

THE FAIR GOD.

BOOK FIVE. CHAPTER IV. (Continued.)

"What can be in the wind now?" asked Alvarado musingly. "Hadst thou asked me that question— 'Couldst thou have answered? Take the chance! What doth the master intend?'"

CHAPTER V. ALVARADO FINDS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

There was a bluster of trumpets and drums, and out of the main gate of the palace in which he was lodged, under the eyes of a concourse of spectators too vast to be nearly estimated, Cortes marched with the greater part of his Christians. The column was spirited, ever brilliant. Good steeds had improved with rest; while good fare, not to speak of the luxury of royal baths, had reconstituted both footmen and riders.

There is only one answer to the question who has the largest and best and cheapest assortment of hats on P. E. Island—and that is Prowse's.

From later details of the recent attempts to assassinate the Ameer of Afghanistan it appears that he had a very narrow escape. He was inspecting a military parade, seated on a small platform, the British envoy and Dr. Griesbeck sitting near him.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA BREAKFAST. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many a heavy doctor's bill. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft, by keeping our attacks well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
