Dulles Seen As Powerful Figure As American Secretary Of State

By JOHN T'EFFERNAN
WASHINGTON (Reuters) — An era in international relations ended today.

John Foster Dulles, one of the most powerful secretaries of state the United States has ever known, stepped quietly out of the picture after guiding the international affairs of the United States for just over six years.

The loss of his leadership at a time when critical negotiations with the Soviet Union regarding Berlin and Germany are about to start will be keenly felt, not only in the United States but among all the Allied nations.

BLOW TO EISENHOWER
The loss will be particularly felt by President Eisenhower, who, to an extraordinary extent, has leaned heavily on Dulles' advice in foreign affairs ever since he came to office in January, 1953.

Diplomats generally expect the president now to assume a greater control of foreign policy even after he appoints a successor to Dulles.

That successor is, in the opinion of diplomats and congressmen, almost certain to be Christian Herter, the acting secretary of state.

Herter will go to Paris to represent the U.S. at the Western foreign ministers' meeting beginning April 29. He will also go to Geneva for the negotiations with the Soviet Union at the foreign ministers' level beginning May 11.

TOP CHOICE
Herter's name has dominated all speculation in the last few weeks as the most likely successor to Dulles. Previously there had been some talk of the possibility of the appointment of C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, who has been helping Herter run the state department since Dulles went into hospital Feb. 10.

Others mentioned as possible successors are Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to the United Nations; Gen. Alfred Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross and former supreme NATO commander in Europe; John J. McCloy, former U.S. high commissioner in Germany and now head of the Chase Manhattan Bank; Thomas E. Dewey, former governor of New York and twice the Republican nominee for the presidency, and Eugene Black, president of the World Bank. Continuity in following the policies shaped by Dulles is a powerful reason, in the view of informed officials here, why the president will eventually name Herter.

Herter represented the U.S. at recent Allied strategy talks here and also joined the president in discussions with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan last month.

SUFFERS FROM ARTHRITIS
A former congressman and former governor of Massachusetts, he suffers from an arthritic condition that obliges him to use aluminum crutches. His doctors say, however, that his condition is no obstacle in his work in the state department.

President Eisenhower has frequently said that he regards Dulles as the greatest secretary of state the U.S. has ever had.

Finicky Tuna Foils Science

OTTAWA (CP) — Science is unable to provide much satisfaction for the international tuna match off Wedgeport, N.S., which failed to get a bite last year and has been cancelled this year. The finicky tuna is a warm-water fish whose appearance in Canadian waters is "fortuitous," the Commons fisheries committee was told Tuesday. Even those that show up may not be hungry.

Puppet Lama Is In Peking
TOKYO (AP) — Red China's puppet ruler of Tibet, the Panchen Lama, arrived in Peking Tuesday and was given a royal welcome.

The 21-year-old Panchen Lama who was elevated when the Dalai Lama, the temporal and spiritual ruler, escaped to India, is in Peking to attend the Chinese Communist People's Congress opening Friday.

"His first words, as reported by the Peiping Radio, made it clear he can be expected to utter the speeches to the rubber stamp parliament which the Red Chinese government needs to smooth over its embarrassment at the Tibetan revolt.

He repeated the line of the government that the Dalai Lama had not sided with the revolutionists but had been seized by them and

Toronto Girl Gets Award
OTTAWA (CP) — Patricia Jordy of Toronto has won the Dominion Drama Festival's playwright award for the best dramatic composition by a Canadian resident and entered in a regional festival.

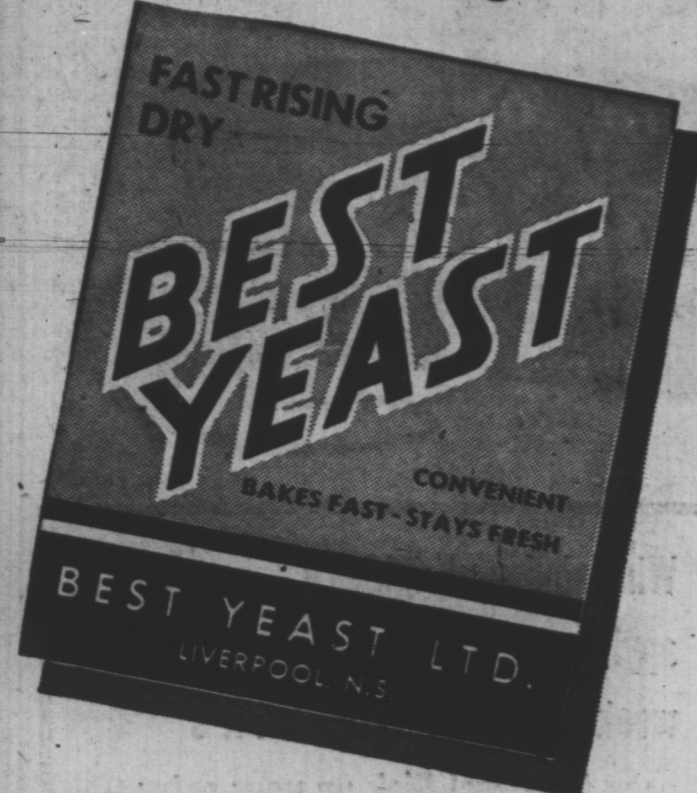

Festival headquarters here announced Tuesday three awards from the 14 regional festivals adjudicated by British actor-producer Richard Ainley.

The festival executive committee $100 prize went to Miss Jordy for Teach Me How to Cry, presented by the Halifax Maritime Players. The Halifax group

BEATEN "AS EXAMPLE"
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A Negro, Claude Odon, 42, stumbled into police headquarters Tuesday and told officers two white men kidnapped him in Birmingham, Ala., beat him and robbed him "as an example" to an unidentified Birmingham integration leader.
