdik—Well, perhaps it is rarer. You know that a good deal is being used in pneumatic bicycles tires now.—Harper's Bazar.

"Do you know," gushed Miss Mayflower, "I think Jack is very much interested in palmistry. He told me he paid $25 one evening last week just to look at another man's hand."—Boston Bulletin.

Lumleigh—What makes you think young Phether Waite is a drummer for a bicycle concern? Chumleigh—Anybody can see that. He carries samples in his head.—New York World.

Dolly—I told Mr. Nicefellow that I bet Reggie twenty kisses our boat would win a race at the regatta. Daisy—Well, wasn't he shocked? Dolly—No, I let him hold the stakes.—Boston Globe.

She (in the art gallery)—I wonder if my hat is on straight; everybody stares at me so. He—Naturally they do. You are the most perfect picture here. And now the cards are out.—Philadelphia Record.

Bass—Do you know that Fenderson is a regular lady killer? Cass—I suspected as much from what he said about the woman in the big hat just in front of him at the theatre the other night.—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. McBride (entering the kitchen)—Bridget, didn't I see that policeman kiss you? Bridget—Well, mum, sure an' yez wouldn't hev me lay mesilf opin to arrist for resistin' an officer, mum.—Harper's Bazar.

Smart—Whatever induced your uncle to marry the widow of a man who was hanged? Simpson—He has been married to widows before, and said he was tired of having the virtues of former husbands flung in his face.—Spare Moments.

"Ye can't believe half you read in books," said the newcomer to the warden. "What's the matter?" "I see in the library a book that says a man orter be the molder of his own fortune. I tried to be, an' here I am, jugged fer counterfeiting."—Washington Star.

"Why, father," cried the young man earnestly, "she's worth her weight in gold." "That may be," the millionaire carefully returned, "but even in that case you will bear in mind she wouldn't foot up above thirty-five or forty thousand dollars."—Rockland Tribune.

Rivers—You don't need to buy a bicycle suit, Banks. Here's a gray flannel one of mine. It's too big for you, but you can take it to a tailor's and have it cut down. Banks (inspecting it)—That won't be necessary, Rivers. I'll just take it to the laundry.—Chicago Tribune.

Husband—This cake is very good, my dear; but it seems to me there ought to be a little more—— Wife (in clear, incisive tones)—That cake came by mail and was made by your mother. Husband—Yes, as I was saying, there ought to be a little more—of it.—New York Weekly.

"You have been a good while getting upstairs," said Mrs. Smarte, who with her lord and master was stopping at one of our hotels. "Yes," replied Smarte; "I stopped to take an elevator." "Oh, you need not have taken the trouble to tell me," said Mrs. S. tossing her head, "I smelt your breath the moment you entered the room."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Newriche (patronizingly)—Were any of your ancestors men of note, Mr. Cynic? Mr. C.—Yes, madam, I should say so. One of them was the most famous admiral of his day, and commanded the rallied forces of the world. Mrs. N. (with an altered tone of deep respect)—Is it possible, Mr. C! and what was his name? "Noah, madam."—Life.

Bass—And of which variety is your wife, the clinging vine or the self-assertive? Cass—A little of both. When she wants a new dress or a new bonnet she generally begins in the clinging-vine role; if that doesn't bring the money, then she changes to the self-assertive; and—well—she invariably gets the dress or the bonnet.—Boston Transcript.

Don't Die Before Your Time.

"Why will you die?" That is the question the scientist now asks the miserable sufferer from consumption or lung trouble. The answer natural is, "because I can't help it." But the consumptive can help it. Miller's Emulsion, made from Norwegian Cod Liver, and combine with the hypophosphites of line and soda will cure nine cases out of ten of consumption, and the ten case can get a reprieve for a year or two. New blood is what the consumptive requires, and Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver, when taken, produces it. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In big Bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

In the British Museum there is a beautiful piece of stained glass, with an engraved emblazonment of the monarch Thothmes III., who lived 3,400 years ago.
A novel sort of window glas has been invented in Berlin. Persons on the inside of the house can see through it, but it is opaque to those on the outside.
Horses sell on the public streets in Atchison at seventy-five cents and a dollar apiece. A horse has to have a record and a pedigree to bring $5 in that town.
Rumors are afloat in the copper trade that the Rothschilds have bought the Anaconda mine, the greatest in the world. It has produced 100,000 pounds in one year and could turn out 50 per cent. more.
In 1876 the Calumet and Hecla mine produced half the copper mined in the whole country, while in 1890 this wonderful mine produced one-fourth that of the entire country and one-tenth of the entire world.
A merchant in Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago hired a trolley car, covered it with bunting and big advertisements of his business, put a fife and drum corps inside and sent it bowling over all the trolley routes in the city.
Prince Dimitri Khilkoy, a rich Russian nobleman, has followed Tolstoi's advice, dividing his estates among his peasants, reserving only seven acres to himself, which he cultivates to support his family. He devotes his spare time to teaching the peasants.
In 1891 the State of Pennsylvania produced 42,788,490 tons of bituminous coal, while Illinois produced 15,660,698 tons; Ohio produced 12,868,683 tons; West Virginia, 9,220,665 tons; Alabama, 4,759,781 tons; Iowa, 3,512,632 tons; Indiana, 2,973,474 tons, and Missouri, 2,674,606 tons.
The foundry in Birhimingham, Eng., where Watt worked out his idea of the steam engine, is now idle, after an existence of 133 years. At one time it employed 4,000 men, but its business gradually fell off, and when it closed its doors only 400 men were on the pay roll.
The City of Mexico has discovered that a most salutary measure in the matter of sanitation would be to secure a more rapid flow of its sewage. Accordingly, some twenty-five wind-mills are to be built in different parts of the city at a cost of $25,000, which will rotate paddle wheels in the sewers, and thus accomplish the desired object.
The Water Department of St. Louis are agitating against allowing saloonkeepers in that city to establish public drinking fountains in front of their saloons. This privilege was originally free, but an assessment of $25 imposed to prevent the increase of fountains has had a contrary effect. The fountains assist the saloonkeepers' business by attracting teamsters and drivers of vehicles generally. The Water Department state the city suffers from the waste entailed.
The largest ranch now running in full blast in the State of Wyoming is that owned by ex-Senator Warren. The farm is 75 by 100 miles, and is stocked with over 200,000 animals of various kinds, including horses, cattle, sheep, goats, hogs and half-breed buffalo. The itemized inventory shows that 400 horses, 20,000 cattle, and over 150,000 sheep daily graze on the ex-Senator's "broad acres." Compared with the State of Rhode Island, this gigantic farm is as a four-horse 'bus to a baby cab. The State mentioned is only 37 miles one way and 47 1-2 the other. The farm is 75 by 100 miles.
The ready 1-cent "put up" lunch for delivery in offices and downtown stores has reached such proportions that there are now six rival concerns in the business in New York city. Fully 200 boys and men are now engaged in the work of delivery, and uniformed servitors with their baskets or trays are a common sight downtown. Regular subscribers are given commutation rates. The Wall street district is the especial harvest of the lunch companies. The business grows more popular every day. An effort to introduce a 25-cent luncheon was a failure. The man or boy with 25 cents is most likely to go out to luncheon.
The last Legislature of Wiconsin passed a law providing for the creation of a State Board of Immigration, which shal undertake suitably to encourage and regulate the settlement of public lands. These lands include about 680,000 acres. The Government controls something less than 1,000,000 acres in the entire State, but much of this is not available for cultivation. The territory left open has a generous area, but the fact is worth noting that if these lands should be taken up with the rapidity which characterized the homestead preemption and purchase movement in the State in 1882 when 846,000 acres were taken up by settlers, there would be left next summer not an acre of available public land in Wisconsin.

Painless Dentistry!

TESTIMONIALS.

J E McDonald, D D S,—

The seventeen (17) teeth you extracted for me on Thursday, May 30th, at Doctor Robertson's, Crapaud, gave me less pain than I have suffered many times in having ONE taken out. I shall send all my suffering neighbors to you.

With gratitude yours,
MRS HUGH GILLIS.

Rose Valley, May 31, 1895.

Doctor McDonald, Dentist,—

Dear Doctor,—For two years I have been a constant sufferer from toothache, always in dread of having them taken out. Hearing of your success I determined to try your method, and now, after having you extract six for me, I can conscientiously say you are the only one who ever extracted a tooth for me WITHOUT PAIN. Truly yours,

MRS JAS DEVEREAUX.

McKinnon's English Ointment.

MR. NEIL MCKINNON,—

Dear Sir,—For five years I was a sufferer from eczema. Physicians could not help me. At last I bought a box of your Ointment, which helped me wonderfully, while two boxes made a complete cure. I can recommend it to all others similarly afflicted.

ALEX. MCKAY.
