Covehead or Stanhope, are there no other places to which Mr. Smith may take his "proteges," to give them a view of beautiful natural scenery? Surely such places as Cavendish, New London, Malpeque, Bedeque, Cascumpeque, Tignish, St. Peter's Bay, Bay Fortune, Grand River, Launching Place, and a score of others we could easily enumerate—will present many charms to the eye of an observer not inferior to those which may be seen about Stanhope; and Mr. Smith and his "proteges" may rest assured, that in those settlements they will find fences running, not merely north and south, but in every direction; chapels, churches and schoolhouses; and they will perceive, moreover, that everywhere in this thriving Island the women are numerous and healthy enough to dispute with Covehead or Stanhope the glory of exhibiting the longest rows of children. But let Mr. Smith honestly tell his "proteges," after they have seen all those things, that the blooming and well-fenced fields in old settlements like those mentioned are not to be bought for 6s. 8d. an acre in fee simple, or leased for a term of 999 years—three years free, and from 3d. to 9d. an acre afterwards. In commenting on Mr. Smith's advertisement, we very distinctly stated that new and unbroken land, covered with dense forests, is, for the most part, the only kind of land that now remains for new settlers. We did not deny that by long years of toil, during which health and life must decay, this wilderness land could be made to look as attractive as many old farms do; and when we used the terms "bleak and dreary wilderness," compared with the El Dorado which Mr. Smith had painted for his dupes, we had reference to the uncultivated lands only, and not to the whole face of the country. The Islander most unwarrantably accused us with having misrepresented the whole Island as a dreary wilderness. We exposed the silly falsehood, and silenced the editor of that paper. The Monitor, forsooth, repeats the lie, in the very breath with which he hypocritically prates about "religion and virtue." We deem it unnecessary to take any further notice of this falsehood. Having clipped the wings of the bumble bee of the Islander, which buzzed it for a short time into the ears of the public, we cannot lay ourselves open to the charge of cruelty by crushing on our editorial wheel the poor weak fly of the Monitor.

THE ECLIPSE.—The following article, which we copy from the Newfoundland Royal Gazette, will be read with interest by many people in this Island, who cherish a lively recollection of their former Governor, Sir Alexander Bannerman, and who, we are happy to perceive, can find leisure to assist in the promotion of scientific discovery:—

We understand that His Excellency Governer Sir Alexander Bannerman has received a communication from Professor Bache, Superintendent of United States Coast Survey, on the subject of the Eclipse of the Sun, which occurs on the 18th of July instant, and which is attracting great attention in Europe and America.

The central line of shadow crosses North America from near Steilacoom, Washington Territory, Cumberland House, Fort York, and Cape Chudleigh, bending into Spain and North Africa.

Professor Bache informs Sir Alexander that the "British, Russian, and German Astronomers are to go into Spain to observe the Eclipse; the United States Coastal Survey and the Boundary Commission will observe it in Washington Territory; the American Nautical Almanac Office, under the auspices of Sir G. Simpson, at Cumberland House;" and Professor Bache "desires to send such Astronomers as may volunteer from the United States and Canada, to Cape Chudleigh, Labrador."

Professor Bache asks Sir Alexander to give every facility to the expedition in his power, recommending it to his care and kindness and any officials of his government.

Cape Chudleigh is near the entrance of Hudson's Strait, and the extreme part of the coast of Labrador, which the Governor of Newfoundland, by an Imperial Act of the Legislature, confirmed by the Crown, has the power to superintend," and perhaps Sir Alexander himself would have been one of the volunteer Astronomers had the Eclipse happened at any other period than July, 1860.

It is well known, at least in the two Colonies of Prince Edward Island, and Nassau in the Bahamas, the governments of which Sir Alexander has administered—the estimation in which he is held by the government at Washington, by which he has been more than once thanked for services rendered to citizens of the United States in regard to matters connected with keeping up a friendly intercourse between Great Britain and the United States; and we believe he took a most active part in the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, while Lieutenant Governor of Prince Edward Island, correspond ng with the late eminent and lamented American statesman, Daniel Webster, and Secretary Marcy, as well as the British functionaries, Sir Henry Bulwer and Mr. Crampton; and that several most important provisions in the Treaty of 1854 were suggested by the present Governor of Newfoundland, and form part of that Treaty.

Should the proposed expedition touch at St. John's, we have no doubt His Excellency will do everything in his power to facilitate the object it has in view; and he has, we understand, already intimated to the Superintendents of the few settlements occupied by respectable British houses to give every information and aid to the Astronomers.

ARRIVAL OF THE "GREAT EASTERN."

The Great Eastern came in to the Light Ship, at Sandy Hook, at 7½ A M, on Thursday morning, having left the Needles at 10 A. M. on the 17th inst. According to the official account of Capt Carnegie, R. N., who accompanied her, "the Great Eastern's passage across the Atlantic has been as happy as it was successful. Originally destined to sail from Southampton on the evening of Saturday, the 16th, unforseen circumstances retarded her departure until 8 A M, on the 17th, when she slipped her moorings, and passing through the Needles, stopped to land the pilot. She then was again set in motion, and from that moment until the period that she sighted the light-vessel at Sandy Hook, neither paddles nor screw-engines have stopped for a single moment, except to take soundings.

'No furious gales impeded her progress, nor did favourable breezes assist to waft her across the Atlantic. Twice she encountered adverse winds and seas that would have made their formidable presence known in a smaller ship by the universal prostration of the passengers by the overpowering influence of sea-sickness, but such is the indifference of the great ship to troubles which harrass her smaller rivals, that no chair was empty either at breakfast or dinner hours, nor has a single plate or glass expired in fragments on tho floors as an offering to Neptune. Her passage has been more like that of a marine-railway, than of a ship exposed to the tossings and tumblings of the ocean's surges. Could the Atlantic be bridged with iron, it would be scarcely possible to convey passengers with more ease and comfort than that experienced on board; and if the ordinary discomforts of a sea voyage be not only annihilated, but changed into active enjoyment, it will be wonderful indeed if the Great Eastern does not secure the lion's share of traffic upon whatever route she may eventually be placed.

"Her passage has been made from Southampton to the light vessel in less than eleven days, but if this be considered as the maximum rate of velocity ultimately attainable, it will be a grievous error. Many causes may exist to reduce her speed, that are either removable or temporary, the first and most considerable being the incrustation upon her bottom, an incumbrance that cannot be taken at a less figure than that of a reduction of one and a half knots per hour. Again upon examining the log, we find that neither paddle nor screw engines were worked up to their full power for several days after her departure. At the outset and for some time afterwards, the revolutions of the paddle engines did not exceed nine in number. This precaution appears reasonable, when we remember that nearly all the engineers and firemen were strangers to the ship, and that they all had to be organized and arranged for the performance of their respective duties; but that once accomplished, the engines were allowed to put forth their strength and exhibit their power, the result of which has proved her ability to perform nearly four hundred miles in twenty-four hours.

Some extra delay has also been caused by the great ship in adopting the southern passage, which brought her within the influence of the Gulf Stream and an adverse current.

The Great Eastern is commanded by Capt John Vine Hall; her officers and crew number 420, and she brings 38 passengers, and eight guests

A LIVELY PLACE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER.

SIR,—The Islander of the 22nd ult. has the following extraordinary announcement:—

"We are pleased to learn that on the anniversary of Waterloo—16th to 18th inst.—Mr. James Quin, of Georgetown, being the only survivor resident there, made a special call on his friends and acquaintances, who felt highly honored by Mr. Quin's kindness in calling upon them. Mr. Quin was neatly dressed, and wore his Waterloo medal—he belonged to the 1st Batt., 27th Regiment, Foot, and is now in his 69th year. We hope he may be spared to see yet many more anniversaries."

If there is only one survivor of the battle of Waterloo in Georgetown, I should like to know where the rest of the inhabitants have gone to? and where the "friends" reside on whom Mr Quin conferred the honour of a call? Georgetown, we all know, was never a very lively place, but I never expected to hear of its being reduced to the possession of one inhabitant. Princetown has been often laughed at for having only one house in it; and the Tories attempted to disfranchise it last session on that account.

Will Georgetown be allowed to retain its parliamentary rights and privileges, because it happens to have one survivor of the battle of Waterloo, who dresses "neatly" on the anniversary of that event? By the way, is it not a constructive libel on Mr. Quin for the Islander to state that he was "neatly dressed" on the anniversary of Waterloo; thereby insinuating that he is not "neatly dressed" on any other day?

Yours, &c.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS for the cure of Dropsical Affectations.—The causes of Dropsy are very various. It is often engendered by the morbid state of the system. When the circulation is sluggish, impoverished, or impure, the first thing to be done to effect a cure is to correct the depraved humors of the blood, and give tone to the stomach. They are a gentle but most effective aperient and purifier. They speedily put the whole system into order, and give the patient more strength and sounder health than perhaps he ever enjoyed before at any period of his life. Printed directions for the use of the Pills are given with each box.

What a splendid Growth of Clover!!

FARMERS! have you seen Williams's Red Clover Seed or the Stalks on which it grew? Rarely are to be seen samples so fine. It is of William Lea's growth. Remember William Lea took the first prize for Red Clover at the Grain Show on the 7th inst.

Williams's Timothy and Turnip Seeds with all his Garden Seeds are, as usual, good, very good! Encourage the man, and patronise home growth. Look also at his White Bald Canada Wheat. He has a great variety of English Turnip Seeds; also Island Turnip Seed.
